Big Sale for Show.

"The Traveling Salesman," by James Forbes, author of "The Chorus Lady," will be seen tonight at the Plainfield theatre. This play has broken all previous box office records of the current theatrical season, and not since the palmy days of Charles Hoyt has any comedy enjoyed such a protracted vogue as this James Forbes offering, and it must be written down as one of the real successes of the present season that has scored an important success.

Sunday-school Teachers to Meet.

The Plainfield Graded Union of Sunday-school Teachers will meet at the Y. W. C. A. Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Miss Alice B. Hamlin, elementary superintendent of New Jersey, will be there to talk on the graded lessons of the beginners, primary and junior departments. All are welcome.

James Hurley, Jr., of Belmont avenue, who has been visiting relatives in Chicago for the past two weeks, will return home this week.

MRS. LOUISA M. RADFORD, AGED EIGHTY-NINE, DEAD

Mrs. Louisa M. Radford, widow of the late Robert Radford, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. M. S. Harold, 555 East Second street, yesterday afternoon in her eighty-ninth year. Mrs. Radford was a native of England and came to this country when a young girl. Her husband was for a long time a well known jeweler of this city and died in 1888. The funeral services will be held on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the residence of Mrs. Harold, Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring officiating.

Mrs. Radford is survived by seven daughters and one son. Mrs. M. S. Harold, Mrs. Howard Pope and Mrs. King, of this city; Mrs. W. Noble, Mrs. H. Ransom and Mrs. F. Martin, of Newark, and Mrs. G. Westervel, of Manuet, N. Y. The son is Robert Radford, of this city.

POST OFFICE XMAS RUSH IS BEGINNING

Although the Christmas or holiday rush has not commenced at the local postoffice, Postmaster E. H. Bird, not to be caught napping, will be prepared for it when it starts about next week. Recently, when he visited Washington, he made all arrangements for the holiday season. This season's full force will comprise twenty-two regular letter-carriers, eleven clerks, three rural free delivery carriers, six sub-carriers to draw upon; an extra clerk in the registry department and an extra stamping clerk.

During the real rush Postmaster Bird will have three stamp windows in commission and every facility will be afforded to receive and deliver quickly all mail. When Postmaster Bird entered upon his duties eleven years ago, the carrier force comprised eleven men and there were four clerks. Today the office is one of the best equipped of its class in the country.

In discussing the business at the local office, today, Mr. Bird said that the receipts for October exceeded by nearly $600 those for the corresponding month of last year, and he felt sure that the November receipts would show an even bigger increase. The growth in business has been steady and not of the mushroom variety. Mr. Bird expects that the holiday rush will set in early next week and from that time until January 1 every employe will be on the jump. The force as stated is exclusive of Mr. Bird and his assistant, James Martin. In the use of the extra help Mr. Bird will decide later upon a division of the work.

TAKEN FROM WORK BY TRUANCY OFFICER

A case which caused Judge William Runyon to ask that the exigencies of the matter be considered was referred by the court to Superintendent Henry M. Maxson for special consideration this morning.

Matilda Lozzi, a girl who is fifteen years and four months old, was taken summarily from her work in a hair factory on Madison avenue by Miss Matilda Ball, the truant officer and ordered back to school. Miss Lozzi's father is a man of seventy, a stone cutter by trade, and out of work. He is probably too old to work now and his daughter and son, the latter working for J. C. Blimm, will have to support their father. It was ascertained this morning that the son earns enough to supply the food for the little family while the daughter pays the rent and provides fuel for the stove.

Mr. Lozzi, the father, called on Judge Runyon yesterday explaining, with tears streaming down his cheeks, just how much it meant to all three of them if Matilda were prohibited from turning in the money they needed so much. It would be a hardshp for them and would break the daughter's heart for she knows her aged parent is unable to do any more hard work.

Pending a final decision by the school authorities Miss Lozzi was permitted to return to the factory this morning, happy in the belief that she would be permitted to help keep the family together.

Vets to Elect Officers.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will meet Tuesday night, December 14, and elect officers for the coming year. H. Craig Smith has been renominated for commander.

Sesame Club Meeting.

MANY BUILDING PERMITS

Inspector Reports That Aggregate for November will Be Above $150,000.

LOCAL CONTRACTORS BUSY.

Revival of Business Prosperity Is Shown by Increase of Building Operations.

That there is a healthy activity in local building operations is indicated by a perusal of the permits issued during the month of November by Building Inspector Doane. In that period twenty-five grants were issued as against twenty-three in October. The erection and alterations in the various structures, which the permits cover, represents an expenditure of between $150,000 and $200,000, the bulk of which goes to local contractors.

A glance at the list of permits also demonstrates that the East End is coming in for a big share of attention by home builders as permits were issued for nineteen buildings for dwellings purposes.

Two real estate transactions of note were also recorded during the month. The Clark building was sold to F. L. Jennings, of the borough, while Jacob Fass, became the owner of the Compton building. Permits issued for new buildings during the month of November follow:

Mrs. M. E. Squires, 724 Watchung avenue, brick alteration to change present property into an apartment house.

Mr. and Mrs. Whyte to Leave Here.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Whyte, of Orchard place, will remove to Trenton tomorrow. Mr. Whyte has accepted a position as traveling salesman for the Trenton Cracker company, and will assume the position Saturday. Both Mr. and Mrs. Whyte will be greatly missed at Hope chapel, where Mr. Whyte was a leader of the Junior's Boys' Club, a teacher in the Sunday-school, assistant treasurer of the church and a member of the ways and means committee. Mrs. Whyte was interested in church work at the chapel, too. She was a teacher in the beginners' department and a member of the Ladies' Aid and Women's Missionary societies.

ITALIAN BUNCO STEERERS WORKED OLD GAME

The old bunco game practiced by Italians on their own countrymen found another victim yesterday afternoon when Joseph Di Piano parted with twenty-five good round dollars for a "job," which unfortunately he will not obtain from the bunco steerers.

DiPiano arrived here about 3 o'clock apparently in search of work. He was well dressed and just sauntered around looking for an opportunity to apply for work. He found his way to the North avenue station, where he was approached by two men who appeared to take a great interest in his movements. One was an Italian the other an American, and both got into conversation with the job seeker.

"Do you want a good job?" asked the American, "I can give you a fine one."

"Sure," said Joseph. "Wanta da work on street."

The American's companion here broke in Italian and told Di Piano that he had a job for a good man, but it would be necessary to make a trip to the Clinton avenue station for a valise which the boss had there in the baggage room.

"Would Joseph go and get it?" Sure he would.

But "there is some money in the bag so you had better leave some security for your safe return," said the pair.

Joseph dug down and produced twenty-five dollars, which he had wrapped in a bandana handkerchief and took the next trolley to Clinton avenue. He arrived but was unable to connect with the valise, for it wasn't there, and on his return to the station his friends were also missing.

DiPiano reported the matter to the police. Which is all that could be done.

TEA, SALE AND MUSICALE OF A MISSION SOCIETY

Under the auspices of the Young Women's Mission Society of the First Baptist church a tea, sale and musicale was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Chambliss on Central avenue. There was a large attendance of members and friends and the patronage was very satisfactory, while the musicale was greatly enjoyed.

The program comprised readings by Mrs. Robert Lowry, soprano solos by Mrs. Robert Giddes, piano solos by Mrs. J. Hervey Buchanan and whistling solos by Mrs. Charles E. Rice.

The tea followed, those in charge being Mrs. Elmar Giddes, Mrs. O. P. Hamilton, and they were assisted by other members of the society. Mrs. Clifford Manning and Miss Helen Armstrong presided at the fancy goods table, while Miss Carrie Demler and Mrs. Robin Brown were in charge of the cake table. Miss Marguerite Ostrom was at the candy table. The young women of the society assisted at all the tables, under the general direction of Mrs. J. B. Probasco, president of the society. Miss May Shreve arranged the program.

ARE WORKING QUIETLY TO GET LIQUOR LICENSE.

It is generally reported that John Mortimer, of West Seventh street, and Henry Haurand, of Somerset street, are among half a dozen who will apply to the Common Council on Monday night for the retail liquor license held by the late John Rafferty, on Park avenue, for many years. It is generally considered that neither has any chance.

Mortimer has been working quietly among his friends, it is said, but so far as is known he has advanced no sound reason why the city should grant him a franchise to sell liquor.

McIvor is Fined $100.

Hugh McIvor, the chaffeur, one of a quartet charged with a violation of the automobile law and the only one convicted, was arraigned in the Union County Court, this morning, for sentence. Winfield S. Angleman and V. W. Nash, Jr., of counsel for the convicted man, were present. The court imposed a fine of $100, which was paid, and the man was discharged.

Mr. Schermerhorn Improving.

C. H. Schermerhorn, the agent for the Christian Herald, who was badly injured in a fall at the North avenue station last Wednesday, is now able to be about again. His head was badly cut in the fall and he was rendered unconscious.

—Neuman Brothers are having a big run on their special sale of fancy fruits which include choice brands of pitted cherries, apricots, California oranges, Florida tangerines, etc.

SANATORIUM IS OPENED

THE BUILDING IS INSPECTED.

The opening for inspection of the sanatorium for the treatment of tuberculosis patients on Muhlenberg Hospital grounds yesterday afternoon was a pleasant affair, and the "pound" invitation was responded to in a gratifying manner. The building was crowded with visitors, who viewed with much interest the arrangements for the care and comfort of its intended inmates. Every friend brought a contribution towards the housekeeping, and from the appearance of the tables on whch the packages were stacked it is evident that there will be no danger of famine for some time to come. The tea table was prettily decorated with flowers and the cup that cheers was offered to all comers.

Tea was poured by Mrs. Frank Hyde and Mrs. Chapman Fisk. Assisting them were Mrs. Allan Cowperwaite and the Misses Margaret Goddard, Grace Burke and Ellen Merrill.

This morning the work of the pavilion was begun with the admission of seven patients. One more has been accepted by the committee on admissions, and will soon be in the residence. General supervision of the sanatorium will be exercised by Miss Josephine Hughes, of the hospital, but the actual care of the patients will be in the hands of two nurses, who have themselves been inmates of similar institutions. Dr. Frederic J. Hughes is the physician in charge.

The sanatorium fronts on Moffat avenue, facing south, and has four rooms for invalids, each containing two cots. These rooms are entirely open on the south side, which can, however, be closed by a heavy curtain, rigged like a porch awning. Each of the two corner rooms has large windows on the end and back, while the other rooms have windows at the back. These windows are on hinges and open out.

In front of these rooms is a porch about five or six feet wide, where it is expected the patients will sit during the day. Curtains at the ends, and part way along the front will furnish protection against winds from the east and west. These rooms are arranged two on each side of a central room, enclosed on all sides, which extends to the front line of the porch, really forming two porches, one on the east of the room and the other on the west; it opens on to the porches by glass doors, and has large windows in front, on the south end. This is to be used as a dining room, and has a large heater which also heats the toilet and bath rooms back of it. Back of these latter rooms is a kitchen, with a gas stove, where simple cooking may be done. Off the kitchen on one side is a closet for the refrigerator. In the pasageway from the dining room to the kitchen are eight lockers, one for each patient. Each of these lockers already contans a pair of heavy woolen stockings and a pretty wrapper, gifts of kind friends.

The society which has thus satisfactorily started the relief branch of its work now asks the residents of Plainfield and North Plainfield to aid it in solving its financial problem, and after the generous manner in which the problems of other institutions primarily established to help those who are unable to pay for attention have been solved there can be no doubt that this society will not appeal in vain. It now has 260 members, and the wish is to increase the numbers to 5,000. It is considered that that number pay the small amount of one dollar a year to aid in the suppression of a disease which causes one tenth of all the deaths which take place annually in the State of New Jersey.

The wants of the society are urgent. Altogether about $3,450 has been contributed. Of this $3,075 has been expended for the building and equipment of the pavilion. While the sanatorium is on the hospital grounds and enjoys certain advantages of supervision and service, this latter must be paid for, as the hospital cannot finance the work nor aid in any way by money or unremunerated services. To care for eight patients, including food and necessary attendance the society estimates that it will need from $250 to $300 a month; after some experience this estimate can be reduced to a certainty.

In addition to its work in the sanatorium the society will endeavor to carry on visiting work among the consumptive poor, for the purpose of

RECEPTION AND TEA FOR A DEBUTANTE

Mrs. J. C. Peck, of Myrtle avenue, gave a reception and tea yesterday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock, at which time her daughter, Miss Gladys Peck, was formerly introduced. There were more than one hundred guests present during the afternoon. Miss Peck received a very large number of beautiful flowers from admiring friends.

Mrs. Peck and her daughter and Miss Cornelia Kahle received and those assisting were Mrs. Townsend Rushmore, Mrs. George T. Rogers, Mrs. Robert H. McCutcheon, Mrs. Frank Carter, Mrs. Marcelle Kahle and Mrs. J. H. Howell.

Those who assisted in the dining room were Mrs. Lewis Williams, Miss Margaret McCutchen, Mrs. William McCutchen, Miss Helen Phillips, Mrs. Alston M. Abbott, Mrs. Donald McGee and Mrs. H. L. McGee.

EMILO DE GOGORZA HEARD AT MUSICALE

An ovation greeted Emilio de Gogorza at the conclusion of his rendering of the "Toreador" song from Carmen in Hartridge School auditorium last night, but it was as nothing compared to the applause which followed the singing of the prologue to "I'Pagciacci." Mr. Gogorza, who had been in indulgent in the matter of encores during the evening after several recalls finally ended by singing charmingly Kipling's "Mother of Mine," music by Tours.

All of Mr. de Gogorza's songs were sung with that happy familiarity which testifies to the singer's absolute confidence in himself and with a suavity of voice only found in the true artist. Parts of the program seemed to be a trifle mechanical, but this may be attributed to the accompanist, Mr. Rosenstein, whose immaturity was apparent.

It would be valueless to enter into a detailed report of the recital as it was quite up to the expectations of the large audience and pleased everybody. As an encore to the Toreador Mr. Gogorza sang that always popular old English song "Drink to me Only With Thine Eyes." Faure's "In the Cemetery" was done with true regard for the sentiment of the words and the minor music. All the Spanish songs were hearthy received and enjoyed.

At the end of the recital Mr. Gogorza grasped the hand of his accompanist and led him to the footlights to share the applause.

YOUNG HEBREWS HOLD THEIR ANNUAL ELECTION

The Young Men's Hebrew Association held its semi-annual meeting last night for the election of officers and transaction of other business. Reports were received from the secretary and treasurer and showed the association to be in fine shape. The Hebrew school will no doubt be opened within two weeks, as the committee reported arrangements as nearly completed with a competent instructor and lecturer to take complete charge.

This committee was appointed to arrange for the third annual ball to be held on Saturday night, January 1: Samuel Rothberg, chairman; A. Victorsen, secretary; Jacob Abrams, treasurer; Arthur Richards, Harry Taub, Max Bernstein, Louis Goldstein. The banquet was postponed until Monday night, when the newly-elected officers will be installed. The trustees will be appointed by the president at that time and the plans of the building committee will be fully discussed.

COULDN'T BEAT MILTNER

NABBED ON WAY TO STATION.

Plausible "Boss" Sends an Emissary for Funds—Will He Return?

"You ate my food and I want my money," said Proprietor Miltner, of the Belmont Hotel, to a trio of men in police headquarters this morning. "If you had not attempted to sneak away with your grips I would have listened to your explanation, but I don't want to be stung."

The three men gave their names as C. B. Wornbuell, of Troy, N. Y.; C. A. Falk, Boston, Mass., and P. W. Hyland, Baltimore, Md. Wornbuell had his wife here with him, but she did not appear at police headquarters.

Wornbuell, who appeared to be the "boss" of the crowd, tried to explain to Chief Kiely and later to Judge William Runyon, that the trio represented a firm of music publishers in New York city and that they were here to exploit the songs of a popular song writer of the big city. They also claimed that they represented the Hallet & Davis Piano Co., and were doing a legitimate business.

Inquiry at the warerooms of the Hallet and Davis Company on East Front street this morning failed to confirm the story of Wornbuell, in fact it was somewhat shattered. Manager Reed said that although the men arrived here last Wednesday they did not apply to him for a piano until Friday and then after due consideration he declined to risk the instrument with them.

The method pursued by these men is to take a piano from any piano store, mount it on a truck and go about the streets distributing circulars advertising the piano in the meantime singing songs of a popular writer at prices which bring in big profits.

It was impossible to tell which of the three was the warbler, but it was assumed that Mrs. Wornbuell might have held that highly illuminative position. There was only one other obstacle in the way of the game and that was the necessity for a license which costs something like twenty-five dollars, for peddling and that was what they were going to do. Advertising the piano was a secondary matter.

At police headquarters, where Patrolman Nolan brought the music men, they attempted to explain away their early exit. Judge Runyon when asked for his opinion said it would relieve matters if one of the party were dispatched to the headquarters of the music publishers with instructions to get (if he could) the twenty-eight dollars with which to settle Mr. Miltner's claim, the alternative being going to Elizabeth for investigation by the grand jury.

P. W. Hyland was entrusted with the mission, and in the meantime Messrs. Wornbuell and Falk are being detained at the Hotel Kiely on Sycamore street.

Question: Will Hyland return with the dough, if at all?

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

New Market is evidently trying to beat the record this year in the display of monster vegetables. About one month ago Clark Rogers called the attention of the inhabitants to a carload of potatoes, some of which were of mammoth proportions, the biggest of which tipped the scales slightly over two pounds; next came a gigantic pumpkin, the largest seen in the township in many years, which was displayed in H. L. Pierce's store; now Robert Nagle has contributed a monster squash which is also on exhibition at Pierce's store. This is said to weigh sixty-two pounds, or twelve pounds heavier than the famous turkey which was sent to President Taft from admirers in Westerly, R. I.

Joseph P. Cole, father of Mrs. William Norman, who died on Monday afternoon at South River, was well known in this section as the man who never missed a circus in the vicinity of Plainfield or New Brunswick during the past fifty years. Mr. Cole was in his eighty-first year. On his last birthday he surprised all of relatives by walking from South River to the home of his daughter, between New Market and South Plainfield.

Charles Thornton, who disposed of his hotel business to John Harkins, is making arrangements to take an extended vacation in an effort to recuperate his health. Mr. Thornton has not yet decided whether he will go to Europe or west. In any event his plans will necessitate the election of a new chief in the New Market fire department at its next election.

Henry C. Garretson was in New York on business yesterday.

The committee in charge of "The Bachelor's" dance held last night in Excelsior hall, outdid themselves, the dance being a most successful as well as enjoyable affair. The hall was prettily trimmed with bunting and flags, which made a happy contrast to the merry dancing crowd. Suhr's orchestra never was better, and was kept busy dispensing the enchanting waltzes and two steps until 1 o'clock. Guests were present from Plainfield, Westfield and the borough.

Mrs. Frederick Clawson and daughter, of Front street, have returned from a visit with relatives and friends at New Market.

The weekly prayer and praise meeting of the Baptist church will be held tonight in the church parlors.

Rich Furs and Fur Coats for Xmas Wear

In purchasing furs every woman prefers to select them where assortments are most comprehensive; where qualities are dependable and prices most reasonable—conditions ever present in this store's showing.

Discriminating shoppers of this city, and for miles around, know this and also of the matchless values we offer, and in consequence—notwithstanding the mild weather—our fur business thus far is much in excess of any we have yet recorded.

We again admonish those who favor Black Furs, that the best time for buying—for Xmas needs—is NOW, while perfect choice and lowest prices are available.

BAMBERGER'S

"THE ALWAYS BUSY STORE"

MARKET, HALSEY & BANK STS.

Between Ourselves

Here's the story of another Brooklyn woman who finds it more profitable to trade at Bamberger's than in her home city.

The wife of the writer, while passing through the first floor yesterday, encountered the person in question, and after the customary feminine salutations were over, she exclaimed: "What in the world brings you to Newark?"

The lady from the City of Churches replied: "Do you know that I find I can do so much better at Bamberger's than elsewhere that I come over every year at this time and spend a week with mother in Elizabeth and do all my Christmas shopping. Would you believe it?" she continued. "I've just bought a train of cars upstairs for $1.98 that --------'s asked $3.00 for, and here's a dandy scarf for $3.00 that I couldn't buy at --------'s under $4.00 and maybe $5.00. Do you blame me for wanting to trade here? It pays."

This is a true story, hot off the griddle, and it illustrates what we've always claimed, that this is the best store in the whole Metropolitan District for people who know values.

A New Back for an Old One—How It is Done in Plainfield.

The back aches at times with a dull, indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Follow the example of this Plainfield citizen.

Albert Naylor, 519 East Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Several years ago I was afflicted with a dull ache in the small of my back and sharp pains darted through me when I stooped or lifted. I was told that Doan's Kidney Pills were a sure cure for such troubles and procuring a supply at Randolph's pharmacy, I began their use. Two boxes of this remedy fixed me up in good shape and I have often recommended it since to other persons suffering as I did."

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

As a result of the meeting of the Eastern Professional Golfers' Association in New York Monday more international contests are in sight. In fact, it is not unlikely that the much mooted question with regard to the relative ability of the "pros" in America and Great Britain may be settled. The idea of a match first suggested itself a short time ago, when it was learned that a number of the leading professionals were going abroad for the winter, and at the league meeting Monday this subject was practically the only one discussed.

The outcome was that the secretary of the Eastern Professional Golfers' Association was instructed to challenge the British Professional Golfers' Association to a match during the winter. Alec Smith, champion of the Eastern body in this country, was elected captain, and the arrangement of further details will be left to him. Well known resident "pros" who intend to sail shortly include Alec Smith, of Wykagyl; H. H. Barker, of Garden City; Isaac Mackie, of Fox Hills; James Maiden, of Nassau; Gilbert Nichols, of Wilmington; Dave Hunter, of Essex county, and Peter Robertson, of Pittsburg.

In discussing the question after the meeting Barker suggested that it would be a good plan to play a series of matches with the different divisions. The professional body on the other side is divided into several minor associations, such as the Scottish, Welsh, Northern, Southern and Irish. As practically all the players who would be selected from this side would be members of the Eastern organization, a more equal contest could doubtless be brought about by playing matches with the different foreign divisions.

Most of the golfers who intend sailing will have left these shores early in January, and it is generally conceded that the visiting clan would have little difficulty in being accommodated. Every winter the cream of the professionals of Great Britain cross over to the Continent to take part in the open championship of the south of France, and should the American representatives decide to go there as well some stirring struggles would be certain to follow.

Before Tom Vardon, who spent the summer and fall in this country, sailed for home he declared that the leading professionals over here could undoubtedly hold their own with the best abroad. On another occasion, immediately after the brilliant performance of Alec Smith in the four ball match at Apawamis, Vardon said with emphasis that the golf played by Alec that day was as fine as anything he had ever seen. Whether or not a team picked from such players as may happen to go across this winter could hold its own with the best in Great Britain, is, of course, open to question, but the fact remains that the "pros" over here have risen greatly during the last few years, and the only way to settle the question of supremacy is in such meetings.

THIS IS REAL CHARITY.

A genuine charity, one that appeals to every human being, is that whose object it is to prevent and relieve tuberculosis. The annual loss of life caused by this dreaded disease is appalling and it is only recently that the public has been aroused to a sense of duty to stamp out the devastating agency. All over the land, societies have been, or are being, organized to fight the great white plague. Here in our city, there is a healthy organization in charge of the work. As a result of its efforts, a pavilion for the treatment of local sufferers has been thrown open.

To carry on the laudable crusade, funds are sorely needed for science is powerless if there is no money with which to conduct the campaign. Therefore, no matter what one's income may be he should give according to his means for such a worthy cause. There is a way, now presented, whereby all citizens can avail themselves of the opportunity of helping along the work at a very trifling expense. This is by the purchase of Red Cross stamps. These carry messages of good cheer and are designed to be pasted on letters and Christmas presents. They cost but one cent each and a packet of 100 means but a dollar outlay. Eighty per cent. of the receipts from such sales go to the local work, while the small balance will be sent to the American Red Cross Society for general work among sufferers.

Birthday Party.

Letter-carrier Frank W. Bailey was given a birthday surprise on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Ida Slater, of Jackson avenue. The surprise was arranged and carried out by the members of a bungalow party who spent last summer at Manasquan, of which Mr. Bailey was also a member. The evening was pleasantly spent, those present being Mr. and Mrs. Bailey, Mrs. Ida Slater, the Misses Julia and Belle Williams, Miss Mabel Stevens, Miss Ethel King, Carlton Smith and Pierson Bailey.

HERE AND THERE.

Everybody in Scotch Plains, from the youngest school pupil to those who have passed the three-score mark and over, know "Aunt" Mary Ann Evans, who has been a resident of the township for nearly three-quarters of a century. Well, "Aunt Mary" was always able to get about and make her regular pilgrimages among the neighbors where she eked out her livlihood by doing chores until about a couple of months ago. It was then that "Aunt Mary's" appearances on the streets suddenly ceased and everybody began to ask "What has become of old "Aunt Mary?"

Another place where "Aunt Mary's" face and snow white hair has been missing of late is at the services in the Methodist church. She is a devout woman and was a regular attendant at services until this summer. In rain, snow or sunshine, she was sure to be seen occupying her accustomed pew in the front of the church. "Aunt Mary" was always considered a Christian of the real type. One little habit of hers is the fervent "Amen," which was always heard. She is wrapped-up in her religion so much that she used to attend all of the services of the church, including the Sunday-school session and children's meetings.

But "Aunt Mary" is seen no more in her pew as in former days, for two months ago she was stricken with paralysis, and in addition to this misfortune, she is going blind. The sight of one eye has left her and the vision of the other eye is so dimmed that now she is only barely able to make her rounds as formerly. "Aunt Mary" never could tell just how old she is, but to residents who have known her for years her age is placed at ninety or thereabouts. She is living alone in a cabin on Bartle avenue, which she has occupied for years, and the closing days of her life are being brightened by the kindly ministrations of old friends and neighbors. She is unable to hear her Bible and hymnal any more, but her old church friends visit her and read the Bible stories and sing the old songs to her.

"Aunt Mary" is an old colored woman, but that makes no difference to the host of white friends whom she has impressed by her faith in Christianity during all of the years she has made Scotch Plains her home.

PERSONAL.

Miss Mildred Schlessinger, of Yonkers, N. Y., has returned home after spending a few days with Miss Margaret Kenney, of East Second street.

Mrs. John Alster, of East Sixth street, underwent a noperation on Sunday performed by Drs. Dundon and Cregar, and is reported as doing well.

Mrs. L. B. Woolston and daughter, Miss Marguerite Woolston, of Fairview avenue, have returned home after spending a week with relatives in Beverly.

Mrs. M. E. Edgerton, of East Front street, who has been stopping at The Shoreham, Atlantic City, is now registered at the Marlborough-Blenheim, the same place.

Miss Avis Aldrich, a senior at Vassar College, has returned to her studies after spending several days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Aldrich, of Sherman avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Irving, of Westfield, are parents of a girl born to them yesterday. Mr. Irving is employed in the mechanical department of the Recorder Press on Madison avenue.

The stork stopped at 80 Mercer avenue, in the borough, about 8 o'clock last night and left a boy for Mr. James M. Leonard. The young mother is in excellent spirts and congratulations are pouring in on the proud parents.

Portable Electric Bath.

An electric light bath outfit invented by a French army surgeon and designed to be used in private homes or army camps is described with illustration in the October Popular Mechanics. From a medical standpoint such baths are considered of great value, especially in European medical circles, but the ordinary apparatus is too sumbersome for other than hospital operation. This apparatus is small, light, simple and easily portable, consisting of two jaws which open and close upon a hinged joint. Within the two curved receptacles thus formed are placed three electric lamps of variabe intensity, evolving altogether an intense light and a powerful heat. Owing to the shape of the apparatus it can be applied to any part of the body.

Edward Mundy Injured.

Edward Mundy, of Stone street, while delivering goods this morning, suffered an injury to his foot in which the bone of the big toe was broken. He was moving some boxes in the wagon, when the horse made a sudden start, throwing one of the heaviest boxes on his foot. The injury required the services of a physician.

ECHO.

Tell me, 'midst the heather lying,
Puffing at a cheap Manila,
What it is that sets me sighing
For the hand of rich Priscilla?
Echo: "Siller!"

Though she's homely, don't suppose I
With that fact am unacquainted;
Though her face is wondrous rosy,
Echo says it isn't painted!
Echo: "Ain't it!"

But she scorns me; her extensive
Wealth she very highly prizes.
Is there nothing inexpensive
That a lady's love entices?
Echo: "Ices!"

Echo, if you had my chances
At a ball would you be bolder?
What would you do when she dances
With her hand upon your shoulder?
Echo: "Hold her!"

Yes, you're right, no girl shall show to Me, the last of the O'Gradys,
Such contempt, so she may go to
Echo. —!

One Woman's Way.

"I suppose," said the American youth, who had just been handed a frosty digit, "you wouldn't marry for a title, would you?"

"I should say not," replied the heiress. "A girl who marries for anything but love is foolish."

"Well," rejoined the young man, "I'm glad of that—even if I am a loser."

"But I don't mind saying," continued the girl with the obese bank balance, "that a man will have to have a title before I can love him."

After the brick house had been pushed over on him, figuratively speaking, the young man batted out a home run.

As One Finds Them.

"Gracious!" exclaimed the visitor in surprise. "Who is that chap laughing as though his sides would split?"

"Ah, that's Penner, the chap who writes up those articles about business depressions, etc."

"That's queer. And who is the lanky chap with the lugubrious expression, who looks as though he had lost every friend in the world?"

"Oh, that's Homer Happy, the man that turns out that 'When the World Is Going Wrong—Smile!' poetry by the column."

PROOF.

"Do you believe married men or bachelors are the braver?"

"Married men. If they were not, all men would be bachelors."

Spending Is Harder.

"Any blockhead can make money,"
The old counterfeiter said;
"But the man who tries to spend it Must have a level head."

Dressed for the Part.

"What subject have you taken for your address at the Civic club?"

"Woman's moral obligations as a citizen."

"What a lovely subect. And what are you going to wear?"

"That new gown I brought home with me from Paris. And just think; I had it so cleverly packed in with my old clothes that the custom house inspector never discovered it was there."

Willing to Help.

"But, darling," murmured the lovelorn youth, "every night for two weeks I have been on my bended knees before you. Have you no pity?"

"I certainly have, Horace," spoke up the pretty flirt, as she reached for her hand bag, "here is a whole quarter. Go have your trousers pressed. After so much bending they must be baggy at the knees."

Soft Job.

"I hate clerking," drawled the slothful youth in the green hatband, "and I would like a position where I could keep my hands soft and white."

"Oh, you would, eh?" spoke up the business man sarcastically. "Then why not get a job as dishwasher in a summer hotel?"

Just the Thing.

"This college intimates that you should donate another chair," said the secretary.

"Another chair," snapped the crabbed multimillionaire. "Why, they must think I'm easy."

"Well, sir, in that case why not donate an easy chair?"

New at It.

"I heard there were some startling developments in the Bangs family."

"Dear me! What is the matter?"

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Rosalind Coghlan, who will be seen at the Plainfield theatre tonight in the leading feminine role in James Forbes' latest comedy, "The Traveling Salesman," is the daughter of the distinguished actress, Rose Coghlan, who is one of the most interesting personages on the American stage. Her distinguished mother was born in England and came to this country when a child, and for years has figured prominently in theatrical events. As a comedienne she has no rivals among the women of the present day, and in tragedy she can be classed among the best. During her long career as the leading lady of the famous Wallack Theater Stock Company she appeared in over 60 plays, and in every one scored an emphatic triumph. Among the other artists who appeared in conjunction with her at this famous playhouse were such celebrated people as Mme. Ponisi, John Gilbert, Kate Bartlett, Stella Boniface, Harry Beckett, Joseph W. Shannon, Kyrle Bellew, Herbert Kelcey and Annie Robe.

No life problems, no sex questions, nothing questionable in argument or presentation is said to mark the production of "The House Next Door," which play will serve to present J. E. Dodson to theatregoers in this city at the Plainfield theatre on Saturday night, December 4. A simple recital of family pride as opposed to the introduction of a family of the new made kind into its circle, is the fundamental motive of the play. Largeness of expression, moving situations and violent opposition are effective in their employment to broaden the play into a comedy of most cheerful quality, that has scenes of good farce as well as those of sentimental quality. Both the play and star have been made known in the large cities and have been received with all the enthusiasm usually accorded the best in drama and acting. As to Mr. Dodson it is hardly necessary to add, that his career before he came to this country and during the twenty years he has made it his home, is one of achievement. There is no artist on the English speaking stage today, who can compare with him as an exponent of character interpretation. He is alone in that field and the critics throughout America have so affirmed.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The great total of $161,973,703.77 was disbursed by the United States Government for pensions during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1909, the largest sum ever paid out in a twelve-month period by this government. This fact is set forth in the report of Secretary of the Interior Richard A. Ballinger.

Secretary Ballinger states that since the foundation of the government there has been disbursed for pensions to soldiers, sailors and marines, their widows and dependents, the sum of $3,913,082,513.73, of which amount $96,445,444.23 was paid prior to June 30, 1865. Since that date pension payments have increased from $15,450,549.88 in 1866 to $161,973,703.77 in 1909. The act of February 6, 1907, granting pensions of $12, $15 and $20 per month to the survivors of the war with Mexico and the Civil War on reaching the ages of sixty-two, seventy-five years respectively, has added a number of pensioners to the roll.

The last surviving soldier of the Revolutionary War died April 5, 1869, and the last surviving widow of that war died November 11, 1906. The name of one daughter of a soldier of the Revolution, pensioned by a special act of Congress, still remains on the roll. The last pensioned soldier of the War of 1812 died May 13, 1905, but the pension rolls still contain the names of 393 widows of soldiers of that war.

Special acts of Congress granting pensions and increases have added greatly to the sum paid out annually above the requirements of the regular pension laws. The total number of pensioners on the rolls at the end of the fiscal year was 946,194, a decrease of 5,493 from the first of the same year.

NO ARRESTS YET OVER SLANDEROUS LETTERS.

New Brunswick, Dec. 1.—Although an Underwood typewriter has been seized by Prosecutor Boorsem and placed in a safety deposit vault, no arrests have been made yet in the effort to punish the persons who circulated slanderous circulars, mailing them from the Newark Postoffice, just before the last election here. The circulars attacked the character of H. Raymond Groves, former Assemblyman and county collector.

The grand jury was in session last week, but no evidence was presented to it in this matter. Mr. Groves' friends say the circulars were sent out by a faction of the Republican party opposed to him. Government detectives were employed and typewriting experts hired. Investigation showed the typewriter was removed from Republican headquarters for a day and then returned. The prosecutor says he knows where the envelopes were addressed and has the statement of the girl who addressed them. He says there is no hurry about making arrests, since the persons alleged to be implicated cannot get away.

RAM'S HORN BROWN'S PHILOSOPHY.

An enemy is an enemy, whether he caries a flag or a musket.

The organ's sweetest music does not come from the biggest pipes.

No school will do us much good unless we make life itself our school.

Sometimes the meeting is closed the tightest the moment the leader says it is open.

Tell your troubles only to the Lord, and you will soon have joys to tell to everybody.

The thing that makes a bulldog famous is that he hangs on like grim death to the end.

No man has done his whole duty to God who has done less than his duty toward his next door neighbor.

The man who blows into an old gun to see whether it is loaded, never makes the foolkiller any trouble.

Aim high. It won't hurt your gun any more to knock feathers out of an eagle than to splinter a barn door.

A woman can jump at a conclusion and hit it with both feet while a man is bringing his wits around the corner.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

It's easier for a girl to be clever than pretty.

The man who does his best seldom has to look for a job.

The average man is a poor judge of his own importance.

Unconventional people can be as tiresome as the conventional brand.

Keep love at the boiling point and it will soon simmer down to nothing.

After a man gets married he has less to say about what he can or cannot afford.

If promises were like railroad restaurant pie crusts, fewer of them would be broken.

The aviator who patterns his machine after riches should be able to fly in any kind of weather.

A man never reaches the highest degree of contentment until he becomes perfectly indifferent, and then he has nothing to live for.

WHEN YOU HAVE FOUND YOUR PLACE.

You will be happy in it—contented, joyous, cheerful, energetic.

You will go to your task with delight and leave it with regret.

Your work will be a perpetual tonic to you. There will be no drudgery in it.

You will feel yourself growing in your work, and your life broadening and deepening.

The days will be all too short for you. Dinner time and closing time will come before you realize it.

You will not apologize because you are not this or that, because you will have found your place and will be satisfied.

All your faculties will give their consent to your work; will say "Amen" to your occupation. There will be no protest anywhere in your nature.

You will not feel humiliated because you are a farmer, or a blacksmith, or a shoemaker; because, whatever your occupation or profession, you will be an artist instead of an artisan.

Life will be a glory, not a grind.—Orison Swett Marden in Success Magazine.

PUCKERINGS.

When we read about men writing poetry in prison we can't help but admire the ingenuity of their revenge.

The trouble with the man who knows it all is that he resents any attempt at keeping his knowledge up to date.

Very few words answer the purposes of rudimentary minds, as witness the vocabulary of savages and of young persons in love.

PLAINFIELD'S ELKS MEET WITH DEFEAT

Plainfield Elks rolled their first series in the Elks' League last night at Elizabeth and lost the odd game to the county seat pin knights. The scores were low and below the ability of both teams which was in a large part due to the newness of the alleys. Bowlers on both teams were unaccustomed to the drives and splits were numerous. An evidence that both teams were off in form is seen by glancing over the scores. Only twice in the series was the 200 mark passed and that was in the first contest, when Ed Laing, of the locals, registered 210, and Nolte, of Elizabeth, marked up 226.

The first game went to Elizabeth by a margin of two pins, the score being 831 to 829. The locals had an excellent chance of winning in the opener, but Kiely and Laing experienced a run of hard luck. Both had doubleheaders to work on but in the last frame the local experts got "holes," and all chance to win was gone.

Tame rolling marked the second game which Elizabeth annexed by an 824 to 785 score. Kiely and Laing were unable to locate the groove and the best "Our Chief" could roll was a paltry 134, while Laing was compelled to be satisfied with 124.

Excitement was keen in the last game which the locals won by a score of 814 to 793. At the beginning of the tenth frame Elizabeth was seven pins in the lead. Stout and Blatz, however, made victory possible, by strong finishes, while Beck and Wallace broke in then final efforts.

A large crowd witnessed the series including many local Elks. The locals will roll their first home series on Campbell's alleys next Tuesday night with the New Brunswick champions as their opponents. The scores:

The old fighter insists that he has the old cleverness and can hit as hard as ever, at the same time expressing supreme confidence in his ability to defeat Lang.

BERNARDSVILLE MAN KILLED IN AUTO WRECK

William Lyons, 35 years old, of Bernardsville, was killed, and Andrew Kaggen, chauffeur, of Newark, was injured in an automobile accident on Fox Hill on the Persippany road, eleven miles from Morristown last night. With the two men was William Sommer, head of the firm of D. Osborne & Co., of Newark, and it was his car in which the men were riding. Lyons is well known here.

The hill is a steep one. Mr. Sommer was at the wheel when the accident happened. He lost control of the machine, and it crashed into a telephone pole at the side of the road.

Lyons was thrown on his head on the hard macadam road and instantly killed. Kaggan had his right leg broken and his left arm injured, and he may be injured internally. Sommer was also thrown out, but landed on soft earth, and aside from slight bruises and scratches was unhurt. He hastened for assistance to a nearby house, and Kraggen was carried there. Dr. E. P. Cooper, of Parssippany, cared for him. He was later brought to the Memorial Hospital at Morristown in an ambulance.

Lyons was the proprietor of the Bernardsville inn known as the Old Stone Hotel for many years. Mr. Sommer called for him yesterday afternoon after going to Bernardsville from Somerville. The party went through Morristown and went to Denville, where they stopped and visited George Carmer, proprietor of the Denville Hotel.

From there the party set out for Newark by way of Parsippany.

Tea at "Cedarcroft" on Friday.

Mrs. Edith Huse-Fraser, proprietor of "Cedarcroft," on Park avenue, has issued invitations for a tea to be held at her place Friday afternoon, when a new tea, smoking and club room will be opened for the first time. Considerable pains and expense have been spent in providing this attractive feature at "Cedarcroft," and Mrs. Fraser believes it will be appreciated.

John Wenzell Injured.

John Wenzell, of South Second street, a carpenter employed on the new Frost building on Park avenue, fell from a scaffold on the building Monday afternoon, receiving an injury to his leg and bruises about the head and body. Although detained at home, the injuries are not considered serious, and he hopes to be out soon.

Two Bicycle Riders Fined.

Arthur and John Brannon were fined one dollar each in the borough police court this morning by Recorder Dolliver for riding on sidewalks.

WANT THE BIBLE READ

Rev. Father Bogan Replies to Remarks Minister Made at Schod Exercises.

STATES CATHOLIC POSITION.

Priest Says Bible Was Preserved by Catholic Church and Quotes Authority to Show Reading Is Encouraged.

No little amount of criticism has been heard regarding the tenor of the remarks made in the course of his address, when Rev. W. A. Knox, of Dunellen, formally presented a Bible, on behalf of the Jr. O. U. A. M. at the openhg exercises at the Washington Schol on Monday night. The report of his speech having been called to the attention of Rev. Bernard M. Bogan, rector of St. Mary's parish, the scholarly priest has requested The Daily Press to publish his reply. He sets forth the Catholic position regarding the Bible in the following commimication:

Editor, The Daily Press:

"I wish to correct a missstatement made at the Darow Avenue Public School on Monda last by a speaker who thought it proper to bestow a generous portion of his address to "Catholics and their relations to the Bible." To his own satisfaction and to the surprise of some in his audience he succeededin making us very distant relatives, ndeed.

Were the audince other than a public audience, h oue of our public schools, built in part by money of tax-paying Catholics, whose interest in the welfare and honor of our city cannot be quetioned, and whose contributions to ecent citizenship have not pased unecognized, the offense might not all for the intrusion of a public protest. I have presumed that the auience which graced the occasion wh their presence might evince at last a passing interest in the truti placed in juxtaposition to the error of the speaker referred to.

"Were I a Catolic," said the speaker, "I would ot submit to being deprived of theBible, nor would I obey a prohibitio against reading the Bible." The ubstance of the speaker's remarks is this: "Catholics are forbidden to read the Bible, Catholics are enems of the Bible." This is not a true statement. I submit that the averap American citizen is not a cowar, that he wants to face facts, and ill take no distortion of facts to ustify even a hatred of his fellw-citizens who happen to enjoy the American right of differing with hi in religion. I believe that the Catholic who will remain silent whe his religious teaching is impuned is a moral coward whose dishonest will merit the repudiation of all who honestly disagree with the religin he unworthily represents, nor can Ibelieve that all the members of the atriotic organization that presente a handsome flag to the school o that occasion should wish it to flot over misrepresentation of the religious belief of their Catholic fellowcitizens. Lest it might be thought hat I presume to put forth my persnal opinion, I quote the authorities of Catholic doctrine whose decisins and teachings are authoritatively representative.

The Third Council o Baltimore, in its pastoral letter to the Catholic people of this country exhorts every family to have a Bible, and urges the head of the household to read it every day to the famil. "To assert," says His Eminence Cadinal Gibbons in his well known forcful style in "The Faith of Our Fathers," "that the church is the enem of the Bible, is base calumny." Fo fifteen centuries the church was he sole guardian and depository o the Bible; and if she really feare that sacred book, who was to prevnt her, during that long period, rom tearing it into shreds and scatering it to the winds? She could have thrown it into the sea, as th unnatural mother would throw away her offspring, and who would have been the wiser? What has become of those once famous book written in the past? They have nerly all perished. But amid this wreck of ancient literature, the Bibe stands almost a solitary monument like the pyramids of Egypt amid the surrounding wastes. Tha venerable volume has survived th wars and revolutions and the barbaric invasions of fifteen centuries. Who rescued it from destruction? The Catholic church. Without her fostering care, the New Testament would probably be as little known today as 'The Books of thedays of the Kings of Israel." Little do we imagine, in our age of steam printing, how much labor it cost the church to preserve and perpetuae the sacred scriptures. Learned lonks, who are now abused in their graves by thoughtless men, were constantly employed in copying with the pen the Holy Bible. When one Monk

POLICE PENSION BILL UP FOR DISCUSSION

The members of the Councilmanic Police Board met last night in the office of the Mayor and disucssed the proposed police pension measure. Nothing was accomplished, however, and will not be until a rough draft of the measure now being favored by the State Patrolmen's Association is obtained and the matter taken up in joint session with other members of the Council.

The councilmen, it is said, favor a police pension measure, but are not yet fully satisfied as to certain points to be incorporated in it. They desire one, it is said, that will not only conform to those in force in other parts of the State, but will meet the specials needs in this city. It is then believed, it is said, that such a bill can be drafted and will meet with the approval of the taxpayers as well as the patrolmen.

EPWORTH LEAGUERS TO APPEAR IN PLAYS

The Epworth League, of the Grace M. E. church, has arranged an attractive program, for an entertainment which will be presented at the church tomorrow night. In addition to musical selections by Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Young, two playlets will be given by members of the league, entitled "The Superior Sex" and "A Case of Suspension."

The cast for "The Superior Sex" will be the Misses Mary A Hoagland, Grace E. Clark, Margaret L. Darby, Lucetta Clark, Edith M. Mager, Adah Van Horne, Nettie L. Bauersachs, Florence E. Nichols Anna M. Hoagland and Benjamin Schuck.

"A Case of Suspension" will be enacted by the Misses Mary A. Hoagland Edith M. Mager, Nettie L. Bauersachs, Adah Van Horne, Margaret L. Darby and Raymond E Miller, Clarence R. Steiner, Benjamin Schuck, J. Russell Harden and David D. Smalley, Jr.

TEA AND SALE HELD AT HOLY CROSS RECTORY

The tea and sale which was conducted in the parish house of Holy Cross church yesterday afternoon was one of the most delightful church affairs of the season. The event, which was supervised by Mrs. George A. Warner, was held especially for the purpose of advancing the sociability among the newcomers to the church, and the effort was a complete success, as there was a big attendance.

Mrs. Warner was aided by a corp of assistants. Tea was poured by Mrs. C. S. Powell and Mrs. Augustus Van Mater, who were assisted by the Misses Hudson, Beckwith, Parker and Whitton, teachers in the Sunday-school. The tea table was prettily decorated with flowers and candalabra.

There was also a cake and candy table which was in charge of Mrs. Hiram A. Woodruff and a fancy goods' table which was presided over by Mrs. Fred W. Creesy and Mrs. Ball. A silver collection was taken at the door by the choir boys and $64 was realized.

Trolleymen's Smoker Tonight.

An interesting program of music and dancing has been arranged by the trolley men for their second annual smoker to be held tonight at the car barn in Dunellen. The men will go from all along the line in a special car which will pass through here at 8 o'clock tonight. A committee of fourteen, of which H. Higgins is chairman, has made all the arrangements for the fun and a good time is assured.

A Confirmed Drunk.

Michael Gleason, who has a record of having been arrested twenty times within the past four years, was again brought before Judge Runyon this morning on the old charge of intoxication. He was allowed to go. It is believed that Gleason is mentally unbalanced and there is apparently no way of preventing him getting liquor, notwithstanding that saloonkeepers refuse to sell it to him.

Mrs. Bridget Berry.

Mrs. Bridget Berry, of 551 South Second street, died yesterday. The funeral will be held on Friday at 8:30 from her late residence and from St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock in the morning. The interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Another Bow-wow Gone.

A dog belonging to George Voehl was killed yesterday by an automobile at the corner of Second street and Park avenue. This is the third case of the kind within a week.

MONTH'S HEALTH REPORT

Thirty-six Births and Twenty-two Deaths During November.

INSPECTORS ARE KEPT BUSY.

Seventeen Cases of Scarlet Fever Reported—Dairies and Bottling Places Are Examined.

According to the appended report of the Board of Health, this city is enjoying health above the average. Only 22 deaths were recorded during the month of November, which is a low rate for the time of year. Most of the deaths were of people of advanced years and due to that fact more than to any particular disease. The births have kept up to the average while the marriages increased only one over the preceding month. Here are the figures:

The following communicable diseases were reported during the month: Scarlet fever, 17; diphtheria, 2; typhoid fever, 3; chicken pox, 7 tuberculosis, 2; measles, 1; total 32.

In addition to the above, five cases of scarlet fever were brought from out of town to Muhlenberg Hospital.

Sixty-one dairies and bottling places were inspected during the month. Sixty-two samples of milk were collected and analyzed; also 11 samples of ice cream and cream. Two samples of water from private wells, and one from the city supply were collected and analyzed; the latter was found to be of the usual excellent quality.

A considerable amoun: of disinfecting was done during the past month, 23 houses having been disinfected, with a total of 69 rooms.

The new Washington School, Irving, Bryant, Franklin, Stillman and the high school were inspected, principally for the plumbing, heating and ventilation systems, and the reports showed them to be in excellent condition.

The following persons were granted permits to sell milk from stores and in small quantities:

Elizabeth Holland, Frank Cullen, Edgar L. Fitch, J. B. Guttridge, I. L. Tingley, William J. Dealaman.

The application of B C. Firstbrook was laid on the table for one month, pending certain desired improvements.

The bond presented by Philip Fink, of Plainfield, was laid on the table for one month.

The following inspections were made during the month:

Plumbing	96
Inspections on complaint	6
Visits in connection with communicable diseases	10
Inspections and re-inspections on nuisances	72
Dairy inspections	61
Milk wagons inspected	28
Sanitary house-to-house inspections	209
School inspections	6
Total	488

The following returns were made to the office during the month: Marriages, 16; births, 36; still births, 1; deaths, 22.

FLETCHER HARPER THROWN AND CRUSHED IN HUNT RUN.

Fletcher Harper, the well-known gentleman rider, who has been a prominent figure in the steeplechase meets of the Watchung Hunt club, is in a critical condition at the country home of Eugene S. Reynal, near White Plains, the result of being thrown and crushed under his horse during a hunt club run.

The accident occurred on Tuesday afternoon. One hip and three ribs were broken, a shoulder was dislocated and he was internally injured. Four specialists were summoned from New York to perform on operation on Mr. Harper. He was mounted on Dressmaker, a cross-country hunter owned by L. V. Fromen, which had taken many prizes in steeplechase meets at Morris Park.

Mrs. Timothy Thorn.

Mrs. Timothy Thorn, of Orchard place, died this morning at her home after a short illness. Besides her husband, three sons, Wesley, Harvey and Timothy, Jr., survive her. The funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 at her late residence. Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson of the First M. E. church will conduct the services. The interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

Change the Hours of Service.

The hours of services and Sunday-school have been changed at the Netherwood Reformed church. Hereafter the morning preaching service will be held at 10:30. Sunday-school at 11:30 and the evening preaching service at 7:30 o'clock.

WOMAN HEALTH OFFICER

Miss Hattie Mattison, of This City, to Be the First in New Jersey.

TAKES REQUIRED EXAMINATION

Plainfield Health Board's Efficient Clerk Will Receive High Mark, It Is Generally Believed.

Miss Sadie Leighton, of Asbury Park, was among those who took the examination for Health Board inspectors at Trenton yesterday, but Plainfield goes Asbury Park one better in this matter. Miss Mattie Mattison, for more than seven years stenographer and clerk in the local health office, took the examination for health officer before the State Board at the same time and from all accounts Miss Mattison will pass the higher examination with flying colors.

Plainfield is naturally proud of its products, especially of those which aim for improvement along any line, and it is questionable whether any woman in any State has ever taken the examination for health officer before. It looks as though Miss Mattison had established a record. There is no possible doubt of her success in answering the questions of the examing board correctly.

Leon R. Thurlow, Supervising Health officer; who is also engaged in business in New York, in connection with the McAdoo tunnels, and who is a member of the examining, was not present at the examination. Hence he did not know that Miss Mattison was taking them and was much surprised and elated when apprised of the facts.

Miss Mattison has had a large experience in the board's work in this city and is undoubtedly well qualified to fill the position for which she was examined. The result of the examinations will be known in about two weeks. Andrew Carney, an inspector in the local office, took the examination for First Class Inspector.

MRS. IDA MAY WILLARD IS SEEN AT PROCTOR'S

Chief Dark Cloud and his Indians are at Proctor's today in their sketch, "The Indian," a one act drama of that life. Chief Dark Cloud is one of the famous Indians who have never appeared on the legitimate or vaudeville stage. His daughter, Blue Flower, and the Squaw Ryno will also appear. Cole and Maythias, in a clever comedy sketch, "The Stage Door Johnny," is a scream from start to finish.

Mrs. Ida May Willard in her serpentine and fire dance for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital, is a big local feature. Halligan and Ward appear in a comedy dialogue that is a guarantee fat producer. New and instructiv films d'art will be shown.

MANY SEEK LICENSE HELD BY RAFFERTY

What disposition the Common Council will make of the retail liquor license held by the late John Rafferty, who conducted a saloon on Park avenue for many years, is agitating the minds of many aspirants. The matter will be considered by the city fathers on Monday night.

One, who is in a position to know, predicts that the Common Council will probably continue the franchise in the name of the estate until the expiration of the license year, which occurs on March 1. Another says that the estate will ask to have the license disposed of to some one it may nominate. And so it goes.

Among those who think they have a chance to obtain the licehse, according to report, are William Fiester, of New Brunswick; Henry Haurand, of North Plainfield, and Fred Moore and John Mortimer, both of this city.

The one best guess is that the Common Council will do nothing hasty on Monday night. Instead the city fathers will receive the applications, refer them to the license committee and await a report at a later meeting when the merits of the petitions will have been investigated.

Mr. Randolph to Lecture.

Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph will deliver a specially prepared travel lecture in Y. M. C. A. hall next Thursday night under the auspices of the committee having charge of the work of the Plainfield Italian Mission. Brief reports will be made by Miles Roberts and Rev. Lewis Bond, of the committee. Everyone is invited.

ANOTHER MUSICAL TREAT

Mc Intyre Trio to Give Third of Series of Concerts Monday Night.

FINE PROGRAM PROMISED.

"Au Memoire d'Un Grand Artist" Will Be Produced by the Highly Talented Artists Then.

The third of the present series of McIntyre chamber concerts to be given in the auditorium of the High school next Monday evening, for brilliance of program far eclipse its predecessors. To begin with three prime favorites among devotees of music in Plainfield will appear, each in roles in which their respective talents might have full scope.

The vocal soloist of the evening will be John Young, the New York tenor, who has had a tremendous vogue with New York audiences since his appearance here last winter in the "old favorite song concert." Mr. Young has selected a group of English and German songs for presentation here. Mr. McIntyre declaring each to be a gem of its kind.

Chief interest in Monday's concert centers in the trio—Joseph McIntyre, pianist; Hans Letz, violinist, and Vladimir Dubinsky, cellist, and Tschaikowsky's Opus 50, better known as "Au Memoire d'Un Grand Artist," is to be given by the trio and as this work is in reality a cancerto for piano, with string accompaniment, Mr. McIntyre, Plainfield's best known artist, will be given an opportunity to demonstrate his true worth. This work is the noblest trio of modern times, tremendously big in its conception and wonderfully broad in its scope. It ranks second in the list of compositions by this great Russian composer and in reality it is an elegy, as its title implies, to the memory of his life long friend, Nicholos Rubenstein, a brother of Anton Rubenstein.

Nicholos Rubenstein did much towards elevating the standard of music in the Czar's domain and which there Tscharkowsky became passionately attached to him. Tscharkowsky was overwhelmed with grief when his friend passed away and when he emerged from his voluntary seclusion he gave to the world his "Au Memoire d'Un Grand Artist," which will forever stand as a monument to the memory of its composer as well as to that of the one to whom it was dedicated.

Following Tscharkowsky's death his work was played by a notable trio at the memorial services and there were few dry eyes in the vast audience which was composed of Russia's foremost artists.

Another pleasing announcement in connection with Monday's concert has to do with Mr. Dubinsky who will give as his solo number an exquisitely beautiful and poetic ballade by Davidoff.

Altogether the program is a most attractive one, as well as being the most ambitious ever presented here by this accomplished group of artists.

MANY POULTRY PRIZES WON BY DAVID HAND.

David Hand, of Berckley avenue, who has 150 prize Buff Orpingtons, has returned from several poultry shows bringing with him in all twenty-seven ribbons and special prizes. The last show at which he exhibited was Nazareth, Pa., where 1,600 birds were shown. Mr. Hand won three firsts, a silver cup and two specials and before he left he sold a cockerel and a pullet for nearly $40. Mr. Hand had 216 birds from one mating.

The Nazareth show was held last week and Mr. Hand had six birds on exhibition.

Church Sale Was a Success.

The sale held in the parlors of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, yesterday afternoon, for the benefit of the fund in support of a young woman at Salem College, was largely attended and well patronized. It was held under the auspices of a committee from the Endeavor society, of which Miss Ethel Titsworth is the chairman. There was a sale of handkerchiefs and articles from which they are made; also candy. The receipts were very satisfactory.

Ladies' Auxiliary to Meet.

The Ladies' Auxiliary to Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., will met at the home of Mrs. James Shores Pray, 227 East Sixth street, tomorrow afternoon, instead of at the rooms of the Masonic Hall Association, as is the custom.

Peddled Without License.

A Syrian, giving his name as George Saydah, was fined five dollars in the city court this morning by Judge Runyon for peddling without a license.

BIG MONEY BEING MADE AT THE ST. MARY BAZAR

St. Mary's fair and bazaar brought out another big throng last night. It was "A. O. H." night and the members and friends of that association, along with the Ladies' Auxiliary, boomed business all along the line. The profits to date have nearly reached the $3,000 mark which is highly gratifying to Father Bogan and the management. It is now safe to assume that $5,000 will be cleared for the convent fund.

All of the booths and attractions were liberally patronized, and as usual, dancing afforded pleasure for the attendants. It was announced that a special program has been arranged for the children of the parish tomorrow afternoon. A well known magician will be present and give an exhibition of sleight-of-hand performances.

RECKLESS YOUTH'S USE OF A FLOBERT RIFLE

Indiscriminate shooting of a flobert rifle in the hands of Arthur Moore, a schoolboy, living in North Plainfield, was responsible for the wounding of two little girls of the borough yesterday afternoon.

Elizabeth Harper, the eight-year-old daughter of Mrs. James Harper, of 149 Manning avenue, and Sadie Mika, off 166 Manning avenue, were the victims of the marksman. Elizabeth was shot in the leg, but owing to the fact that her limbs were protected by heavy underclothing the bullet did not penetrate the skin, but its impact raised a black and blue lump and the limb is very sore.

The little Mika girl was struck, but not hurt so badly as was the Harper girl. Young Moore will have to appear before City Judge William Runyon on Saturday morning, meanwhile the weapon with which the shooting was done has been confiscated by Chief Kiely.

COUNCILMEN AT WORK ON A SEWER REPORT

The Councilmanic committee on public affairs which has in charge the forthcoming report on sanitary sewage extension which proposed the taking in of North Plainfield, Dunellen and other nearby municipalities, met last night in the city offices and made further progress in the preparation of the report. It will probably be presented at the December meeting Monday night.

As stated in The Daily Press a few weeks ago, the report will not favor the plan of entering into an agreement with other municipalities for the care and disposal of sewage, owing to the great cost and expense of maintenance. There are some members of the Council, however, who are of the opinion that these municipalities can combine for one large sewage plant at a cost within reason and are not willing to wholly give up the proposed plan.

It is doubtful, however, if anything is done this year, owing to the increase in the local tax rate and the issuance of additional school bonds and other expenses.

Endeavor Rally Tonight.

Karl Lehmann the principal speaker at the Union County Endeavor rally at Rahway, tonight, is now conducting a series of meetings in New York State and is giving the week of December 2-8 in New Jersey. He is an earnest and energetic speaker and well informed on Endeavor work. The junior conference will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon, to be followed at 6 o'clock by supper and a conference and the big rally at 8 o'clock.

Y. M. C. A. Orchestra Concert.

The Young Men's Christian Association orchestra will give its thirty-fifth concert in Y. M. C. A. hall on Tuesday evening, Dec. 14. Miss Bertha Van N. Willis, soprano soloist of the First Methodist church choir, will be the soloist. A program of unusual excellence has been prepared. Tickets are free and may be had at the drug stores.

Paid Their Board Bill.

F. W. Hyland, one of the trio of men held up by the police for attempting to get away from the Belmont Hotel without the formality of paying a week's board, was successful in raising the funds yesterday and returned in the afternoon in time to prevent his companions spending the night as the city's guests.

Miss Marie Smith, of Newark, who has been visiting here, has returned home.

Sidney Winn, of the Ideal Steam Laundry, has returned from a visit with his parents at New Hope, Pa.

ANOTHER BIG BLDG. BOOM

Dickel Construction Company Buys Stillman Tract for Development.

IT NOW HOLDS 171 ACRES.

Concern Plans to Build Many Handsome Residences in Southwestern Section of City.

Another big real estate development boom is reported today, the Dickel Construction Company, of New York, of which George C. Dickel is president, having closed a deal yesterday afternoon, whereby it secured the Stillman estate property in the southwestern section of the city. The tract covers forty-seven acres and Mr. Dickel said today that operations would be begun immediately to lay out the property for building purposes, it being his purpose to erect handsome homes there to attract more commuters.

Onyy a short time ago, the Dickel Construction Company purchased a tract of one hundred and twenty-four acres on Park avenue, opposite the Plainfield Country Club's magnificent estate. This also will be developed in similar manner by the concern, which promises that within three years the locality will be as attractive as the most exclusive in "the city beautiful."

Acting for the Charles Stillman estate, of which he is one of the heirs, William M. Stillman disposed of the property yesterday at a high figure. The tract has a frontage of 700 feet on Sherman avenue and more than 1,000 feet each on Plainfield avenue and Grant avenue. It adjoins Hope Common, another huge tract facing on Sherman and Plainfield avenues, which was recently sold through Charles H. Lyman to the Central Park Realty Company. This company intends to build a number of fine residents on its tract, too.

M. F. Crowley has come into possession of the Eldridge J. Bebout estate on Plainfield avenue, it having been sold to him through Joseph T. Vail. This property at Plainfield and Pemberton avenue is 150 by 300 feet. Mr. Vail was also the broker for the sale of the Stillman property.

When Mr. Dickel was seen today, he was enthusiastic over the future of Plainfield.

"This is the finest suburban community I have ever seen," said Mr. Dickel. "I have been working on real estate problems all over the east and particularly in and about New York for years. Never have I seen such an opportunity as presented here. The railroad service is the best of surburban towns in the United States. There are 120 trains between here and New York every day. The locality is ideal and the municipal government is a model. I don't know of any place of double the size that is so attractive. See what the taxpayers get here for their money. They have everything—sanitary sewers, miles of fine macadam roads, lovely shaded streets, an exceptional police protection, an up-to-date fire department with four houses, a first rate board of health. In addition there are amusements and entertainment galore—two big golf clubs, social and fraternal clubs, beautiful churches, two fine theatres and a thousand and one other things that make life worth living. I expect to live to see the day when it is the biggest city in New Jersey."

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT FOR A DEPARTED MEMBER.

The McAll Auxiliary, at a meeting yesterday, adopted resolutions extoling the life and character of the late Mrs. Lawrence Myers, who was one of the founders of the local branch of the society. During the meeting a number of members took advantage of the opportunity to refer to the inspiration. Mrs. Myers furnished them by her indefatigable labors in behalf of the organization.

Mrs. Myers was also affiliated with the national organization and prominently identified in its work. Mrs. Jacob Kirkner is now the only member now living who assisted in the organization of the local branch.

Another feature of the meeting was an interesting talk given by Mrs. Craig A. Marsh in which she described her visitations to a number of McAll mission during her recent visit to Paris.

Sale of Schorb Lots Postponed.

There was another postponement of the sale of the four lots on East Seventh street, near Central street, yesterday afternoon. These lots belong to the Schorb estate, and were advertised for sale at public auction. Bids of $11.50 and $12.50 a foot were offered, but Auctioneer Latourette decided to postpone the sale. J. Fred MacDonald was present, being appointed by the court to conduct the sale for the estate.

Music — Don't fail to visit the music department. Great sheet music sale on Friday and Saturday. All music played on request.

SUGGESTS THOSE FOR CENSUS ENUMERATORS.

Trenton, Dec. 2.—Franklin Dye, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, Tuesday received from the Department of Commerce and Labor at Washington the news that the general instructions to supervisors of the census of next year have been issued by United States Census Director Durand. They embrace the scope of the census, duties of the supervisors, formation of districts, appointment of enumerators, employment of interpreters, compensation and allowances of supervisors, penalties for non-performance of duties, and conclude with a personal paragraph intended to promote prompt and whole-hearted co-operation.

The instructions point out that there is nothing in the census act making women or persons under twenty-one years of age ineligible for appointment as enumerators. It is stated that a considerable number of women were employed in both the eleventh and twelfth censuses. It is suggested that it is undesirable to employ enumerators who are too immature, either in experience or appearance. The supervisors are cautioned to exercise their judgment in each individual case.

It is suggested, as they are likely to be good enumerators, that the supervisors employ crop reporters of the United Department of Agriculture; officers and leading workers in farmers' organizations, live stock associations, co-operative creameries, etc.; progressive farmers and their sons and daughters and especially young men and women who have attended agricultural colleges or agricultural experiment stations; physicians, former enumerators, school teachers and substitute teachers, college and High School students, persons who have passed federal, State or municipal civil service examinations for clerical positions or for mail-carriers; substitute lettercarriers, local, State and municipal officers, and particularly town and village clerks and recorders.

TRENTON WOULD BE A PORT.

Trenton, Dec. 2.—That the property owners along both banks of the upper Delaware are determined to make the needs of that waterway particularly impressive during the coming session of Congress is shown by the fact that 300 out of 375 of them have signified their intention of joining the Trenton-Philadelphia Deeper Waterways Association, which will be made a permanent organization tomorrow evening at Trenton. The up-river people are convinced that they can "make a case," which President Taft has advised all waterways advocates to do. The local business men intend to co-operate with them.

Trenton is particularly enthusiastic over the prospects of being made a port of entry through a deeper channel, and has employed Joseph F. Hasskarl, acting director of the docks department, to act as marine engineer in charge of laying out the harbor plans.

The deepening of the upper Delaware to at least an eighteen-foot depth would not meet with any engineering difficulties. Vessels drawing sixteen feet can go as far as Florence now, which is eleven miles from Trenton. A maximum of eight feet exists over the stretch between Florence and Trenton, and in order to get this deepened there is little doubt that the city of Trenton would bear part of the expense.

TAXPAYERS TO FIGHT.

Will Demand Increased Valuation and Uniform Rate.

Asking that the valuations in Westfield, as shown on the tax assessor's books, be increased from $6,000,000 to $8,000,000, property owners at Westfield will issue a booklet, which will be distributed broadcast. It is claimed that the assessments are unfair. The idea is to have the assessments increased and a uniform tax levy made. In some parts of the city, it is claimed, the assessors have taxed property at the rate of $125 a foot, which property was subsequently sold for $200 a foot.

It is also said that in some streets there is property assessed more than that on the opposite side.

LICENSES SELL FOR $2,800.

Council Unearths Bad Conditions in Bayonne.

Bayonne, Dec. 2.—Buying and selling licenses is a well-paying business, according to members of the Common Council of this city, who are making an investigation into the statements that considerable traffic in licenses is being transacted. The licenses in this city are restricted to 167. The liquor men pay $300 a year for the right to conduct a saloon.

It is said that several of the licenses have been sold for as high as $2,800 by those to whom they were granted, and in several cases have changed hands several times.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

As further evidence that the game of golf is continuing to spread, it may be said that H. H. Barker, the Garden professional, has either laid out or reconstructed more than a dozen courses this year. Not long ago he spent three days at Cleveland, where he laid out a new eighteen-hole circuit, which in his opinion will become one of the best in the Middle West.

Barker has had considerable to do also with the links of the recently formed Arcola Country Club, near Hackensack. He visited Youngstown, Ohio, and began work on another eighteen-hole links, while a recent trip to Williamsport, Penn., resulted in a new nine-hole circuit.

In the course of a round of the Dunwoodie links the other day, W. A. Mitchell made the fourteenth hole in one stroke. The hole is short, only about 145 yards. Last summer the first hole at Dunwoodie was also made in a single stroke, W. W. Harris doing the trick.

An unusual start marked a recent four-ball match at the Essex County Country Club. The first hole is 260-odd yards up hill, yet Paul Heller holed a mashie approach for a 2. John J. Radel, another member of the party, got a 3, Harry Christie a 4, and Harry Allsopp a 5.

Fred McLeod, former national open champion, has left the Midlothian Country Club for the winter, and is in New York at present. He will spend the winter on a course in Arizona, and is undecided as yet whether or not he will return to Midlothian in the spring.

McLeod is keeping his hand in with an occasional match. He and H. H. Barker played as partners against Alec Smith and Herbert Strong at the Greenwich Country Club recently, the first pair winning by 5 up and 4 to play at thirty-six holes.

HIGH PRAISE FOR "UNCLE DAN" VOORHEES

Trenton, Dec. 2.—State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees—"Uncle Dan"—was host at luncheon at the Country Club yesterday with most of the prominent officials of the State and some notable former officials as his guests. A committee of the 1909 Legislature, in accordance with annual custom, examined the treasurer's accounts and books during the morning, and agreed that everything in his office was in perfect order and the figures for the year without an error. The treasurer and his office force received hearty congratulations throughout the day on the fine showing.

At the Country Club a large table had been prepared and the dining room decorated. When the guests arrived at the club in automobiles, they were ushered in to where the State treasurer awaited them. Mr. Voorhees sat at the head of the table with Governor John Franklin Fort on his right and former Governor Edward C. Stokes on his left. Among the legislators present were: Assemblymen James Baker, of Hudson; Henry R. Tatem, of Camden; John B. Irick, of Burlington; Amos H. Radcliffe, of Passaic, and Austen Colgate, of Essex; and Senator Harry D. Leavitt, of Mercer.

Department heads present included Chief Winton C. Garrison, of the Bureau of Labor and Statistics; Comptroller Henry J. West, Quartermaster-General C. Edward Murray, State House Custodian John Weseman and Adjutant-General Wilbur F. Sadler. The attaches of the State treasurer's and comptroller's offices were present, including Deputies I. Kensil Wildrick and Isaac Doughton, as were Civil Service Commissioner James Kerney, Major Mahlon Marjorem and Charles N. Codding.

Governor Fort, when asked to speak, informally, congratulated the treasurer and the State.

"I didn't come prepared to make a speech," said the Governor, "but I understand Stokes has a speech ready."

Former Governor Stokes was a bit reminiscent and eulogized "Uncle Dan." Everybody lauded the treasurer and told him he would be unanimously re-elected this winter by the incoming Legislature. His term expires March 10, 1910.

Plainfield, N. J., December 2, 1909.

JOHN BROWN HANGED JUST 50 YEARS AGO

The fiftieth anniversary of the hanging of John Brown, which occurs today, recalls to the minds of some of Plainfield's oldest citizens, that this city, or hamlet as it was in those days, was the scene of keen excitement and indignation fifty years ago tonight over the act.

The news of the hanging of the noted Abolitionist, as the punishment for the insurrection he headed at Harpers' Ferry in his ill advised scheme to free the slaves, was received here about 5 o'clock in the afternoon on that day by Dean Gordon, who at that time filled the positions of telegraph operator, freight agent and ticket seller at the local depot.

In anticipation of hearing the news hundreds of farmers journeyed to town and all day long the three hostelries of the village, Laing's Hotel, which was situated on the site of the Babcock building, the Buenea Vesta Hotel, which stood on the site of R. J. Shaw's drug store, and the old Mansion House, which preceded the Iroquois Hotel, were thronged.

Chief Doane, who remembers the incident, resided on a farm. He was sent here as a special messenger by his father to bring the news home of the hanging as soon as it was received over the wires. In the crowds that awaited the news, he remembers the anxious faces of former Postmasters Elias R. Pope and Wallace Vail, Zachariah Webster, Elston Marsh and others prominent citizens of the time.

The most excitement reigned in front of Laing's Hotel. As soon as the message was posted there that John Brown had paid the penalty on the gallows, Wallace Vail and others delivered speeches denouncing the action of the authorities. There was also a similar demonstration at the Mansion House.

At all events there must have been "a hot time in the old town" on that occasion—just fifty years ago tonight.

The Laing Family

Article No. 2.

By Oliver B. Leonard

William Laing, Jr., second son of the old pioneer, John Laing, of Aberdeen, born 1679-80 in Scotland, being a little child when his parents landed at Amboy in 1685. He married into a Piscataway family not identified with the Quaker faith. His wife was Mary Blackford to whom he was united in 1703. They had five sons and two daughters: William, John, Samuel, George and Benjamin, Jane and Ann.

The marriage connections of these children were with Drakes, Dunns, Mannings, FitzRandolphs and Blackfords, all of whom had their childhood homes in Middlesex county, near Plainfield.

This William Laing, of Piscataway, became a very large landowner in Middlesex county. In addition to the 720 acres which he bought of John Barclay, jointly with his brother, John Laing, Jr., in 1699, he purchased of Robert Burnet, one of the East Jersey proprietors, an extensive plantation of 900 acres by deed dated December 14, 1713. The two large plots joined each other and were adjacent to their aged mother's homestead. This last extensive acreage William Laing divided mostly by will into farms among his children or distributed them before his death. A good portion was given to his favorite son, Benjamin Laing, by deed dated March 15, 1734-35, a year before the death of the testator, whose will was probated July 23, 1735.

Four or five years after his 900 acre purchase, he became the owner of three other farms of 100 acres each. Part of this largest tract, which was apportioned to his son Benjamin, became permanently the homestead of some of this legatees' descendants. The tract lay along on both sides of Cedar brook, being partly within the present territory of the city of Plainfield on the southeast. An old dwelling house, built before the Revolutionary War, is still standing on the premises and shows the scare of British bullets.

For many years prior to his death, January 16, 1819, Captain Benjamin Laing, a desceidant, it is said, of Benjamin, son of William, occupied this dwelling and there raised a large family. His first wife, whom he married in 1763, and who was the mother of all his children, twelve in number, was Mary Jenkins, dying in 1797. The following year Mr. Laing married Mrs. Zeruah FitzRandolph Manning, widow of John. They united in forming the First Baptist church at Plainfield in 1818.

The family of Captain Benjamin and Mary Laing consisted of one son, John, who married Rhoda Lyon and seven daughters, Sarah, born 1764, married Theophilar Pierson, Mary, married Elijah Stites; Rachel, married John Shotwell; Nancy, married Cornelius Thomas; Margaret, married John Blackford and Ezekiel F. Randolph; Huldah, married Simeon Laing; Gertrude, born 1786, married Abram Lane. There were four other children all dying young.

William Laing's son George, born 1748, dying 1806, married in 1772 Anna Drake, born 1752, died 1814. Their three daughters were Hannah, Mary and Elizabeth, and a son Simeon. Elizabeth Laing married in 1798 Samuel Estil, parents of William, the father of H. M. Estil and Sarah Ann, who married David F. Gardner, father of William E. Gardner. Simeon Laing, son of George, married Huldah Laing, daughter of Captain Benjamin. Her sister Gertrude, who married Abram Lane was the mother of the late William Benjamin Tunis Lane, whose daughter Caroline became the wife of Mr. Percy C. VonOhl.

This last named family "Lane" was of an entirely different origin from the Scotch lineage of Laings. The Lanes came from Dutch parentage, originating from Walloon stock Matthys Jansz Van Pelt Lanen. This progenitor came from Liege, Holland, in 1663 and settled at New Utrecht on Long Island. In 1745 descendants of this line moved into the western part of Somerset county. They embraced the Protestant faith and became identified with the Hugonots at first, and subsequently are found as members of the Reformed Dutch church.

DISPENSARY "GRAFTERS."

The evil effects of the struggle against preventable disease is that it is being abused, says the Boston Post. In Boston, New York, Chicago and all our large cities many people with money in the savings bank and a good job, amply able to pay their own bills, instead of employing a doctor, depend upon the free dispensary for their medical treatment. As a result, the young man or woman who today takes up medicine as a profession has selected the most difficult road to earn a bare living, not to talk about wealth.

The very best doctors have small incomes, as compared with the revenue derived from the practise of other professions, and thousands of well-trained young doctors are waiting for patients who never come, while well-to-do sick in their neighborhood pass their offices to get free treatment in the dispensaries.

No other profession in the world would allow to persist the abuses which take money out of the doctors' pockets, and wonder is why they have not acted long ago. The fight against disease must go on, because it is an economic fight, based on the knowledge and observation of the simple laws of hygiene and sanitation, but in every large city there should be organized a card index system, where the names of all applicants for free relief, for whatever cause, are assembled and udplication of relief prevented. If applicants are in financial condition to pay for treatment they should be made to do so, and they should be glad to do so.

The man or woman who believes that he or she is entitled to as much public or private charity as they can get should be made to know that they are stealing that which belongs to the poor.

If those who can afford to pay for medical treatment are made to pay, it will be easy for the municipality to take care of those who must be treated and supported, and at the same time relieve the dispensaries of the frauds and give the doctors a chance to live. With the fight against consumption, cancer, etc., therefore, must also grow a movement to compel the cheats now stealing doctors' time and hospital beds which should be kept for the deserving poor to pay for what they get.

MOLOKAI LEPERS SEE WONDERS

One of the most marvelous experiences in the history of the Molokai leper settlement came to the people of that shut-in isolation recently when a moving picturs machine was installed in Beretania Hall, their public place of assemblage, for their entertainment, whites and Honolulu correspondent of the New York Evening Post.

It was not merely that they saw moving pictures for the first time, but for the first time, to a very great number of them, it was their first glimpse into the world beyond the narrow confines of the settlement.

Very many of them had never seen a city until they saw those projected on the moving picture screens. Elephants, camels, bears, lions and the other animals of the circus or the zoo were presented to them for the first time. Fire engines, police patrols, moving troops, the thousand-and-one commonplaces of the picture came to them not only with the force of novelty, but with the effect of something unheard of and undreamed of before.

Some months ago, at the suggestion of Superintendent McVeigh, of the settlement, a movement was started to procure a moving picture machine, to be sent to the settlement for the entertainment of the people there. A fund was contributed, the machine and a supply of film was bought, and R. K. Bonine, curing strange scenes for moving picture exhibitions volunteered to go over and install the machine.

The intensest interest in the matter was felt at the settlement. Every operation of the process of installing the apparatus was watched by nearly the whole population. And when finally the first exhibition was given wonder and excitement knew no bounds.

It is expected that funds for new films will be donated from time to time by the public here, so that the people at the settlement will have new moving pictures to look at at intervals. Mr. Bonine says that in all his experience he has never seen such absorbing and intense interest in moving pictures anywhere.

A Rude Awakening.

On Friday evening two lovers were seated on camp stools, placed in as quiet and romantic a corner as the after deck of a river steamboat affords, relates the London Mail. As the boat passed Hampton Court, an opening in the trees disclosed a pretty, snug, little house, partly covered with vine, and the young man said: "Wouldn't it be fine to have a little cottage like that, with all the front covered with ivy, and honeysuckle, and roses?"

"Oh, wouldn't it!" exclaimed the girl joyfully.

"And when a fellow comes home tired from business to have a nice little wife to meet him at the door with a—"

"Y-e-s."

"And then the winter nights, the fire burning brightly in the cozy room, and you—I mean a wife—at the piano singing in the gloaming."

"And then—"

But just then a careworn woman with brawling twins in her arms tottered by them, and he changed the subject.

THE LITTLE GIRL UPSTAIRS.

We didn't have "apartments" then—
We used to call them flats; and ours
Was simply known as Number Ten—
Not "Ayrwood Aarms" or "Wyndham Towers."
Our childish hearts were never bent
On dances, teas and like affairs,
But every afternoon I went
To see the Little Girl Upstairs.

Two long, dark flights, and then her door!
A magic door it was to me.
Oh, I was five and she was four!
A rainbow world, an opal sea
Were ours to rove. What ports we made!
What dragons slew in horrid lairs:
What treasure, grandly won, I laid
Before the Little Girl Upstairs.

Her hair—I think her hair was brown,
Her eyes—I'm sure her eyes were gray;
They had a trick of looking down,
Her little mouth through all our play,
Was gravely sweet, yet often came
A smile to curve it, unawares.
Her name—her name? Ah, yes; her name
Was just "the Little Girl Upstairs."

Up other flights I clamber still;
Through other doors I take my way;
In other games I've played my fill,
And right well worth is all the play.
But when I've done with prose and rhyme,
With earthly battles, joys and cares,
May some good angel help me climb
To meet the Little Girl Upstairs.

BLACK SILKS.

In black silks France has surpassed her efforts of other seasons and over the silk counters are thrown tempting new materials for every style of afternoon and evening gowns. There is a tight, soft, creepy silk which lacks lustre and gives a dull background so necessary for brilliant contrasts. It has a suppleness of texture which answers the call for clinging lines, and still there is a closeness of weave that gives weight to a costume.

Black satin cashmere appears in new beauty. For women who prefer sombre afternoon gowns of this material Lyons has contrived to give a soft shine that is rich without ornamentation.

Then there is double-width crepe meteor, which shimmers, unseamed, in elegant robes for evening.

Charmeuse, a dull soft silk, is especially good for embroidering. The texture of this is so fine that fulness or clinging lines can be attained. French modistes favor this material for handsome afternoon dresses.

Black will be much worn this season. It has never lost its popularity with a certain type of women; it bids fair to wedge its way into the color selection of all who emphasize elegance in their costumes.

All Hand Work.

Squire (who has just had his wife's portrait painted) — "Well, Thomas, what do you think of it?"

Thomas — "It's a brave pictur' bean't it sure 'nough. Be it all done by 'and, zur?"—The Tattler.

A Blue Boa.

Mixed boas there are in blue and white—a real joy to "the light-blue woman." Feather boas made of marabou and enriched here and there with a curl of blue ostrich. Each end is finished with a series of knotted white silk cords drawn together and held by a pompon of blue ostrich feathers. Just one of the beautful things for the frivolous.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

In Justice Rogers' court yesterday, Max Morris, of Plainfield, was awarded $25 damages in his suit, brought in tort, for $50 against John Pasquale. Morris was represented in the action by former Assemblyman von Minden. The basis of the suit was caused by Pasquale's dog attacking Morris about three weeks ago. Morris' face was badly lacerated as a result of the encounter, and on Pasquale's refusal to pay the doctor's bill, suit was brought. In addition to paying Morris $25 Pasquale must also bear the costs of court.

Considerable interest is manifested in the outcome of the meeting of the Council next Monday night relative to the petition which will be presented by the Public Service Corporation, asking for the privilege of placing a switch in the central part of the borough to take the place of the switch now at Rock avenue. As the majority of citizens favor the removal of the switch to the borough, the general presumption is that the Council will acquiesce to the wish of the trolley people.

The borough Board of Health which was scheduled to meet last night was obliged to postpone its session owing to the lack of a quorum.

William Dealaman has fully recovered from the effects of an accident he received playing football about six weeks ago.

M. T. Moynihan has returned to business after a trip to the Lehigh Valley coal regions.

Joseph Gernia, of Westfield avenue, sails Saturday for sunny Italy, where he will spend the winter with relatives and friends.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The funeral service of Mrs. Albert Brundage, of Front street, who died early Honday morning, was held yesterday afternoon at the late home. There was a large attendance of friends and neighbors. Rev. C. W. F. Attlee, formerly pastor of the South Plainfield Baptist church, conducted the service and the burial was Samptown cemetery.

The small boys are anxiously watching and testing the ice on the pond. The pond has frozen over almost ever night of the past week, but it generally melted on the next day. Yesterday the sheet remained all day.

died at his post, another took his place, watching like a faithful sentinel over the treasure of God's Word. Let me give a few plain facts to show the pains which the church has taken to perpetuate the Scripture. The Canon of the Bible was framed in the fourth century. In that same century, Pope Damasus commanded a new and complete translation of the scriptures to be made into the Latin language, which was then the living tongue not only of Rome and Italy, but of the civilized world. If the Popes were afraid that the Bible should see light, this was a singular way of manifesting their fear. The task of preparing a new edition of the scriptures was assigned to St. Jerome, the most learned Hebrew scholar of his time. This new translation was disseminated throughout Christendom, and on that account was called 'The Vulgate' or popular edition. In the sixth and seventh centuries the modern languages of Europe began to spring up like so many shoots from the parent Latin stock. The scriptures, also, soon found their way into these languages. The venerable Bede, who lived in England in the eighth century, and whose name is profoundly reverenced in that country, translated the sacred scripture into Saxon, which was then the language of England. He died while dictating the last verses of St. John's Gospel. Printing was invented in the fifteenth century, and almost a hundred years later came the Reformation. It is often triumphantly said, and I suppose there are some, who even at the present day, are ignorant enough to believe the assertion, that the first edition of the Bible ever published after the invention of printing, was the edition of Martin Luther. The fact is, that before Luther put his pen to paper, no fewer than fifty-six editions of the scripture had appeared on the continent of Europe, not to speak of those printed in Great Britain. Of those editions twenty-one were published in German, one in Spanish, four in French, twenty-one in Italian, five in Flemish, and four in Bohemian.

Coming down to our own times, if you open an English Catholic Bible, you will find in the preface a letter of Pope Pius VI, in which he strongly recommends the pious reading of the Holy Scripture. A Pope's letter is the most weighty authority in the church. You will also find in Haydock's Bible the letters of the Bishops of the United States, in which they express a hope that this splendid edition would have a wide circulation among their flock.

These facts ought, I think, to convince every candid mind, unblurred by the influence of prejudice, that the church, so far from being opposed to the reading of the scriptures, does all she can to encourage their perusal.

Very sincerely yours,
B. M. BOGAN,
Rector of St. Mary's.

ELIZABETH ELEVEN TO PLAY SAILOR TEAM.

What is expected will be the greatest game of football ever played in Elizabeth will take place next Sunday afternoon at Atlantic League Park. It will be between a picked eleven from the football teams of the warships Nebraska and Hancock and the Libertys, of Elizabeth, the hitherto unbeaten champions this season of Union county.

The Nebraska team holds the heavy championship, it having beaten the Hancock eleven 3 to 0. The Libertys this year defeated the Hancocks 6 to 0.

The combined eleven of the blue jackets expect to trim the Libertys this time and a big crowd will doubtless be on hand to witness the contest, which will close the football season of 1909 in Elizabeth.

HEART TROUBLE FATAL TO DR. PIERRE A. BANKER

Dr. Pierre A. Banker, aged 61 years, one of the most prominent physicians of Elizabeth, died suddenly at his home on East Jersey street, that city, this morning at 1 o'clock. Dr. Banker was a veteran of the Civil War and for five years served in the regular army, under General Custer. He was a member of Washington Lodge, No. 32, F. & A. M. He is survived by a wife, two sons and two daughters.

PASTOR'S WIFE RECEIVES WOMEN OF CONGREGATION.

Mrs. Herring, wife of Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, held the first of a series of "at homes," yesterday afternoon, at her home on DeLacy avenue, from 3 to 5 o'clock. Mrs. Herring announced recently that commencing yesterday and continuing on succeeding Wednesdays, she would be at home affording an opportunity for the church people to call and permitting Mrs. Herring to become better acquainted with the parishioners.

The affair was strictly informal and during the hours a large number of people called and enjoyed the hospitality of the hostess. Sociability was the feature and everyone made it a point to get acquainted and thus further promote Christian fellowship.

Trenton, Dec. 2.—Governor Fort was a busy man in the State house Tuesday, signing requisitions for men wanted in this State to answer indictments and in granting extradition to others wanted in other States to answer those commonwealths.

The Governor honored the requisition of the Governor of New York for the return of Isaac Himmelstein, wanted in Manhattan to answer the charge of false pretense. Another extradition honored was for Henry Cummings, waned in Pennsylvania for entering and larceny.

Trustee Kaylor has been absent four meetings in succession, and, it is said, his seat will be declared vacant unless he attends the sessions or sends in his resignation.

Plainfield in .... The Olden Days.

Re-printed from The Weekly Constitutionalist

March 9, 1871.

Rev. J. H. Vincent, of Plainfield, has been appointed a member of the Board of Visitors by the President, to attend the annual examinations at the Military Academy in June, 1871.

Corra. Ryno, the popular boot and shoe maker, has removed his shop from Cherry street to Front street, nearly opposite E. O. Meeker & Co's. Hardware store, where he will be happy to see all his old friends and customers.

The call prosecuted by the commissioners, Potter, West and Milliken to Rev. Samuel Carlile, of Brooklyn, to become the pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of this city has been declined. Reasons not stated by the commissioners, as yet.

We learn that Mr. Staats, of Somerville, contemplates to shortly open a flour and feed store in the rooms lately occupied by Mr. Hoagland, Cherry street, next to Ten Eyck's meat shop.

The accomplished Miss Emma Mayhu, of Plainfield, N. J., one of the leading favorites among the elite of that place, has returned home, having spent the winter with Miss Brown, of West Forty-third street. At her departure Miss Mayhu was the recipient of many elegant baskets and bouquets of flowers.

Our friends, Van Winkle & Dunn, seem to understand our wants all most as well as we do ourselves For instance on Tuesday last, we were out of lead pencils and about to lay in a supply of that useful article, when who should we see enter our canctum, but Jacob himself, with a dozen of his best, with which he presented us, and which we are using at present, and fined them to be like all the articles of their complete stock, unsurpassed.

Plainfield's deservedly popular hotel proprietor, John W. Laing, is making some decided improvements in front of his hotel. Four large elm trees, which heretofore lined the sidewalks have been moved or transplanted some six feet toward the hotel, making the street that many feet wider. The work was done by our worthy friend, John Wilson, who is quite an adept to that line of business. Mr. Laing is up to the times in improvement. It also becomes necessary to take down the old sign post in front of the hotel, which has braved so many storms, but we think a decided improvement will be made in doing so.

HIS DISGUISE SUCCEEDS.

An Old Man He Gets Evidence in Liquor Case.

Mrs. Bessie Fleischman, who keeps a lodging house in Burnet street, New Brunswick, was convicted yesterday afternoon of selling liquor without a license. County Detective Frank Hoffman testified that he had disguised himself as an old man and had taken a room at the house over night last July, and had bought a half pint of whiskey.

Three other men, who had been employed by the State to get evidence, also testified to having bought liquor at the place.

CAT AND DOG TACTICS.

The mastery of herself which a cat shows when, having been caught in a position from where there is no escape, she calmly sits down to face out the threats of a dog, is a marvelous thing, says the Boston Transcript.

Everybody has seen a kitten, on the street doorstep attacked by a dog ten times her size, as apparently self-possessed as if she were in her mistress's lap. If she turns tail and runs down the street, she is lost; the dog will have a sure advantage of her.

Even as it is, if he could get up courage enough to seize her on the spot, he would be able to make short work of her.

"You dare not touch me and you know it," is what her position tells the dog. But she is intensely on her guard, in spite of her air of perfect content.

Her legs, concealed under her fur, are ready for a spring; her claws are unsheathed, her eyes never move for an instant from the dog, as he bounds wildly from side to side, barking with comical fury, those glittering eyes of her follow him with the keenest scrutiny.

If he plucks up his courage to grab her, she is ready; she will sell her life dearly. She is watching her chance, and she does not miss it. The dog tries Fabian tactics, and withdraws a few feet, settling down upon his forepaws, growling ferociously as he does so.

Just then the sound of a dog's bark in the next street attracts his eyes and ears for a moment, and, when he looks back, the kitten is gone!

He looks down the street and starts wildly in that direction, and reaches a high board fence just as a cat's tail—a monstrous tail for such a little cat—is vanishing over the top of it. He is beaten; the cat showed not only more courage than he had, but a great deal more generalship.

A Movable Dressing Room.

"It's a great dressing place," said the elevator man to the stenographer as she stepped into the car—turning to watch her adjust her jabot in front of the elevator mirror.

"Is it?"

"Yes—for the ladies Sometimes two of them come in from the street and make a trip with me—so that they can fix up in front of the glass. Then I look around an dsay 'Floors!' turning off the electric light. When I get back to the ground floor they look at each other and smile, then say:

"Ain't he the cheap mug, though?"

Beating Mrs. Lot.

"It was not so very wonderful that when Lot's wife looked back she turned into a pillar of salt."

"Not a very wonderful thing to have happened in the age of miracles, perhaps, but nothing so wonderful happens in these prosaic days."

"Oh, I don't know; we were going out Main street last evening and when my chauffeur looked back he turned into a telegraph pole."—Houston Post.

Stumped the Druggist.

"Have you a city directory?" asked the lady, entering the drug store.

"No, I have not," replied the pill man; "and I must say you've stumped me."

"How so?"

"Why, I can't truthfully say I've got something just as good."—Yonkers Statesman.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 5, 1909.

The apostle John made three important contributions to the literature of the Bible. The first was his gospel in which he set forth the deity of Christ. The second consisted of three letters or epistles, the longest and most important of which is the first epistle of John. In the third place he was the author of the book of Revelation, in which we find the records of visions given to him while an exile on the island of Patmos, in the Mediterranean sea. The importance of these three contributions to the Bible cannot be overestimated, and their influence throughout the Christian centuries upon the thought and life of the disciples of Christ has been incalculable. The bosom friend of Christ, the possession of a thoughtful disposition that was capable of sounding the depths of Christ's mystical teachings and his close, intimate, personal association with the life and work of His Master made him especially fitted to set forth the true spiritual life of the Christian, and from his writings many have attained a high spiritual standard of Christian thinking and living.

To analyze I John or to divide its contents into sections is next to impossible. Logical arrangements, so characteristic of Paul, were not common to John. In his writings he seized upon certain great thoughts and poured out intuitions instead of conducting discussions or building up arguments. In this epistle "light, life, love, sonship, righteousness, knowledge, faith and victory over the world" are his favorite and often reiterated themes. In I. 4. he explains the purpose of the letter when he says, "These things write we unto you, that your joy may be full." Then he shows that this fullness of Christian joy is to be obtained through fellowship with God and His saints upon earth and through overcoming the world without and error within. The keyword of the epistle is "know." John frequently expresses assurance concerning great truths by use of the expression "we know." "We know that when He shall appear we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is." "We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren." "We know that we dwell in Him and He in us, because He hath given us of His spirit." "We know that the Son of God is come." One possessed of doubt can do nothing better than read I John, underscoring "we know" and "hereby we know" every time they occur and then returning to make a thorough study of them. Doubt will fly away and assurance will take possession of the mind and heart, bringing peace and rest.

I John has many lessons for the life of the individual Christian. It was written to no particular church or individual, but to all, and, being to all, it is to each one. In the passage selected "love" is the principal theme, and several practical lessons are emphasized. 1. We should love one another, "Beloved, let us love one another, for love is of God." 2. God is love and includes us in His love. "God is love. * * * Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us and sent His Son to be the propitiation of our sins." 3. We should love God. "We love Him because He first loved us." God's love for us and the method of its manifestation, both as to time and manner, should inspire us to love Him with a love that will lead us to give our lives to Him, as His Son gave His life for us.

BIBLE READINGS.

John iii. 16; xv. 1-14; Rom. v. 1-8; I John i. 1-10; ii. 1-3, 15-17; iii. 1-3, 14-24; v. 1-5, 18-21.

Known by Its Finished Product.

As the tree is known by its fruits, a factory by its products or a college by its graduates, so the Christian Endeavor society is known by and commends itself by its finished product, the church worker. The object of the Christian Endeavor society is outside of itself, "for Christ and the church," and in proportion as it trains its members to work for these great ends just so far will it commend itself and prove worthy of its name and the right to live. If the word "society" were changed to "training school" in our world-wide title it would perhaps give a better expression of our purpose and also give the church a better understanding of our mission. But meanwhile let us show by the consecrated, devoted, service loving Christian Endeavor trained worker that the Christian who has passed through this society is better fitted for work in the Sabbath school and official positions of responsibility in the church than those from any other source. Train for service and then serve.—Rev. James F. Winnard, President of the Florida Christian Endeavor Union, in Christian Endeavor World.

Patience.

Patience is the calm endurance of those changes and sufferings that may come to us. Sailors say it is but lying to and riding out the gale. Paul says our God is a God of patience. His great patience is shown in the patience and perfection of creation, awaiting and abiding its proper time and order.—Rev. C. O. Jones, Episcopalian, Atlanta, Ga.

Practical Work.

We do but very little to put out the fire and to protect men from this mundane existence. The real struggle with the flames is delegated to the evangelists, the Salvation Army and the rescue missions. We are contented to talk about it.—Rev. Father A. A. Lamy, Roman Catholic, Worcester, Mass.

THE UNCONQUERABLE FOE.

John Bright once described the variety of stage fright with which he was familiar with telling and quotable point. He was discussing public speaking with George Dawson, an eminent Englishman of his day, when, according to a paragraph in the late David Christie Murray's "Recollections," he said:

"Tell me, Friend George, you have, I suppose, as large an experience in public speaking as any man in England. Have you any acquaintance with the old nervous tremor?"

"No," Dawson replied, "or if I have, it is a mere monetary qualm, which is gone before I can realize it."

"Now, for my part," said the great tribune, "I have never risen to address an audience, large or small, without experiencing a shaking at the knees and a sense of a scientific vacuum behind the waistcoat."—Youths' Companion.

NO SECRET ABOUT IT.

Obese Party—I'd give anything to be as thin as you are.

Thin Friend—You can get that way for $5 a week.

Obese Friend—How, pray?

Thin Friend—Move your trunk over to my boarding house.

Anything

'Tis said the bang is coming back;
Lord, give us even that,
Or give us anything that will Eliminate the rat.

Sophisticated.

"My goodness, Cyrus," exclaimed Aunt Betsy as she grasped her husband's sleeve and pulled him toward a window where a fine display of goods had been arranged, "look what them signs says, 'Fine Bargains in clothes. Half off.' Do you s'pose it can be true?"

"Naw, there's some catch about it, I'll bet. You can't trust these people. They're all sharpers. I s'pose if you went in and tried to get any of them things half off you'd find that they'd make you take half your clo's off before they'd trade with you."

That Seaside Cottage.

Genial Real Estate Agent—Where's the beach? Why, all you have to do is to go to the top of that second hill and you'll see a trolley station. Wait for the red car; ride to the third stop; then walk across the little bridge to the elevated, and at the end of the line take the little boat across the bay and you'll find yourself within two minutes' walk of the greatest beach in the country.—Puck.

Another Dig.

Mrs. Stubb—Gracious, John, but I guess the last man on earth will be lonesome.

SENTENCE SERMONS

Some piety aspires so much it cannot perspire.

The faith that can be hidden never stays healthy.

If you are a saint you will want to be something.

The only way to keep faith sweet is to keep it in service.

They who go out to hit the high places land on the dump.

It's wise to be afraid of the spirituality that fears morality.

The tight fisted usually think they have a great grip on the rock.

The more painful a man's piety the more prone is he to prescribe it.

It's a bad thing to be moved in meeting unless you move elsewhere.

The people who draw the most exact pictures of the infinite one often do least to reproduce the original.

The folks are always practicing "Nothing in my hand I bring" are always ready to call the church a failure.

Many a man thinks he is selling the garments of truth when he is only endeavoring to induce others to adopt his style of clothes.—Henry F. Cope in Chicago Tribune.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR

The easiest thing to see is why a woman thinks she has pretty ankles.

There's nobody who wouldn't rather be a live liar than a dead truth-teller.

If a man happens to know who wrote "Yankee Doodle" he thinks he's musical.

The reason a girl won't let a man kiss her is she knows he will do it anyhow.

A woman gets her theories out of reading novels; her facts out of raising babies.

One good thing about a college education is a boy gets it before he is too old to mend.

The reason girls always follow their mother's advice about men is they say they do, especially when it isn't true.

No amount of money can reconcile a woman to lack of sentiment; no amount of sentiment can reconcile a man to lack of money.

What a woman likes about a servant is when she smashes an old family cup she can make up for it by telling the latest neighborhood gossip.—New York Press.

CHEERFUL COMMENT.

How are we going to discover the discoverer?

The pole controversy has crowded quite a number of subjects out of the papers that were more distasteful and of less value.

Edgar A. Guest in the Detroit Free Press says: "A little marriage is a dangerous thing." Did he get that tip from Tom Thumb?

And now comes the announcement that there is no life on Mars. Is it possible the astronomer has his glass leveled at Philadelphia?

Train hold-ups are becoming so frequent that a fellow naturally falls to wondering if it wouldn't be safer to walk to the suburbs on a pay-day evening.

WIDOWS.

Why isn't a grass widow green?

Never tell a widow that you are not worthy of her. She knows better.

Widows make the most contented wives. They know what not to expect.

Behold the difference: For consolation the widow has her weeds, the widower his weed.

A widow is never more dangerous than when she tells a youth that she was never really happy in her married life.—Smart Set.

ABANDONS RECOUNT.

Democrats Fail to Land Member of Council.

Trenton, Dec. 2.—The Republican leaders of Trenton yesterday abandoned the councilmanic recount in the Fourth ward, following the result of Tuesday's recount of the Eighth ward, in which the Democrats lost not only the councilman they were seeking to seat, but also another one who had been declared seated at the regular election.

As the result of the failure of the Democratic effort the Republicans gain one in Council, making that body now stand 16 Republicans to 12 Democrats.

MIANTONOMO BOWLERS ROUT CAMPBELL PONIES

Johnny Campbell's Ponies bumped up against an unexpected surprise last night when the Miantonomos trimmed the palefaces in two games out of three in an exhibition series on Campbell's alleys. Perhaps it was because the Ponies were minus the services of their leader, at any rate, the Red Men earned a creditable victory.

The series was not featured with any sensational rolling except in the last game, when Frank Willett towered above all others by registering a total of 234 pins. Willett, also distinguished himself by being the only roller to exceed the 200 mark in the series.

The Ponies got a flying start by taking the first game in a handy manner, the score being 889 to 765. The second battle resulted in a dead head but in the roll-off the Miantonomos scored 103 to the Ponies' 86, thereby crediting themselves with the win.

To the fine rolling of Willett and Radin, in the final game is due the victory of the red men. Willett's 234 mark and Radin's 197 score, turned the trick. The scores:

CRANFORD GIRLS WIN A WELL PLAYED GAME

In a closely contested basketball game, only decided in the last few minutes of play, the Cranford High School girls' team defeated the Junior Auxiliary five of Holy Cross church in a game played at the Holy Cross parish house yesterday afternoon. The score was 10-8.

It was the opening game of the season for each team, and the Holy Cross girls are organized this season for the first. During the first half, the girls played with territory line rules, and at its conclusion the church team led by a score of 2-0. In the last period, line rules were discarded, and the visitors scored more freely with the open play.

For the church five, Miss Emma Van Alstyne, the captain, made all the points, shooting four baskets. For Cranford, the scoring was by the Misses Jessie Miller and Katherine Wood, the former making four baskets and the latter one. Fifteen minute halves were played. The line-ups:

Referee, Miss Roberts; timer, Miss Moore.

The Holy Cross girls will play the Westfield High School girls' team at Westfield next Wednesday afternoon.

HASBROUCK INSTITUTE MEETS DEFEAT HERE

The Plainfield High School basketball team defeated the Hasbrouck Institute five on the local court, yesterday afternoon, by a score of 24 to 16. Both teams put up a great game, but the locals showed the result of the fine coaching by Paul Collier. Fifteen and twenty minute halves were played.

Doane made a fine showing by shooting seven baskets from fouls and Clark proved his worth by shooting three field goals. Ricketts did some splendid guarding, while Overton played a fast game at centre, seconded by Manley. Woodhull came in the last few minutes of play and scored a goal. In the first half, Plainfield scored quickly, but in the second half the Jersey City boys ran the score up very fast. Wooley, who played forward, was the star player for the visiting team. The line-up:

P. H. S.—Morris, Clark and Woodhull, forwards; Overton, Manley and Doane, centre; Doane, Ricketts and Bristol, guards.

MUSICALE AND SALE AT MRS. F. A. WEEK'S

The musicale and sale held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. A. Weeks, 825 West Seventh street, under the auspices of the Women's Association of the Congregational church, was a great success. The trial of the case of Asa Collier against the firm of DeBrigard and Collier, which was re-opened in the District Court today, took up a large part of the morning session of the court, and was still in progress as the paper goes to press. Mr. Collier, who is suing for wages, is represented by J. Henry Crane and Mr. DeBrigard's interests are being looked after by Harry C. Runyon. Counsel for both sides are having a warm session with the law involved, and the case is likely to be long drawn out. Judge Newcorn granted the motion of Mr. Runyon for nonsuit to which Mr. Crane took exception.

Wearing the Veil.

A radical change in the weave of the new veiling has not brought laughter or ridicule upon the head or face of the woman of Paris. With her usual adaptability she has used the difference in size of the meshes as an excuse to adjust her veil in a new way, thereby appearing more alluring than ever. The veil is worn loosely hanging from the front of the hat. The ends are then tied in a crispy, airy bow at the back. It is a charming departure form the tight style of other seasons.

In the District Court.

In the case of Lewis C. VanNess against Frank Hale, in the district court, for a balance due on a contract for $300.30 this morning before Judge William Newcorn, the court reserved decision. Mr. Hale in defending the suit claimed that the quality of the material delivered in the contract was not up to the standard and some of it had to be replaced.

VAN DYKE BADLY HURT

He Fell from Top of House and Suffers Concussion of the Brain.

HAS NO INTERNAL INJURIES.

While Painting His Residence, Owner Meets With Serious Accident But Will Recover Doctor Says.

John C. Van Dyke, of 225 East Fifth street, is in a serious condition at his home as the result of injuries received from falling off a ladder while engaged in painting his house yesterday afternoon. Mr. Van Dyke is suffering from concussion of the brain, and while he was in an unconscious state from the time of the accident until this morning, Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, the attending physician said at noon that there were chances for his recovery.

A peculiar feature of the accident is that Van Dyke fell a distance of twenty-five feet and not a bone in his body was broken. Mr. Van Dyke was painting a cornice on a double ladder which reached to the top of the house. In making a shift the ladder slipped, but Van Dyke had the presence of mind to grab the cornice which temporarily saved him from the fall.

Van Dyke held on to the cornice in the hope that W. J. Campbell, who was assisting him in painting the house, could come to his rescue by hoisting the ladder in under him. Although Van Dyke made a deperate effort to cling to the cornice until Campbell could aid him, his grip weakened and he dropped to the ground. He fell on his body and the severe jar against the ground resulted in the affection of the brain.

Mrs. Van Dyke, who was in the house at the time, heard the fall of her husband and hastened to his assistance. Dr. Albert H. Pittis, who was passing at the time, also responded and rendered quick aid to the injured man. Afterwards Drs. B. VanD. and Ellis W. Hedges were summoned.

At first it was thought that Mr. Van Dyke would be unable to survive the accident. Despite the treatment of the three physicians he failed to regain consciousness until this morning. During the day the patient displayed favorable symptoms and hope is strong for his recovery.

Mr. Van Dyke has a large circle of friends in this city where he and Mrs. Van Dyke have been active members of Trinity Reformed church for years. Up to two years ago Mr. Van Dyke was the New Jersey traveling representative of a wholesale grocery house and had a large acquaintanceship in the retail grocery trade throughout the State which territory he covered for years. Two years ago he retired.

ENTERTAINED VISITORS OF S. S. HOME DEPARTMENT.

The visitors of the Home department of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school, to the number of about twenty, were entertained yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. William Leitheusser, 712 East Second street. The meeting, which was arranged by Mrs. Henry VanName and Mrs. George Saums, superintendents of the department, was in the nature of a conference on Home department work, and it proved to be very helpful to all.

Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, was present and made an excellent address, in which he told of Home department work as outlined at the recent convention of the State Sunday-school Association, held in East Orange. In this connection he made several excellent suggestions which will be adopted by the Home department of Trinity church. A social hour followed the conference, during which Mrs. Leitheusser served refreshments.

HE GAVE A TALK ON CHURCH AND FOREIGNERS.

Rev. J. H. Ecob, who is associated with Josiah Strong in the latter's great work in New York city, addressed the Men's association of Warren chapel, last night, on the subject of "The Church and the Immigrant." He related many interesting facts, some of which were wholly new to the audience.

Rev. Mr. Ecob described in a practical way the close relation of the church to the thousands of immigrants coming to this country daily. After the address there was a social hour and refreshments were served.

DARING MILK THIEVES WERE TWO LITTLE GIRLS

Two little milk thieves, Mary Genaro and Wilhemina Sundy, who live with their parents on Cottage place, were fined three dollars apiece this morning by City Judge William Runyon. They were caught in the act of stealing milk in bottles from Thomas Callahan & Son's grocery store on Richmond street, by Patrolman Dunlap, who had been on their trail for the past two weeks.

The girls refused to talk this morning when questioned by Judge Runyon, but it was discovered that their parents had supplied them with money with which to buy milk and that they had stolen the milk, pocketing the money. The girls are very fond of lollypops. It is believed that the parents, feeling the sting of the fines will inflict the necessary corporal punishment to make them realize the seriousness of the crime. Hundreds of quarts of milk have been taken during the past few weeks, but no trace of the thieves could be had until this mornig.

FREEHOLDERS CONSIDER HOUSE OF DETENTION

The Union County Board of Freeholders at its regular meeting yesterday acted on the suggestion of the last Grand Jury, and adopted a resolution instructing Director King to appoint a committee of five to inquire into the advisability of establishing a house of detention for juvenile offenders. Freeholder Smith, of Westfield, was made chairman of the committee and the other members are Freeholders S. P. T. Wilbur, Krausse, Cady and Swain. They will report at an early date.

The board also decided to build three roads next year: Raritan road, running from Terrill road to Rahway; the Shun Pike road, running from Westfield to Springfield and the Springfield avenue road, running from Springfield township to Westfield.

PNEUMONIA FATAL TO ARCHIBALD G. R. BACHE

Archibald G. R. Bache, son of the late Andrew J. Bache, died suddenly at 2 o'clock this morning at the home of his sister, Mrs. A. Clinton Wilmerding, 518 Belvidere avenue. Death was due to penumonia. He was taken suddenly on Thanksgiving night and despite the best of medical skill, he failed to respond to the treatment.

Mr. Bache, who was forty years of age, was born on Park avenue, near Fifth street, and always resided here. He was a man of exceptional character and many excellent qualities and had a host of friends. Like his brother-in-law, Mr. Wilmerding, he was a great lover of fine dogs and was a familiar figure at various bench shows. Owing to the fact that he was not strong in health he was unable to take up any business. He was a communicant of St. Stephen's church. He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Wilmerding and Mrs. Mary L. Small.

The funeral will be held from the home of Mrs. Wilmerding, Sunday afternoon and the burial will be in the Plainfield avenue cemetery. Rev. Morgan Ashley, rector of St. Stephen's church, will be in charge.

SENDS COURT FINE.

But Perrine Finds Court Insists on His Appearing.

Another chapter in the raid of a cock fight in Fanwood last spring was added before Judge Atwater at Elizabeth yesterday, by the araignment of William Perrine. He said that his failure to appear before the court previously was due to a misunderstanding. A score of those caught in the raid were indicted and fined $10 each several months ago. During the latter part of August Perrine learned of what had been done and sent his fine to Sheriff Kirkland.

The latter notified the prosecutor and Perrine was told that he would have to appear before the court and be formally sentenced. This Perrine did yesterday. He thanked the judge and then paid his fine.

A Church Sociable.

A sociable for the benefit of Marconnier chapel was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph, on Clinton-avenue, Wednesday night. Over fifty people were present. The host and hostess had prepared a number of pleasant surprises for their guests in their large and cozy home. The evening was passed merrily with parlor games, prize contests and music. Before refreshments were erserved a collection was taken for the church.

KINGS' DAUGHTERS MEET

Encouraging Reports and Addresses at Semi-Annual Session.

HAS ACCOMPLISHED MUCH.

Mrs. Mary Bond Gives a Helpful Talk—Tea at Close of Business Meeting.

Interesting reports for the half year, together with excellent addresses by Miss Mary Bond, of New York, president of the International Order of King's Daughters, and Mrs. Charles Davis, president of the New York branch of the order, combined to make the semi-annual meeting of the City Union of The King's Daughters, held in the parish house of Grace church, yesterday, especially helpful. There was a large attendance of members and friends.

During the order of business, at which Mrs. Frank W. Jones, president, was in charge, the report of the treasurer, Mrs. Anna M. Most, was presented. This showed a balance of $266.97. During the past six months there have been expended $3,292, which included a payment on the mortgage on the Day Nursery property and erection of a shed at the camp. Mrs. Most also presented the report for the Day Nursery. This showed that during the past half year 3,168 children were cared for, the oldest of which was five years. This is remarkable considering that the nursery was closed in August.

Mrs. E. F. Feickert read the report of the city nurse, Miss Olive DeLany also that of the camp committee. Since last May the city nurse has made 653 visits ministering to the wants of the poor.

Following the business session, the addresses were made. Miss Bond, who is about seventy years of age, held the close attention of all with her earnest words. She gave a clear and comprehensive interpretation of what it means to be a member of the King's Daughters. She said that it was not so much the giving of money as that of personal time in carrying on the work of the Master and following in His footsteps. Her talk was deeply spiritual, as was also that of Mrs. Davis. The addresses stirred the members to greater effort and were full of encouragement.

The meeting closed with a tea in charge of the Silver Cross Circle. Those in charge were Mrs. H. C. White, Miss Helen Phillips, Mrs. A. M. Abbott, Mrs. F. O. Ball, assisted by other members of the Circle.

IONA COUNCIL CELEBRATES SEVENTEENTH ANNIVERSARY

The seventeenth anniversary of Iona Council, Degree of Pocohontas, was observed in the council rooms, Coward building, last night, and included a reception to Great Pocohontas Mrs. Charles Dodwell, of Dunellen. There was a large attendance of members and visiting great officers.

The program included addresses by Judge William Newcorn, Great Pocohontas Mrs. Charles Dodwell, of Dunellen; Great Minnehaha Mrs. Kate Walsh, of Morristown; Great Keeper of Records Mrs. S. T. Rellstab, of Trenton; Great Keeper of Wampum Mrs. Harriet Whittemore, of Oceanic; Great Chief of Records D. M. Stevens, of Camden; Great Propheless Mrs. Mary Dutton, of Vineland, and Past Great Pocohontas Mrs. Alice Van Houten, of Manasquan.

During the evening there was a presentation of a cut-glass dish to Mrs. Dodwell by the members of Iona Council. The rest of the evening was devoted to dancing, during which corn and vension were served. Iona Council now numbers sixty members and is constantly growing.

While cranking his big Stevens-Duryea car, at Long Branch, yesterday afternoon, A. J. Staats broke his right arm. Notwithstanding the great pain he was suffering, he drove his car six miles to the office of his physician, Dr. P. J. Zeglio, where the member was set.

Mr. Staats, who is manager and a large stockholder in the Watchung Water Company, was about town as usual today driving his car with his right arm tied up.

NEGRESS CLEVER FORGER

Police Believe They Have Much-Wanted Crook in the Person of Colored Maid.

FORGED EMPLOYER'S NAME.

Elizabeth Allen in the Toils Proves Herself to Be a Monumental Liar—Held for Grand Jury.

Elizabeth Allen, a colored girl, employed as a maid in the household of George M. R. Morse, of 1220 Park avenue, was held under $200 bonds for the action of the grand jury this morning by City Judge William Runyon on a charge of forgery preferred by Mr. Morse.

According to the evidence produced in court this morning Miss Allen uttered two checks, one for $3 and another for $15, both taken from the inside of a check book of the Plainfield Trust Co., which is Mr. Morse's depository in this city. The three dollars check was cashed by Frank R. Story, a drug clerk in the employ of Dudley S. Miller, at the corner of Fourth street and Park avenue, where checks of Mr. Morse had been cashed before. The check for fifteen dollars was presented to the Trust Company for payment, but Albert C. Steiner, the teller, detected the forgery at once and took the necessary steps to have the woman held.

Miss Allen in court this morning told a story of having been "put up" to writing the checks by another woman whom she variously named as Eva White and Emma Jones and others. Judge Runyon told the woman that it would be better in the end for her to tell the truth, as Mr. Morse had advanced the proposition of petitioning the court at Elizabeth to extend leniency. The girl, however, failed to grasp the idea and told such stories that it is considered that she is either a monumental liar or a confirmed criminal or both. She is prepossessing colored girl and is decidedly neat in her dress, but apparently uneducated, although the writing on the checks would indicate that she had some schooling.

ACCUSED OF ABDUCTION; POWELL IN CUSTODY

Word was received by Chief Kiely yesterday afternoon from Chief of Detectives, Captain Larkin, of Jersey City, that Harold Powell, of that city, who is wanted on a charge of abduction, had been arrested there and would be held until the arrival of a Plainfield detective.

Detective-Sergeant John Flynn went to Jersey City this morning to bring Powell here. The young woman in the case is Miss Maggie Simpson, a young Irish girl, who has not been in the country very long. Powell it is said, bears a bad reputation. He had the girl in Philadelphia, Camden and this city.

WANT LOCAL OPTION FOR GUNNING RIGHTS

The Union County Board of Agriculture at its monthly meeting in Elizabeth yesterday, took up the question of the rights of farmers, especially pertaining to the hunting season. Every year the farmers suffer considerable loss through the depredations of gunners and it is with a view to overcoming this abuse that the matter was discussed.

President B. R. Collins, of the board, suggested local option as a remedy, that is that the farmers in the county by given the opportunity to vote whether there shall be hunting in a given county. The idea was well reecived and no doubt it will be incorporated in a bill to be presented to the Legislature this winter.

HAD TO AMPUTATE LITTLE BOY'S FINGERS.

Samuel Lever, a little boy in the kindergarten class of the North Plainfield school, had his fingers jammed in a door of the class room yesterday afternoon and the fingers were so badly crushed that Dr. Dundon found it necessary to amputate the ends of two of the digits.

The boy was standing with his fingers between the casing and the door when another pupil suddenly closed the door catching the little fellow's fingers.

MAYOR AT TRADE BOARD

Mr. Fisk Tells Business Men of Plans to Keep the Streets Clean.

TO GIVE SOME LECTURES.

He Offers to Deliver Series of Talks on Practical Workings of Municipal Departments Early Next Year.

During the social session of the Board of Trade, last night, Mayor Charles J. Fisk gave the members an informal talk on municipal affairs. He discussed the various plans adopted for the treatment of roads in an effort to preserve the macadam and "keep the dust down," and also told of plans proposed to keep the streets in the business section of the city clean and free from papers, etc.

This is a condition which has been complained of by the merchants, and yet, as Mayor Fisk explained, many of the merchants are guilty of sweeping dirt and papers from their stores in the street. He said that only recently he had sent notices to all shop keepers requesting them to co-operate with the city in an effort to keep the brick pavement clean.

A penalty can be imposed for infraction of the city ordinance in this matter, but Mr. Fisk said that he believed co-operation to be the better plan. His talk was well calculated to secure the support of the board, in fact, his remarks led to the adoption of a motion, offered by William Jeffery, that a "kick committee" of three be appointed to take up not only the street question, but others pertaining to the municipality as well.

In this connection, Mr Fisk said, that if the board desired, he would give a series of talks early next year on subjects pertaining to every department of the city government, including illustrated addresses by experts on road building and other interesting topics. The suggestion was received with much enthusiasm and the executive committee will complete the arrangements with Mr. Fisk.

Mayor Fisk said that he had just come from a meeting of the Councilmanic street committee, where several important matters were discussed, including that of ridding the city of the dust nuisance. He said that the city was often at fault, not being perfect, but if he was assured of the united support of the citizens he felt sure he could accomplish almost anything in the way of municipal improvements. The board seemed to take kindly to the suggestions and gave evidence of supporting the Mayor in his laudable efforts.

WILL COMPEL THE P.S.C. TO KEEP ITS AGREEMENT

Recalling that two years ago the Public Service Corporation promised to give Plainfield more modern trolley cars in place of the old style one in use here for many years, the Board of Trade last night thought it would be a good idea to have a committee appointed to take the matter up with the P. S. C. B. F. Coriell, acting president, decided to refer the appointment of this committee to President H. W. Marshall, and it will be announced soon.

The new cars were promised in return for the privilege of laying a double track on Watchung avenue and East Front street, when the brick pavement was laid. The privilege to lay the extra tracks was granted by the Common Council, but the company failed to keep its word. Now the Board of Trade believes that it will be able to accomplish something through a conference with the company.

DR. ROGER L. COOLEY HAS BECOME A BENEDICT

Miss Laura Sydenham announces the marriage of her niece, Miss Laura Helen Selby, to Dr. Roger Logan Cooley, son of Dr. and Mrs. Justus H. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, performed the ceremony. Only the members of the two families were present. A double ring service was used. After a trip in the south, the couple will reside here.

Dr. Cooley was graduated from the North Plainfield High School, Cornell University and later from the College of Physicians and Surgeons. He is a practicing physician and will continue practice here. The bride has been making her home with her aunt, Miss Sydenham for sometime and both she and Dr. Cooley have a large circle of friends.

JUROR FAINTED IN PROSECUTOR'S ARMS

Arthur J. Spicer, of West Fifth street, an employe of the Potter Printing Press Works, and a member of the present petit jury, had a fainting spell in the Union County Court this morning during the progress of the trial of Arthur Duffy, of Summit, who was charged with larceny.

Mr. Spicer was taken suddenly ill in the jury box and while walking to the bench to speak to the judge, fainted and fell in the arms of Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr. He was carried to an adjoining room and Dr. Buck, who was in the court house, was summoned. Mr. Spicer responded quickly to the treatment, after which he was able to return home having been excused for the day. Mr. Spicer afterwards explained that he ate some fresh pork last night and it had upset his stomach.

COLLIER TO APPEAL TO RECOVER CLAIM

The trial of the case of Asa Collier, which was re-opened in the District court yesterday morning, has excited some comment on the part of the lawyers who were present at thetrial. It was alleged by the counsel for the plaintiff that an error has been made somewhere in the adjudication of the case. It will be appealed and taken to the Supreme Court. This is the story of the case:

On September 25, Collier & De Brigard, the proprietors of the store at 214 Park avenue, made an assignment to William G. De Meza. A few days later Arthur De Brigard, the father of the junior member of the firm, being anxious to avoid the publicity incidental to the closing out of his son's interest in the business by means of the assignment, and being desirous of clearing his son's name of all debts and claims incurred by the partnership, and wishing to continue his son in the business without any partner being connected therein with him, made an offer to Mr. De Meza that if Mr. De Meza could convey or cause to be conveyed to him all the stock of goods of the firm and turn over the store to him he would, in consideration therefor, pay all the firm's creditors in full, their claims and the expense incurred. Mr. De Meza accepted the offer and caused two bills of sale to be executed, one by him to the firm and one by the firm to Mr. De Brigard and turned over the store to him. Mr. De Brigard, thereupon, sent out his checks to the creditors of the firm but did not pay Asa Collier his claim of seventy-three dollars which was originally listed as $190 in error.

Judge Newcorn, before whom the case was tried, declared Mr. Collier non-suited on motion of Harry C. Runyon.

HIS LOVE SPURNED. HE COMMITS SUICIDE

Had Served a Term in Prison for Stabbing the Object of His Infatuation—Death Instantaneous.

After bidding his folks an affectionate goodby at 9:30 last night Frank Mohring, 30 years old, of 526 West Fifth stret, went out to the woodshed in the rear of his father's home and blew out his brains with an old fashioned muzzle loading shotgun. Mohring made a quick and complete job of it, part of his brain being found ten feet away from the place where the body was found.

Mohring had attached a string to the trigger of the weapon and had very carefully planned that the first shot would be effective. He placed the butt of the weapon against a corner of the shed and stooping so as to press his head against the gun pulled the string.

Strangely enough, although the shot was heard in the house little attention was paid to it as the family had been used to hearing automobile tires burst and other noises. But when Frank failed to put in an appearance a little later the father of the dead men went out to investigate and stumbled over the body of his son near the entrance to the shed. Police headquarters was at once notified and City Physician Charles B. Lufburrow summoned. A mere glance satisfied Doctor Lufburrow that the man had died instantly.

As far as can be ascertained Mohring was still in love with the woman on whose account he was sent last October to State prison. Mrs. Emma Hoppock is the name given out as the one with whom Mohring was infatuated. He wrote the woman a letter yesterday morning the contents of which have not been divulged, but it is surmised that he bade her an affectionate farwell and told her that life without her would be unbearable. Mrs. Hoppock could not be found this morning so the exact contents of the letter sent to her by the suicide could not be ascertained.

The crime for which Mohring was sent to prison was for feloniously assaulting Mrs. Hoppock. He met her on Front street last October and when his advances had been repulsed drew a knife and cut her severely.

Mr. La Rue a Hustler.

Ira L. LaRue, Plainfield's leading real estate speculator, who is well known in Flemington, where he lived a few summers on his farm near here, making many friends among our people, has just completed the erection of a market building covering about one acre of ground in Plainfield. The market will be conducted on similar lines as those in large cities, and will certainly be a great advantage to the people of Plainfield. Mr. LaRue is certainly a hustler. There is an opportunity for him in Flemington if we could only get him interested.—Hunterdon County Democrat.

Expect a Settlement Soon.

In his communication to the Board of Trade last night, President H. W. Marshall reported that he expected a settlement with the National Press for the publication of the Charter Day program book, within a short time. "Come here, Bates!" roared Dr. Bigwig, head and only master of the Cramton village school. "I have today received a —ahem!— a letter from Mr. Johnson, informing me that his son is unable to attend school in consequence of a thrashing you yesterday inflicted upon him. Is this a fact, Bates?"

But Dr. Bigwig did not believe. And two minutes later Bates was asking for permission to stand up in class, the benches being of wood.

"Did you tell your father that Bates thrashed you?" he asked.

"No, sir," piped the youth.

The master's countenance clouded.

"But your father wrote to me, saying that Bates did it!" he thundered.

SEEKS PERMIT FOR OPEN-AIR MEETING.

Application was made to Mayor Victor Mravlag, of Elizabeth, by William F. Groves, counsel for the Salvation Army, for permission for the army to hold open-air services during church hours Sunday morning. The permit was refused. The Mayor said his restrictions are perfectly fair and in no way conflict with the work of the Salvation Army. The Mayor declared he could not see his way clear to alter his order.

The move by the army's counsel is taken to mean that the officers of the Salvation Army are not quite so sure of their rights in the matter as when twelve of the soldiers were arrested and taken to court. It is said that the application was made to bring the matter to a head, and that an open-air meeting will be held Sunday morning, thus defying the Mayor.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

The open championship, says "The London Field," takes place next year at St. Andrews in June. The great difficulty which confronts the authorities in the amateur and open championships is the steady rise which has taken place of late years in the number of competitors, and that is a difficulty which will not be lessened as the years pass.

By making the scoring extend over the greater part of a week is obviously a crude remedy, while being in all respects too severe a trial to impose upon the competitors. The qualifying round is also a method which imposes a good deal of hardship. The preliminary round of thirty-six holes in order to weed out a fairly large number of the competitors is, in its practical effect, so much waste effort, because the qualifying round has to be followed by four medal rounds before the winner of the open championship can be declared. The experience of these thirty-six holes for qualifying purposes at Deal this year seemed to convince the professionals and all those interested in the game that it was a thousand pities to find that so much brilliant play by the majority of the professionals had to be ignored for the effective purpose of deciding who should fill the position of champion

The result of the informal discussions that have taken place is to convince the professionals that the existing conditions of the championship should be altered, at least to the extent of counting the qualifying thirty-six holes as part of the aggregate score. It is understood that the authorities connected with the governing clubs are quite willing to adopt the suggestion, for the abolition of the qualifying round will possess the great value of concentrating the play within three days instead of four.

The qualifying rounds have always revealed some curious scoring anomalies. Young and hitherto unknown professionals have returned cards with 68, 70, 71 or 72, and, although they have been unable to sustain this brilliant form over four or six medal rounds, yet there seems to be justice in pleading that these young players should have the benefit of their fine play in helping them to the ultimate result, instead of the score simply having the secondary value of securing them a place in the next day's championship list.

URGE REFORMATORY FOR WOMEN IN N. J.

The need of a woman's reformatory in this State was fully discussed by several speakers at the first charities conference yesterday afternoon in the Charities building, Orange. The Rev. Jacob A. Cole, pastor of the Orange Methodist Episcopal church, was chairman.

Edwin G. Adams, of Red Bank, said that the plan for a State reformatory for women had its inception in Orange. The speaker then gave a history of the treatment accorded the plan in Trenton, saying that one Legislature handed it down to another.

"Politics is the whole trouble in this State," said the speaker, "every one fears the people will complain if he votes to appropriate the money, and would thus jeopardize his re-election."

Dr. George B. White, member of the State Commission of Charities and Corrections, said that the only way to obtain a reformatory for women was to refer the appropriation to the people to vote upon.

"The Governor," he said, "is in favor of the plan and this winter is a good time to launch the project. If you need $150,000 for the institution let the people vote upon it."

Judge Thomas A. Davis said:

"The young women in this State are entitled to the same privileges as the young men, and the only way to influence the Legislature is to show that we mean business, by sending a large representation to Trenton."

County Probation Officer John J. Gascoyne spoke in favor of the plan.

OTTO AULERT'S LICENSE CAUSES SOME TROUBLE.

At yesterday's meeting of the Elizabeth Excise Board, Commissioner Paul J. Carroll referred in no uncertain terms to the recent refusal of the board to grant a license to Otto Aulert to conduct a saloon in Maple avenue. The board had announced its intention to take up the matter and as a result the room in which the session was held was well filled.

Objection to the remarks of Comsioner Carroll were taken by Christian Hansen, who understood them to be a challenge to him, as he is one of those who object to Aulert being granted a license.

When he reached the sidewalk Hansen exclaimed to several of the commissioners:

"You all ought to be in jail." Then Hansen and Aulert met and shook their fingers at each other.

"You'll never get that license," said Hansen.

"You bet I will," replied Aulert.

HOLY LAND JOURNEY DEPICTED BY PASTOR

Rev. Dr. Chas. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, continued his interesting journey through Palestine at the church last night. The views showed Dr. and Mrs. Herring on a pair of donkeys, their means of travel through the Holy Land, and it all proved instructive as the speaker took his audience step by step over this most interesting country.

Last night's journey included a good part of Jerusalem, traveling around the walls of the city a distance of two and half miles, starting at Jaffa gate, and including Damascus gate, the Gordon cavary, believed by many to be the site of the crucifixion and the Jewish place of stoning.

Dr. Herring then took his audience through the Valley of Jehoshaphat, which is lined with graves, Calvary, Mt. Olivet and back to the city gate again. Thence to Jericho, past the house of the Good Samaritan, describing the fertile land in the vicinity of the River Jordan and then to Hebron and the cave where Abraham, Isaac and their wives were buried, all of which is considered very sacred ground.

The journey was concluded with a visit to the Church of the Nativity, the place of the birth of Christ in Bethlehem and to the Dead Sea. Regarding the Dead Sea, Dr. Herring gave several interesting facts. He said that about 25 per cent. of the water is solid and seven per cent. salt. It is 1,300 feet below the Mediterranean. This sea is 1,300 feet deep in its deepest place. The lecture closed with a view of the Jordan River, showing the place where Christ was baptized.

SCHOOL AT LINDEN BURNED TO GROUND.

The public schoolhouse at Linden was burned to the ground last night, causing an estimated loss of about $2,000. The cause of the fire is not known, but it is supposed to have been caused by an overheated furnace in the basement of the building. The building was a frame structure, and was erected some years ago. Recently it was remodeled at considerable expense.

The flames gained considerable headway before they were discovered. Neighbors formed a bucket brigade, and for half an hour labored to save the building. In the meantime Elizabeth was asked for help, and Engine Company No. 1 was sent to scene. Before the apparatus arrived the building was in ruins.

Several of the township trustees joined in the fight to save the building. They stated that they will be unable to make arrangements for accommodating the children for several days.

"WAR OF ROSES" ENDED; COMBATANTS AT DINNER

The "Red Roses" in acknowledgement of defeat in the recent "War of the Roses," in the Y. W. C. A. membership contest, gave a supper at the association rooms, last night to the "Yellow Roses," victors in the contest. The supper was served at 6:30 o'clock, and covers were laid for twenty-four young women. Miss Olga Lockert was captain of the "Reds," and Miss Ethel Pryor of the "Yellows."

The table, as well as the guests were decorated in the prevailing colors, red and yellow. Miss Lillian A. Force, who planned the membership contest, was in charge of the affair last night. A letter was read from the board of management thanking the young women for their notable achievements in securing so many new members for the association.

After the most excellent supper was enjoyed there were several informal speeches, which were listened to with much interest. Among the guests were Miss Tapping, secretary, and Miss Mosher, physical director of the association.

Following the festivities all listened with interest to a fine talk by Dr. C. B. Lufburrow, city physician, on "Foods and Digestion." He explained in detail the composition of essential foods and gave a scientific talk on digestion, how to promote it and how the body is properly nourished.

DR. PACKARD DIES.

Princeton Instructor Succumbs to Heart Trouble.

Princeton, Dec. 3—Dr. William Alfred Packard, for many years an instructor in Princeton University, died suddenly yesterday of heart trouble. He was professor emeritus in Latin, and for years was prominent in the world of classics. He was 79 years old.

Dr. Packard was instructor in modern languages in Bowdoin from 1859 to 1863 and professor of Latin language and literature and later Greek at Dartmouth from 1863 to 1870.

Dr. Parckard came to Princeton in 1870 as professor of Latin, and has been here since. He revised, with translations from Latin editions, a history of Greece and wrote memorial sketches of the lives of earlier Princeton presidents and professors.

PANIC AT FIRE.

A fire in the third floor of the building at 2 First street, Elizabeth, caused a panic early yesterday among a score or more of Poles who were awakened by the noise and other tenants. Men and women and children thinly clad rushed from the building.

The building had evidently been burning for some time before the flames were discovered. The first intimation of the fire was when smoke entered a barroom on the lower floor. An alarm was sent in and the firemen succeeded in checking the blaze before much damage had been done.

The fire was caused by a defective chimney. The total loss is about $50.

FUN AT BOARD OF TRADE

"Squared Circles" Jeffery Gets the Members Present in Good Humor

OPPOSITION TO A "SLATE."

"Perish the Thought," Says Fire Chief Doane and the Thought Is Therefore Perished.

In the absence of President H. W. Marshall, who was called out of town, B. Frank Cortell presided at the December meeting of the Board of Trade, last night. The announcement that there would be a program of music and refreshments, had a tendency to attract an unusual number of members. There was very little actual business and most of the evening was given up to sociability.

William Jeffery, accompanied by Frank Schaeffer, of Berkeley Heights, was present and gave the board a talk, while the latter entertained with banjo selections and popular songs. Mr. Jeffery stirred the members as never before with an earnest talk, explaining what has been done by "Circles on the Square" in Warren and New Providence townships and Passaic. Perhaps, the most interesting part of Mr. Jeffery's entertainment was his singing of a song, composed by himself, in which "Circles on the Square" and the Board of Trade came in for proper recognition.

After singing the song, Mr. Jeffery got his audience interested in a chorus and before he got through he had the crowd singing it. This put everyone in good humor for the things to follow. Frank Schaeffer's playing of the banjo and his singing was greatly enjoyed by everyone and he was repeatedly encored.

During the business, a communication was received from the National River and Harbor Commission inviting the board to attend the annual convention to be held in Washington, December 8, 9 and 10. The opening address will be delivered by President Taft. The communication was filed.

President Marshall communicated with the board, calling its attention to the annual election to be held in January and informing the members that under no circumstances would he consent to fill the office another year. Mr. Marshall has been president of the board three years.

This announcement led Milton Mindel to move that a nominating committee be appointed to make a slate for the January election. This was opposed by Chief T. O. Doane and others. The chief said that he did not believe in "making a slate," but favored direct nominations. This brought out a lively discussion in which J. E. Vanderhoef and Charles W. Runyon took part. It was finally decided to lay the matter on the table and let it come up in the regular way in January.

There was also a brief discussion of plans for the annual banquet, but nothing definite was done. Someone suggested that it be held in February inasmuch as the Merchants' Association dinner is to be held in January, but a committee will be announced later to arrange for this.

F. A. Duttenhofer reported progress concerning the proposition to bring a sanitary bakery here; also on the gasolene tank question, which was discussed at the last meeting. Thomas Timbo was proposed for membership and elected under suspended rules.

BARS SUNDAY FUNERALS.

Unions Ask Clergy Not to Officiate at Services.

Elizabeth's ministers will be asked by the Central Labor Union to refuse to officiate at Sunday funerals hereafter. This step is taken at the request of the Coach Drivers' Association. This body has been displeased recently because some of the undertakers held Sunday funerals contrary to their agreement.

This step was decided on last night at a meeting of the Central Labor Union.

Garwood Firemen to Hold Bazaar.

Local firemen have received an invitation to attend the annual fair and bazaar to be held by the fire department of Garwood in Becker's auditorium, December 8, 9 10 and 11. There will be innumerable prizes offered during the affair and there will be dancing every evening. Mayor Burns, of Garwood, will open the bazaar. The proceeds will go to a fund to purchase new uniforms.

Miss Holmes Called to Brockton.

Miss Alice Holmes, assistant secretary of the Y. W. C. A., who spent Thanksgiving week in Philadelphia, was called to her home in Brockton, Mass., by the death of her mother. The funeral and burial was on Monday last. Miss Holmes is still absent from this city and it is not known just when she will return.

Rahway to Get $75,000.

Councilman Reuben Tharp, chairman of the finance committee, at Rahway, received word from State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees that the $75,000 which the State will give for the issue of Rahway High School bonds of like amount, will be ready to turn over to the custodian of school money on Tuesday.

TROLLEY EMPLOYEES HAVE A JOLLY TIME

If there is any better body of men than the trolley men of the Central division of the Public Service Railway, they must be buried somewhere along the banks of the Wabash. They entertained themselves and a few invited guests at the car barns at Dunellen last night and spread themselves on the records as being the "goods" in every way.

George Luhr, the genial superintendent, was master of ceremonies, and introduced several features which for originality and interest far surpassed anything hitherto given by the trolley men. More than two hundred of the handlers of the controller and bell strap were on hand to enjoy the good things provided and the entertainment itself was above the average.

J. J. Gettings, division superintendent, made a few remarks in which he complimented the men on their organization and their sociability and asked them to extend always the courtesy which the public expects from men. He was sure that the better the conduct of the employees of the company, the better the service.

Mr. Luhr also spoke along similar lines and made it plain to the men that the best individual interests are served when the public receives its due and the company their best services.

The program of the entertainment contained many special features not the least of which was the "Georgia Fun Makers," a quartet of colored men, who have a high local reputation in their line. One of the remarkable men in this quartet is Oscar Nelson, the pianist for the quartet. He is another Blind "Tom," and if caught by some of the New York managers will soon be vaudeville star.

A three round bout with the big gloves between Joseph Keller and Tim Manley, of New Brunswick, wound up the evening's fun. More sport could not have been crowded in the four hours the men occupied the handsomely decorated rooms at the "barn," if the songs and jokes had been put under hydraulic pressure.

H. Higgins, chairman; D. Carroll, W. Wooden, J. Vroom, A. Linderberry; George Powers, assistant chairman; M. J. Nevins, M. J. Welsh, W. G. Huenke, Patrick Marron, L. Stadelle, P. Jensen, R. Parrain, George Luhr, manager.

PAST CHANCELLORS K. OF P. CONFERENCE

"Past Chancellor's Night" was observed at a meeting held at the rooms of Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., last night. There were twenty-three past chancellors of Unity Lodge present. There was the usual vote for grand lodge officers, and B. J. Schreiner, of Unity Lodge, received the unanimous vote of his fellow-members for the office of grand outer guard. There are six candidates for the place.

Unity Lodge nominated officers to be elected at the next regular meeting. Samuel Rothberg is the present chancellor. During the evening the rank of page was conferred on one candidate. A committee of past chancellors of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., was present to boom Mr. Schreiner's candidacy. Although there are six candidates for the position of grand outer guard, Mr. Schreiner is second in the race and his chances are considered excellent. The election will take place early in January.

ECHO THAT BEAT THEM ALL.

Man That Told of It Had Not Traveled Far, But Surely Could "Go Some."

"Echoes," remarked the Great Traveler, "are queer things. They're queer for two reasons—their cause and the vast difference in their sounds. Science has explained why there are echoes, but it can't tell why one should reverberate with bass tones in response to a shrill tenor yell, while another reverses this, or responds naturally."

"I reck'n you've heerd a number o' echoes," said the man, whose furthest trip from home was a distance of 41½ miles.

"Rather. I recall one in Switzerland; the echo rolled for just four seconds, no more, no less. Then there's one in the Pyrrenees that jumps six times, first loud and harsh, then low and soft, then loud again, and so on. There's one in the western part of Germany that holds a full sentence of seven words before releasing a sound, thus rivaling a certain echo in Afghanistan, which doesn't repeat until a minute and a half have elapsed."

"I'd like to listen to a few of 'em," suggested the home-staying man, with a suspicion of distrust in the tones of his voice.

"Of course, you would," responded the traveler. "There's nothing in the world like a good echo."

"You're right," said the other. "I ain't never been but a few miles frum hum, but I've heerd one of the strangest echoes that can be. Beats any of yours all to shucks. Up in the little range of hills 20 miles yonder is a ravine. If you stand at one end of that ravine an' yell 'Jones,' what echo 'spose'll come?"

"I have no idea," said the traveler.

"Well, sir, it says, kind o' questionin', like, 'Jones? Jones? What Jones?'"

Reward of Honesty.

One day recently a teacher in Bolton school picked up in the street a chamois bag, and, peering inside, saw some diamonds. Advertisements telling of the loss of $2,000 worth of diamonds led the school teacher to the residence of the owner, the wife of a down town merchant. Incidentally a reward was offered, but the woman who found them is of character too high to make a reward a thing to be considered in such a case. She carried the diamonds to the woman who had lost them, and the latter seized them with all the joy that a woman could possibly show on the recovery of her jewels.

"And now," said the woman, "you shall have a reward of $10 if you take it out in trade in my husband's shop."

The school teacher's sense of humor prevented her from showing any disgust, and she told the owner that she could not think of taking a reward for common honesty, and was only too glad to find the owner. During the conversation the woman was counting the diamonds, and she suddenly broke out with:

"One of them is missing! One of them is missing! What are you going to do about that?"

"The best I can do about that," replied the school teacher, "is to wish that more were missing. Good day."—Cleveland Press.

In Milk Street, Boston.

A young man who was in such a hurry to get out of the Milk street subway station that he forgot to exercise ordinary politeness, very nearly caused a serious accident yesterday about one o'clock. As he raced up the exit stairway through the crowd he brought his heel back into the face of an elderly lady close behind him. She gave a shriek of pain and fright and staggered backward. A man behind her was jostled and, losing his balance, also staggered backward. For a moment it looked as if a whole row would go down like ninepins, when a big man near the foot of the flight stretched out his stout arms and stayed the human avalanche. The indignant ones looked for the young man that they might fall upon and smite him, but he had disappeared.—Boston Post.

Law of Attraction.

The attractions of men to women and women to men are full of the most perplexing inconstancies and contradictions imaginable. It is, for instance, a physical law that magnetism is not simple attraction of one thing for another, but the difference of two opposing forces of attraction and repulsion, of which the former is the greater. The same law holds in relation to the attraction of men and women for each other, in which, as a rule, the masculine is the superior force.

A Studied Explanation.

"Will you be able to explain your attitude on the tariff?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "I'll have my explanation ready when the time comes. But I'll wait till my constituents are interested in other things and will carefully make it a little hard to understand."—Washington Star.

Helpful Literature.

"What books have helped you most?" asked the serious young woman.

"I don't remember their names," answered Senator Sorghum. "But they're the government publications I am permitted to present to my admiring constituents."

Church Members Lived Long.

Caldwell achieved a reputation for long lived residents at the anniversary services of the Caldwell Presbyterian church Wednesday night, when the Rev. Charles T. Berry, of Brooklyn, who was pastor of the church from 1869 to 1894, told of the longevity of some of his former parishioners. Mr. Berry said the average age of nine of the elders of the church was eighty-one years, and that he had officiated at the burial of seventy-three persons whose ages ranged from seventy to eighty years, sixty-two between eighty and ninety years, and ten who were more than ninety years old. Thomas Gould, one of the charter members of the church, lived to be ninety-eight years old, and left 168 living descendants, twenty of them of the fifth generation. His son, William Gould, another charter member, lived to be ninety-two.

TRIMMED WHILE YOU WAIT.

There is really nothing on a fall turban which one clever little woman wears to her office. That is, the turban is without trimming until about ten minutes before she leaves her home, and then from a wonder box she takes the appropriate scarf made up for wear and quickly twists it around the wide turned-up brim.

It solves the problem of facing a hat, which aperation is a sign of the adept or amateur.

A golden brown felt turban can be successfully treated in this way. For that brown suit of last year, why not have a deep brown ottoman silk to twine over the outer brim? At the front let the edges be joined (hooked, really) under an immense round ornament of tortoise shell or amber and let the "couteau" rise in feathery grace from this place. A checked silk scarf can be caught at the side and two brown quills can spring from a pleated bow. That will look extremely well when worn with your brown-and-white checked suit. For your rainy-day coat of blue, why not have a simple folded band of blue silk, buckling at the back of the turban under a large enameled sqpare?

A black shape looks well when flaunting black-and-white plaid and long, uncurled ostrich feathers. It can be changed for more dressy occasions by a soft-folded band of gold tissue, with a jeweled ornament to hold it in place.

Suggestions could be made ad infinitum. Select your shape and make a variety of pretty scarfs with their feathers or quills securely sewed at one end. Change your trimming to match your suit for different occasions. By this hook-and-eye scheme you will be able to retrim in an incredibly short time.

Miss Jennie Brown, of Jersey City, has returned home after spending several days with friends in this city.

Suits and Overcoats at HALF PRICE

4 Manufacturers

Had weather conditions been normal, this sale would not have been necessary, and the opportunity for you to save would have been lost.

If manufacturers could correctly judge weather conditions six months ahead, bargains of this kind would be unknown.

But they cannot do it—they cannot tell when the cold weather will come and the snow will fly—they must follow the trend of custom. Being slaves to custom, they make mistakes. The mistakes they make frequently prove of incalculable profit to the public, as in this instance, when

Four Great Stocks of Suits and Overcoats for Men and Boys

It is simply a case of overproduction—of miscalculation.

Thousands of fashionable, serviceable, splendidly made garments were produced, but the unseasonable weather stopped their sale as effectually as a flame stops the flight of a moth.

Nobody wanted Fall and Winter Clothing in Summer weather.

The manufacturers became panic-stricken. They turned to us. We said, "Half price."

"No! No!" they retorted. "We'll lose too much money!"

That was a month ago. Last week they signified their willingness to take their losses, and today we have at our disposal

4 Unprecedented Stocks of Fashionable Fall and Winter Clothing, Which We Shall Sell AT HALF HRICE.

As large as our store is, it will not hold ONE-TENTH of these stocks. Yet this store will be the outlet through which the stocks will pass from day to day to the consumers. It will be a sort of clearing house, which will enable the buyers to save:

Fifty Cents on the Dollar

The savings are simply wonderful. It is necessary to see the clothing, try it on and note its excellence, then the value will become apparent and no printed argument will be needed.

It is the most wonderful clothing opportunity presented in Newark for years, and one that cannot be repeated this season.

CHORUS

By JAMES FORBES

Copyright, 1908, by G. W. Dillingham Company

The populace of the two great English speaking nations has applauded "The Chorus Lady," her cheerful philosophy and her valiant struggle against big odds. The tragedy and comedy of life before the scenes and life behind the scenes were never better depicted than by the playwright James Forbes in the drama on which this story is based. It is not all gold that glitters on the stage, and the chorus lady's dominant optimism, common sense and high sense of duty afford an inspiring example to the old folks as well as the young folks of the land. And withal this story of a sister's battle for a sister's honor appeals with gripping intensity to every human heart that throbs with human emotions.

CHAPTER I.

MAPLE GROVE is in Virginia, on the line of the Richmond, Potomac and Fredericksburg railroad, not a hundred miles from Richmond, and should any one be so ill informed as not to know that Maple Grove's title to fame lies in the fact that Dan Mallory's training stable has been established for two years in its vicinity he would be the object of commiseration on the part of the village's 300 inhabitants, and did not that very famous mare Lady Belle, the pride of the stable and of Maple Grove, win the Washington cup at Bennings last season—win in a canter? And did not Maple Grove back her to a man—aye, to a woman? Of course she did, and of course it did. And that is why Maple Grove, flushed with pride and with its sudden accession of unearned increment, took its place at once and, be it said, with all due dignity as one of the important communities of the United States.

At the station, where the solitary oil lamp blinked feebly in the growing daylight, the rain beat in fierce squalls upon the hood of a buggy and upon a horse which was seeking consolation in his nose bag. In the shelter of the shed, his hands thrust deeply into the pockets of his overcoat, leaned Daniel Mallory himself. The first express from Washington—which stopped at Maple Grove only by request of passengers—was not due for a quarter of an hour, and the minutes were lagging tiresomely, as they have an exasperating trick of doing when one is waiting for a train. But the thoughts of the man in the shed were soon far away from Maple Grove. The blinking lamp and misty pall of rain were blotted out by a vision of a pair of big blue eyes smiling at him now roguishly, now with tender wistfulness, from a girl's pretty face.

Daniel Mallory was a good looking, strongly built man of thirty. His eyes, like those of the face of his vision, were blue, and usually they gazed upon the world in kindliness, quick to note the good and the humorous in it.

Born in Richmond of very poor parents, immigrants from Ireland, who had died when he was young, he had been compelled to shift for himself at an age when most boys are just getting used to school. His very first job was in a livery stable, and there his interest in horses began. So great did this interest become that he made his way to Kentucky to procure employment at a racing stable.

His ambition was to be a race horse owner and trainer himself, and he set about his preparations to become one by saving his money.

There came as helper at the stable Patrick O'Brien, with his wife and a ten-year-old daughter, Nora. Another daughter, Patricia, six years older, was in New York, apprenticed to Mme. Elise, a fashionable modiste in Fifth avenue. Mme. Elise in reality was plain Lizzie Casey, and Mrs. O'Brien had known her years before in Brooklyn when Lizzie was learning the business with no thought of giving a French twist to her Christian name. Patricia was the owner of the face that was now appearing to Mallory. O'Brien had seen better days. He had been a trainer, but had failed in business. Like most trainers, he had been opposed to betting, yet in his misfortune he resorted to it in an effort to retrieve his losses and had only sunk the deeper into the mire of poverty until his wife, a strongminded daughter of the Emerald Isle, whom—having little will of his own left, or, at any rate, little disposition to exercise it—he obeyed as meekly as his children did, had called a halt and threatened him with the direst consequences if he ever put another cent on a horse. Partly from fear of his wife, partly because he realized the futility of his efforts to win his money back and partly because he did not wish to set a bad example to his daughters, whom he loved devotedly, he had, like Mallory, definitely set his face against betting.

The LADY

and Mallory went to lodge with the family. At that time he was twenty-six years old.

It was nearly two years after his installation as a member of the family—for the O'Briens treated him as a son, and he who never had known the comfort of having some one to look after him returned their interest in him with a regard that was little less than affectionate—when Patricia came into his life. She arrived at the Christmas holiday time. Her parents had never wearied of extolling their Patsy, as they called her, but she proved to be entirely different from what he had pictured her. A pretty, slender girl, piquant, wide awake, full of fun and with an extraordinary vocabulary of New York slang, she transformed the whole household with the joy she diffused from the minute of her arrival.

Mallory soon found that back of her liveliness and fun loving disposition she possessed a large capacity for discernment and common sense, which had been quickened by the sophistication furnished by her experience in the metropolis.

Patsy made up her mind that Mallory was the one man in the world for her and that she would marry him. But the meal table conversation had enlightened her as to the views he had entertained, and she sympathized to a large extent with his logic, for she was every bit as ambitious for him as he was for himself. Therefore when at last the telling of the oldest and sweetest story ever uttered by human lips had made her his and the happiest girl in all the world, and he urged her to name the day and make it soon, finding in his joyful eagerness as many cogent reasons in favor of this course as formerly he had adduced against it, she placed her hand in his and, gazing at him with the glory of her happiness shining in her eyes and with an intonation of love tenderness that would have divested her speech of any incongruity even to an unemotional listener, said:

"No, Dan. There ain't no spavin' on my interleck, and I ain't the girl to put kinks in your ambition. I'll name the day, all right, all right, when you have a stable of your own—not before."

"But," pleaded Mallory ruefully, "there ain't no prospect of me getting a stable of me own as I can see."

"You'll get it one of these days unless I've sized you up wrong," she assured him.

A few months after her return to New York the family were startled by a bombshell in the shape of a letter from Patsy announcing that she had left Mme. Elise's owing to a quarrel with the bookkeeper and gone on the stage. To say that her parents were horrified is to put it mildly.

Her parents summoned her home peremptorily, and she came and had it out with them. She explained her departure from the milliner's and her entrance into the theatrical profession in this wise:

"I couldn't stand for the bookkeep; but, seein' he was head hand holder for madame, it made it kinder embarrassin', an' I took the exit without bluefoots or tremolo music. Me carryin' home hats to the girls at the Casino got me real intimate with 'em, an' when I was down an' out they sez, 'What's the matter with breakin' into the show business?' An' the next week I was there with a smile an' a shape—if I do say it as shouldn't—that got me third from the end in short order. Of course now the bookkeep's married madame an' is makin' a book at the track things 'u'd be different, but I'm in the show business for keeps."

Mallory, driven to desperation, went so far as to cast the first shadow on the sun bathed horizon of their bliss by intimating that he feared it would be all over between them if she insisted on going on the stage.

"What are you afraid of?" she demanded quietly.

"Well," he replied, with some hesitation and embarrassment, "I've heered tell that the stage ain't no place for no good girl."

She looked him straight in the eyes.

"Daniel Mallory," she said, "cut that out and forget it. Remember, we're goin' to spiel through life together. You've got to trust me for good an' all—trust me without a string to it—in all places an' all things. You've got to believe in me as I believe in you. You can't put no blinders on me, and you can't put no hobbles."

He returned her gaze steadily.

"You're all right, little one," he answered at length very gently and very slowly. "I will never raise that question again. I will trust you at all times in all things."

"It's a deal," she said. "Cinch it. Give me your mitt on it."

He held out his hand, and she grasped it. Then, with a sudden impulse, she raised it, pressed it against her cheek and covered it with kisses.

"Oh, Dan, my Dan, you're a man!" she cried, and as he clasped her to him in a passionate embrace he saw that her eyes were wet.

Mallory, spurred by the grit of his sweetheart and the prize held out to inspire him to even greater efforts than he had put forth, procured a lucrative position as manager of a racing stable and in course of time amassed enough to establish a stable of his own. He selected Maple Grove as the site for it, and of course he took with him the O'Brien family, which he long since had come to consider as his own. At first things had gone well, and the day for the wedding at last had been fixed. But it was not yet to be. A series of misfortunes crippled Mallory's resources so seriously that Patsy insisted on a postponement. A number of horses fell sick and died, and fire, against which there was no insurance, wiped out most of his buildings. Mallory found himself facing probable ruin, with the foundering of all his hopes, unless help arrived from some quarter. In this extremity one of the patrons of the stable found a likely partner for him in Richard Crawford, a wealthy young New Yorker, well known as a clubman and a man about town, who was much interested in horses and horse racing. It had been arranged that Mr. Crawford, whom Mallory had never seen, should run down to look over the quarters and the animals, and he had wired the trainer that he would arrive on the train for which Mallory was waiting.

Dan was roused from his reverie by the distant hoarse whistle of the locomotive, and in another minute the express came thundering and groaning into the station. As it slowed up the only passenger for Maple Grove swung lightly off and found himself face to face with the waiting man.

"Mr. Crawford?" questioned Mallory.

"Yes. Mr. Mallory?" came an answering query.

"That's me," said the trainer. And as they exchanged a cordial handshake they took stock of each other in a rapid glance.

Mallory was very favorably impressed. His prospective partner was a clean cut, well set up man of about his own age and in dress and bearing carried the stamp of good breeding. While he would not have been adjudged handsome by most women, he was certainly not bad looking, especially when he smiled, and there were an ease and a cordiality about him that to Mallory were most attractive. The visitor made light of the inclement weather, which as they approached the trainer's domain showed signs of clearing up, and they were on the best of terms long before the three mile journey from the station had been covered.

SIR ROBERT WHITE.

O'er russet fields of ripened corn,
From out the purpling hazel's bourn
Floats a clear call to Arcadie.

No need of sight to know that fall
Brown nuts to earth whence comes this call,
This reedy call to Arcadie.

No need to ear to know the pipe
Of Syrinx plays o'er Autumn ripe
In spicy glades of Arcadie.

That woodsy notes are fluting light
In tune with throat of Old Bob White
Whistling a call to Arcadie.

His clear note rounds less shallowly
Than reeds of Pan blown mellowly
Through thymy aisles of Arcadie.

I, glad, from trodden, dusty road
Would turn swift feet to sylvan sward
And heed your call to Arcadie.

Naturally.

Willy—You see, it was this way. They were all three so dead in love with her, and all so eligible, that to settle the matter she agreed to marry the one who should guess the nearest to her age.

Arthur—And did she?

Willy—I don't know. I know that she married the one who guessed the lowest.—Life.

Well, the Impudence!

"What did you say last night when Jack asked you to marry him?"

"I shook my head."

FORGETFULNESS.

How good it seemed to me last night
To lie in bed and hear
The rain drops patter on the roof,
With none to interfere
With me and say: "Get up and close
The windows right away."
I simply went to sleep again—
For she left yesterday.

I was not roused from slumber sweet
Last night and told to go
To empty straight the ice box pan
Ere it should overflow.
But on my downy couch I stayed
Contented with my lot,
And woke this morn to find a flood—
The ice box I forgot.

She's gone away, and no one now
Reminds me what to do;
I've spoiled her parlor curtains, and
A rug as good as new.
The kitchen floor must varnished be,
I think I'll send a check,
And have her hurry back again
Before the home's a wreck.

Wanted a Handout.

"I suppose," began the kind lady, before Mr. Husky Hasbeen got a chance to exercise his voice, "that you want to chop some wood in exchange for a square meal, don't you?"

"I'd like ter oblige yer, lday," replied the dusty traveler, "but it's bin more'n twenty years since I done anything in dat line."

"Well, said the k. l., "here's where you can practice till you get your hand in."

And the kind lady fell in a faint.

Great Scheme.

"Great Caesar, old man," exclaimed Gunner, as he opened the door and found his friend's house brilliantly illuminated at noonday. "What does this mean? Why are all those blankets over the windows and why is the gas burning in the day time?"

"What kind of a scheme?"

"Why, my wife is in the country and I tell her I remain home every night and read. I've got to get rid of some gas somehow so it will go on the bill at the end of the month."

AND HE DID.

St. Peter—Well, Towne, you're here earlier than I expected, and why such mirth?

Towne—You see—tee, hee—Sinnick told me a funny story, and I thought I'd die laughing.

The Three Favors.

There's three things in life 'at I've allus said
There's nuthin' on airth that kin beat 'em—
The two first are slices of home-made bread,
An' the third is the stummick t' eat 'em!

The Limit.

"I don't mind 'em wearing pantaloon gowns," said the man viciously.

"Henry," said his wife, "be careful what you say."

"And I don't mind women driving automobiles and playing golf."

"Now, Henry!"

"And I don't object so much chasing after the ballot, if they want it, but doggone me, I hate to see them riding motorcyles."

Prescience.

Young Actor—I say, wife, what makes the baby give such sudden grins in his sleep?

Wife—Mamma says he sees the angels when he does that.

Young Actor—Then I'll bet a fiver he is grinning to think how he is going to "work" those angels, when he gets 'em on his string.

In Confidence.

"Do they!" echoed the old farmer. "Say, jist atween yew an' me, they give so all-fired much thet we diloot th' well water we sell tew th' campers with it."

A Requisite.

Staylaight—Oh, Miss Wobbins, may I come to see you again?

Miss Wobbins—Well, I cannot see how you can very well, unless you go this time!—Life.

Cold Turndown.

Count Hickoff—See, my love, I draw ze one heart and arrow in ze white beach sand. Will you have me now?

Pretty Girl—No, count. Sand artists these days have a hard time to support themselves without supporting a wife.

Twisting a Maxim.

Sententious Father — The proper study of mankind is man.

Frivolous Son—Then is it the correct thing to "con" other people?

Tell Your Light Troubles To Us

If you have trouble with your gas or electric lighting there's a reason.

You may not think so, but the chances are that in nine cases out of ten the cause will be found within your own premises—probably a minor defect only.

If you cannot locate the defect you cannot cure it. On the other hand, if you do not tell us about your lighting troubles how are we to know they exist? How can we supply the remedy?

Selling service is our business. We try to make that service perfect. It is now practically perfect to your premises, and the only way we can hope to correct defects there, where they exist, is by having you "Tell Your Light Troubles To Us."

Will you do so?

Plainfield in .... The Olden Days.

Re-printed from The Weekly Constitutionalist

March 16, 1871.

We learn that Miss J. A. Denton, of New York, a graduate of Vassar College has been appointed to the situation in the Academic Department of the Public Schools of this city, left vacant by the resignation of Miss Parker.

Rev. Charles Fox, D. D., formerly recor of Grace church, of this city, has accepted a call to St. James' church, of Chicago.

We learn that Mr. Schepflin having dissolved partnership with Mr. Baldwin, has associated himself with Mr. Charles Tweedy, of New York, under the firm name of Schepflin & Tweedy. The name of Tweedy has been long and favorably known to those in the clothing business.

John Taylor Johnson, Esq., President of the New Jersey Central R. R., has subscribed $10,000 towards the establishing of the proposed Museum of Art, in New York city.

Robbery—On Monday morning last a female servant of Mr. L. M. Rocap, who resides on the outskirts of our city towards Dunellen, found the kitchen door of the house open when she arose in the morning, and upon investigation of the cause of the same, it was found that the house had been robbed by some one. An overcoat, dress coat, a pair of boots, and some silverware was found to have been stolen, while the preserve pots in a cupboard had been opened, and the thief or theives had regaled themselves with preserves, bread and butter.

On South avenue, near Washington street, several new buildings are in course of erection, by Mr. E. C. Mulford. Also on Second street, near Richmond Mr. J. C. Randolph is building new houses. These are but a few of the houses now in course of erection in this city. Wherever one turns, signs of improvement are manifest. A few more such enterprising gentlemen as Mssrs. Hunter & Leeds in our midst will do more for the growth and promotion of Plainfield than all the old fogies in the country.

A large gang of workmen are actively engaged in clearing away the rubbish at the scene of the fire, corner of Front and Grove streets. Mr. Elston Marsh, the owner of the building burned, contemplates immediately erecting a large four story brick building on the site, 60x60 feet. Mr. Schepflin and partner will occupy the upper stories of the building, wherein to transact their large and extensive clothing business, while below there will be three handsome stores to let.

MODELS' LIKES AND DISLIKES.

"If I don't like an artist," said the model who is called "a pocket edition of the Venus de Milo," according to Te Bohemian, "I simply can't pose for him. I'm sensitive, you know."

"His personality doesn't interest me in the least," said the Grecian type, "so long as he paints well, but as you are so sensitive, I daresay his complexion and age would also affect you! Do you like them fair or dark, young or old?"

"Young, of course," answered the 'Pocket edition.' "I find young men so sympathetic, and that makes me feel more like work. If an artist worries because he has to give me a hard pose, and tells me to rest often, that's just the time I never feel tired at all. Nearly all the young men like their models to talk. They say they're more natural, and brighter that way. Old men are fussy, and they smoke pipes and are always giving you good advice. And then, they paint in that oldfashioned way with little brushes, and they never talk much to you."

"Well, I for one, don't care to talk when Hm posing," said a brown haired girl who had just joined the group. "I do a lot of thinking while I pose, and I love to pose for intellectual men. It's such an education, you know."

ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS.

Not on hats, but on evening gowns are these perfectly made silk and muslin blossoms being used. They are strung across the whole front of the bodice, or they fall gracefully over one shoulder and trail down the side of the drapery. To make a spray of the big yellow daises more a part of the gown—one very beauteous yellow gown—they were veiled with shimmering gauze in such a pale shade of canary that it appeared merely to cover them as a mist. The centres of these daises were almost like yellow suns and their petals a little more delicate.

An effect of this sort could not be gotten except with some soft-toned blossom. The more heavily colored flower would appear to weigh down the delicate chiffon or crepe of the gown.

Disturbed Sequence.

"Did you read my story?" asked the young author.

"I read the first part of it," answered the candid girl. "But the first two pages it trickled off among a lot of advertisements that were so interesting that I lost track of it."

CONCERNING BORES.

A woman's weekly paper denounces the male bore. He is, it asserts, worse than the female bore. She sometimes effaces herself. He goes on forever.

It seems a curious view, says the London Mirror. To most people the statement would appear truer if reversed. Surely it is the woman bore who "asserts herself from early morn to dewy eve" far more often than the male.

The usual characteristic of the male bore is a dreary pomposity. The most frequent feature of the woman bore's conversation is an unquenchable garrulity.

Every one has known at least one, and probably a good many specimens of the woman who "will be talking." It is no exaggeration to say that there are some who literally never cease—except possibly when they are in bed. Even then they probably talk in their sleep. Very often they are rather quick-witted, she women who suffer from this disease of the jaw. They are seldom fools. Their conversation in small doses would be found exhilarating. Poured out in "on weak, wasay, everylasting flood" it breaks the spirit of the bravest. It daunts the fearless even of their own sex.

The announcement that "such a one has called and "is in the drawing-room" produces upon a household an astonishing effect. Some fly to their rooms and lock themselves in. Some hide under tables or behind screens. One recollects that she has letters that must be written. Another recalls the doctor's injunction to her to lie down for an hour every day.

Men bores are often very nearly as bad, but they are bad with a difference. They are not, like women bores, above the average of intelligence. They are always stupid. And they do not, as a rule, talk indiscriminately on every subject. They generally have one particular topic, which they din into your dazed brain until you lose all recollection of the time before they began talking to you and all hope that they will ever leave off.

Still, there is a way to stop the male bore. You can pretend to be an idiot and to misunderstand everything he says. Or you can insist on changing the subject, in which case his talk dries up at once. Or you can simply flee whenever you see him on your society horizon.

No one has ever discovered how to stop the woman bore. She does not mind whether you understand what she is saying. She does not even mind much whether you listen. Changing the subject has no effect upon her. She will talk with equal fluency on every subject under the sun. And you cannot persistently avoid her without appearing either rude, if you are a man; or unkind, if you belong to her own sex.

Yet it is a mistake to be too tender with bores. They are victims of mistaken kindness. They ought never to have been allowed to become bores.

At the first symptoms they showed of developing into nuisances, their parents and guardians, their brothers and sisters, their cousins and aunts, their friends and acquaintances should have fallen upon them and said very loudly and emphatically, "Shut up!"

It is not enough to ask yourself, as every one ought to: "Am I a bore?" You should also consider whether you are allowing any of those you live with to become bores.

Poison in Shakespeare's Plays.

It is one of the penalties of Shakespeare's position as a great poet that his words are taken seriously, says a writer in the London Globe. A learned doctor in foreign scientific review has been holding an inquisition into the poisons mentioned by him. He points out that the "juice of cursed hebenon," which Claudius is said to have poured into the ear of Hamlet's father, is incapable of piercing the tympanum of the ear, and, therefore, could not have penetrated the body and poisoned the blood as the Ghost alleges.

Again, the narcotic which Friar Laurence administers to Juliet was probably either datura stramonium or mandragora root. The first is used by the convicts in New Caledonia when they wish to rob their companions, but its effects do not last forty-two hours, nor anything like that time. A scientist who experimented on himself with mandragora found that intense sickness is caused on waking, and this did not happen to Juliet.

As for the poison which was given to Romeo, it was probably aconite, or one of those mixed poisons of the Borgias which seem to have been composed of vegetable alkaloids and ptomaine, since it was so remarkably rapid in its effects. But that is the fault of too serious people; they will take anything seriously. Shakespeare probably knew nothing at all of poisons or narcotics. He was a poet and not a chemist, and might, therefore, be allowed the usual poetic license.

On the Farm.

"Well," said Farmer Cornstossell, "I've got to look after my tomatoes and string beans and things."

"You don't expect to feed all your summer boarders out of that little garden, do you?" inquired the neighbor.

"Nope. I've put in my order for canned goods, as usual. That vegetable garden is just a decoy."—Washington Star.

How to Reduce Fat Without Drugs, Diet or Exercise

After the summer is past and there are no more hot, stuffy days, this is the time when fat people should be thinking about reducing their weight and should stop making the fat that is such a burden to them. The best way and the easiest way is the one about which so much has been said and written this past year. This way is the Marmola way. The famous Marmola Prescription has been prepared in tablet form. These little tablets contain nothing but the elements that go to change the things which produce fat into good, strong blood, nerves, tissues and bone. More than this, these tablets absorb and remove the fat remaining at the rate of from 12 to 15 ounces per day. You must not confuse Marmola Tablets with harmful patent drugs and hurtful reducing methods. These tablets go into your stomach just like the food you eat. They build up the juices of the digestive organs and correct these juices so that they produce no more fat. They are harmless, yet thousands of men and women all over this land today are of firm figures and normal size because of these little tablets. This is why every druggist everywhere carries them in stock and will sell them to you. If your druggist does not have them, or you would rather send 75 cents, the price of a case, to The Marmola Company, Dept. 988, Detroit, Mich., they will send them to you at once in a plain package, postage paid.

Don't Wrestle With Furnace Clinkers

If they hesitate, the cutting bar smashes them. There is no chance of clogging. The intense and uniform heat of the reduces nearly everything to the finest ash. That's because a square pot develops more heat per unit of fuel than any other kind. That's economy.

BOYNTON Square Fire-Pot FURNACE

PATENTED

The Boynton has some other exceptional features too—the fresh air supply—the dust flue—the square ash pit. Any BOYNTON dealer will be glad to explain how these points reduce the care and cost of up-keep.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for Steam or Hot Water. Also Ranges.

RELIGIOUS THOUGHT.

Gems Gleaned From the Teachings of All Denominations.

To idealize persons is to see that they are worth saving to true manhood and womanhood.—Rev. Dr. W. C. Bitting, Baptist, St. Louis.

To Win Life's Battle.

Would you win life's battle? Find out your weakest point and always be sure to have that point well defended.—Rev. Madison C. Peters, Baptist, New York.

Measure of Our Fellowship.

Nothing short of a real faith can bring us into fellowship with Christ, and the measure of our faith will be the measure of our indwelling in him.—Rev. Dr. S. J. Nicholls, Presbyterian, St. Louis.

Providence and Love.

The pledge of the final harmony of man with God lies in the love which is at the fount and origin of things in the heart of God. If God is love, the universe is safe.—Rev. J. C. Adams, Universalist, Hartford, Conn.

One View of Progress.

What the poet knows and sees the historian by and by records. Civilization is pyramidal. Progress is only the piling up of energies which dead generations pass up as they fall away.—Rev. J. E. White, Baptist, Atlanta, Ga.

The Soul's Highest Mood.

The soul is at its highest mood only when it enters reverently and systematically into the sanctuary and there through adoring worship ascertains that golden cord that leads it to the throne of love.—Rev. Dr. Newell D. Hillis, Congregationalist, Brooklyn.

New Impulse For Conduct.

He who knows Christ knows a new love for righteousness, a new love for justice and a new impulse for conduct. Grace applied to the individual serves to restrain all irregularities of conduct. It deals death to selfishness and regulates ambition.—Rev. Cornelius Folk Goodson, Presbyterian, St. Louis.

A Manly Christ.

It is unfortunate that the mediaeval artists portrayed Christ as a feminine man, for we have evidence that he was a manly man. When we consider how his disciples always held him in such great respect we see that he was manly—yes, more than manly. It was supermanliness.—Rev. J. P. Cooper, Methodist, Providence, R. I.

Self Engineering.

Perfect engines get hold of the track. Orders come with lightning rapidity to the engineer, and they must be obeyed without question. The responsibility for the orders is not with him, his responsibility is to execute them. God can run this world, but he has put it into your hands to run yourself.—Rev. M. W. Stryker, Methodist, Clinton, N. Y.

True Home Maker.

First, last and forever it is love, and love only that makes the true home. No costly architecture nor luxurious adornments can create it. Mutual affection and glad service alone brings heaven upon earth. Where love is wanting the marble palace may be a hell; where love rules the humblest cabin may be a heaven.—Rev. Rush R. Shippen, Unitarian, Atlanta, Ga.

The World's Soul.

Work is the soul of the world, for on it depends its very being. What has built the world's greatness and power, what has accomplished every achievement which has twined the laurels of victory around the brow of humanity, what has led men from the darkness of savagery and ignorance into the light of civilization and progress? Has work not consummated all? Yes, work has been the gardener which has turned the earth from a wilderness of weeds into a garden of glory. The world cannot do without work.—Rev. Dr. Madison C. Peters, Baptist, New York.

Debt to Learning Beyond Payment.

The church today should honor not castigate her scholars. Reverence is awe based on intelligence. Superstition is awe based on ignorance. Coming generations will confess the obligation that now is spurned by the uncultured, who boot rearch. The debt to brains will never be paid. It may be disowned by the ignorant, but is none the less sacred. Our obligations to scholarship are enormous. Wycliffe and Tindale and the others who toiled and suffered martyrdom for the cause of translations were university men. The very men who rave against the scholarship of today are forced to depend on less brilliant scholarship for their Bibles.—Rev. Dr. W. C. Bitting, Baptist, St. Louis.

Counting the Cost.

Why not count the cost as eagerly in the realm of the spirit as in the realm of matter, in morals as well as manufacturing and merchandising? Why not strike trial balances every so often to see whether our expenditures of life energy is not exceeding the income? Does it pay in the search of pleasure to burn the candle at both ends? Let the physical wrecks strewn about like rubbish on the seashore after a storm answer. Does it pay for the excitement of a moment's enjoyment to wreck a whole life's happiness? Let the "Kreutzer Sonata" answer. Does it pay for the fun of going out with the boys to throw to the dogs the physical heredity of generations of sturdy ancestors? Let our millionaire wrecks and rakes answer. Does it pay to center our heart, our soul, our might on property and glittering gold? The notorious cases of Dr. Doyle and Mrs. Eddy prove how a division of the inheritance may mean a division of the family, and one wonders whether that distinguished senator who resigned his honorable and useful position for his family would not be serving his children much better by giving them the honor that comes with the performances of high service to one's country.—Rev. Dr. Joseph Stoltz, Hebrew, Chicago.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR GIRL.

A wise woman will take a lover at his word—because that is probably all she will ever get from him.

In a love affair, it is the first kiss which embarrasses a woman, the last which embarrasses a man.

It's funny how a "soul mate" never seems to happen around until after you are married to somebody else.

Why won't a man understand that a woman doesn't necessarily carry a lorgnette for the sake of her eyes—but for the sake of other people's eyes?

Marriage is the sentimental dope with which we stimulate ourselves, but which eventually always stops the action of the heart and irritates the nerves.

Being in love means merely spending half your time doing foolish things, which you are perfectly aware that you will spend the other half regretting.

A divorce, like electricity, steam heat and other modern improvements, may be expensive in the beginning, but it saves a man lots of money in the end.

A man's idea of a chivalrous exit from a flirtation is to make a woman believe that the reason he is going to stop making love to her is because he "loves her too much."

The size of a girl's shoe and the brand of her sachet seems to be much more important to a man in his selection of a wife than the size of her brain and the brand of her character.

Of course second marriages are happier than first marriages; you've got to try two or three grades of coffee or varieties of soup before you can tell just what appeals to your taste.

PROVERBS FOR CANVASSER

Be master of your specialty.

Talk neither politics nor religion.

An hour lost in the morning has to be run after all day.

Turn every seeming disadvantage into an advantage.

To-morrow's triumph is often killed by to-day's inactivity.

Never entertain a thought of failure. Have a heart full of hope.

Remember your interests and those of your house are mutual.

A victory was never won by a soldier who stopped fighting.

Make use of your failures. Never fail twice in the same way.

People will never place a higher estimate on you and your work than you place yourself.

Manifest an earnest admiration and liking for your work and others will catch the same inspiration.

LEAF FROM A MODERN DREAM BOOK.

Dreams, unfulfilled, make one contrary.

Dream and the world gets by you ere you wake up.

The summer girl's dream usually turns out to be some one's nightmare.

A very bad nightmare is to dream you are being run over by a horseless carriage.

If dreams go by contraries, it is a fine thing to dream you are giving somebody money.

If you dream of money, and don't find it, it is a sure sign that you are out that much.

When you dream of bed-inhabitators and awaken with a prickly-itchy feeling get up and strike a light; your dream may have come true.

If you hear a dog howling dismally in the middle of the night, don't have any apprehension till after you have investigated and found it was somebody in the next room snoring.

OBITER DICTA.

When a man tells you his wife is as sly as a cat, you begin to smell a mouse yourself.

Modern castles in Spain will have to be bomb-proof if lovers are to feel secure in the same.

Going late to church or the opera seems to appeal to many; but everybody wants to be on time at the baseball game.

With the summer hotel proprietors the giddy season is like finding money, because so many of his patrons keep throwing it away.—Judge.

WOULDN'T IT?

Wouldn't it be nice?
If children all over the land
Were quite submissive to command,
If little boys would never shout,
And little girls would never pout,
If pas and mas could always say,
"How very quiet 'tis to-day."
If children in condition prime
Were always as at Christmas time,
Wouldn't it be nice?

Wouldn't it be grand?
If young to old respectful were,
If age were held as something dear,
If parents and authority
Would in high estimation be,
If youngsters did not selves assert
In action plain, in language curt,
But were as mild in act and say,
As they are this year's holiday,
Wouldn't it be grand?

Wouldn't it be great?
If angry tempers in control
Were held by might of mind and soul,
If on each life by passion swept,
A rigid watch of will was kept,
If every little sister—brother—
No'er quarreled, but dearly loved each other,
If all was life and love and cheer,
As when Christmas time was near,
Wouldn't it be great?

He Got the Candy.

A country doctor who took his two small children, a boy and a girl, around with him one day on his visits, had forbidden them to accept candy, pennies or other offerings where he visited. One day, while looking after the wife of his grocer, he left the two children in the store. The grocer made up a bag of candies and cakes and offered it to the children. The little girl declined, saying: "Papa has told us not to accept presents." As the grocer was putting the bag back on the counter, the boy, who had been regretfully eyeing the retreating bag, said: "Papa said we mustn't take them, but he didn't say I must not let you put them in my coat pocket."

A Bride Goes to Market.

After the bride of a week had inspected all the fresh vegetables in the store, punched a few and inquired prices all around, she said to the patient clerk: "These tomatoes are just twice as dear as those across the street. Why is it?"

"Ah, yes, ma'am, to be sure; but you know, as I see you are a judge, these"—and the grocer smiled—"these are hand-picked."

"Of course," she said, hastily, blushing. "Why, I might have known. Give me a bushel, please."—Ladies Home Journal.

IN A WAY.

Mrs. Newlywed—George, dear, you don't think marriage is a gambling proposition, do you?

Mr. Newlywed—Well—er—I don't know. I counted on at least fifteen thousand from your dad, but he didn't come through with it.

Noted Now.

There was a little citizen
Who played a crooked game,
But he never did get caught and so
He won undying fame.

Kind Pa.

"No, Tommy, you can't go swimming to-day. You will have to help me clean out the basement this morning."

Tommy—Boohoo! And then this evening the kids will lanugh at me for not being able to go.

Pa—Oh, I'll tell you how to arrange that. This afternoon you can run the lawn mower and when the sun strikes your neck it will peel and turn fiery red and the boys will think you have been swimming.

Root's Eye on Hereafter.

Elihu Root, at a dinner in Albany, praised an Albany lawyer who had recently retired.

"He had retired very young," a doctor said. "It's characteristic of you lawyers. Why do you all retire so young?"

"We want to avoid all risk," said Mr. Root, "of dying lawyers."

A Poor Memory.

"Can you remember the names of all the men who signed the Declaration of Indspendence?"

"No, my memory for names is very poor. The only three that I can recall are John Hancock, George Washington and Andrew Jackson."

Suspicious.

"I am beginning to suspect that my wife isn't true to me."

"What cause have you for such a belief?"

"A letter addressed to me was delivered at my house yesterday, and she didn't open it."

The Retort Evasive.

He—Of course, I do, my dear. Where else would I go to buy you buckets?

NERVE.

He shambled into the fashionable lunch room and seated himself under an artificial palm.

"Er—well, me man?" snapped the swell waiter, elevating until it was on a line with the ceiling.

"How much is your planked steak?"

"Three dollars and twenty-five cents."

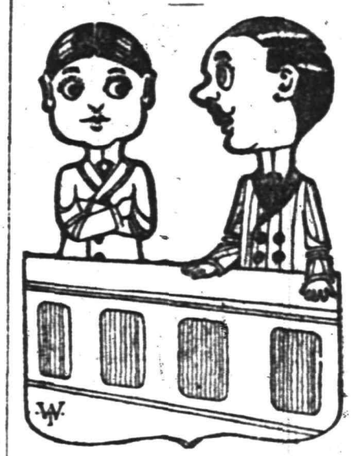
The unwelcome caller looked as though he had been hit on the head with a baseball bat.

"Three dollars and twenty-five cents for a planked steak?"

"Yes."

There was a painful pause and then the stranger fished deep down into the pocket of his trousers and drew forth a dime. "Here, boss, take dis; I only want de plank."

SPOILED HIM.



First Clerk—Don't you think that for an ugly man Wasson is awfully vain since he came back from his vacation?

Second Clerk—Yes, but you know he was at a summer resort for three weeks and was the only man there.

Trained Animal.

"Have you had any experience in this line?" asked the owner of the circus and menagerie, with some doubt.

"Not just exactly in this line," she said, "but my husband manages the beasts all right, doesn't he?"

"He certainly does."

"Well, you ought to see how easily I can manage him."—Tit-Bits.

Glorious.

"Well, father," asked the beautiful young heiress, "did the count call on you this morning?"

"Yes."

"What did he say?"

"He asked me if I was able and willing to support him in the style to which he had been accustomed."

"Oh, glorious! Dear old dad, let me kiss you. I am so happy! Doesn't it all seem like a beautiful dream?"

A Chump.

"Hs is an awful chump, isn't he?"

"Yes, he bought a ticket in an automobile raffle and then built a garage before the drawing came off."

"Well, what do you know about that? Was he disappointed when the drawing came off?"

"Not so you could notice it; he won the auto."

Suited to the Place.

"Well, this is certainly crazy management!" cried the chairman of the committee investigating the state institution.

"But you must remember," pleaded the superintendent, "that this is an insane asylum."

MISTAKEN, THOUGH.

Joe—Pa, that rooster ran and flapped his wings six times, and then crowed. Why, pa?

Joe's Pa—Very likely, my son, he crowed because he, too, thought he had solved the problem of aerial navigation.

A Sign.

"Has he shown extraordinary ability as a prevaricator?"

"Well, no, not that exactly, but he can cheat other boys in trades and make them think they are getting all the best of it."

"He was a mighty hunter, my son."

PARK OFFER REJECTED

Borough Commission's Report is Adverse to Accepting Lands for Public [illegible]

ANOTHER PROPOSITION SOON.

It Is Expected that Syndicate Will Make Another Offer Which May Be Accepted By Borough.

The Borough Park Commission through its chairman, George T. Rogers, reported adversely on the proposal of the Plainfield Park associates to deed over certain lands west of West End avenue, for the establishment of a proposed park. The commission's report was presented at the meeting of the Borough Council last night and was accepted, this being a virtual "turn down" of the scheme, which is the same fate it met at the hands of the Plainfield City Council.

It is understood, however, that a new proposition will be submitted to both city and borough by the company and owners of property in the vicinity of the proposed park.

The report of the commission and a supplemental report of Mr. Rogers follows:

"Your commission appointed on March 29, 1909, to consider a proposal made by the Plainfield Park Associates to deed to the borough certain lands for park purposes lying west of West End avenue in said borough, beg to report as follows:

"At an early meeting of your commission with representatives of the Plainfield Park Associates, there was produced a map showing certain low lands beginning at a point where West End avenue crosses Stony Brook, and extending westerly to a point about midway between Clinton and Rock avenues on the borough side, and on the city side beginning at a point on West End avenue adjoining Green Brook, and extending westerly from that point. The map showed these low lands to be surrounded by a proposed marginal road, the Plainfield Park Associates proposed to donate and deed to the city and borough for park purposes, upon the condition that the city and borough should contribute toward the expense of road construction.

"After several conferences had been had between the representatives of the city and borough, the city committee suggested that the entire property be acquired by the city as such an arrangement would be more convenient and simple, and that the city and borough should equally share in the benefits and advantages of such park.

"This arrangement seeming wise to your commission, the negotiation was left for a while in the hands of the city committee to arrive at a more definite understanding with the Plainfield Park Associates. After various conferences between that committee and the associates, extending over a period of several months, the city determined not to accept the conditions imposed upon the grant, and declined the offer of the Associates. Negotiations were then resumed between your commission and the associates with reference to a grant to the borough of the more limited territory proposed to be deeded on the borough side of the brooks. In this connection an important modification was, that the tract would not then extend to West End avenue and Green Brook, thereby making it impossible to have an entrance or driveway into the park at this convenient junction; the reason for this being that on the borough side of the brook at the point named the lands of the Plainfield Park Associates do not extend up to West End avenue. This fact and the further fact that the borough would have no jurisdiction over the land on the city side of the brook to control and regulate its development, or to prevent nuisances, made the proposal of the Plainfield Park Associates less desirable in the judgment of your commission.

"The commission therefore reports that in its judgment it is unwise at this time to accept the proposal of the Plainfield Park Associates, unless the Associates will convey the land to the borough without compensation, and unless the borough can accept a grant of the same with no other obligation than its dedication for park purposes.

"Your commission is influenced to a certain extent in reaching this conclusion by a consideration of the financial obligations which the borough may soon need to assume for pressing and necessary borough purposes."

The following was also read:

"As you are to hold your last regular meeting of the year on December 3, your commission feel that their report should be made at that time; but I would like to add that since the report was signed, the representative of the Plainfield Park Associates has informed me that

SALVATION ARMY ASKS AID FOR XMAS DINNER

Preparations are well underway at the local headquarters of the Salvation Army for its annual Christmas dinner to the poor of this city. It has been the custom of the Army for many years past to look up the needy ones and provide them with a good substantial Christmas meal. On this one particular day the poor look to the Army to supply their temporal needs and as early as November applications have been received for dinners. The labor and expense of this undertaking is considerable and none but those who have undertaken it can understand what a problem it is to meet.

Small boxes have been placed in many of the stores to receive contributions and later the collecting kettles will be placed on the streets and it is hoped that the public will respond freely to make this worthy effort a success. Any person who wishes can send his contribution direct to the local headquarters or to this paper and same will be acknowledged promptly by an official receipt.

BOROUGH HIGH ELEVEN FEASTED BY SENIORS

North Plainfield High School's sturdy football eleven was honored for its valiant performances on the gridiron this season at a banquet given last night by the senior class, in the manual training room of that institution. Forty pupils and members of the faculty occupied seats around the festive board and participated in the celebration.

Speeches lauding the splendid record made by the eleven were made by Benjamin J. Phelps, George J. Webster and Eugene Seymour, of the faculty. Responding for the team, Coach Warner Hamilton, Captain Russell Conroy, and several members made appropriate remarks.

It was a typical school gathering. The interior of the hall was elaborately adorned with green and gold, the colores of the senior class, and the red and white of the High School. School songs and yells—at intervals—enlivened the occasion.

The menu of the banquet was prepared and cooked by the girls of the class and voted one of the finest exhibitions of cooking in N. P. H. S. history. In keeping with the occasion the young women had miniature paper footballs as place cards. The gridiron warriors were so highly pleased over the cooking and reception that the High School yell was given several times in honor of the girls at the close of the celebration.

The committee in charge consisted of the Misses Helen George, Edna Dilts, Ruth Weinberger, Marjorie Hart, Estella Kline and Henrietta Winn.

M'INTYRE CONCERT'S SPLENDID PROGRAM

The program arranged by Joseph McIntyre for the third of his Chamber music concerts to be given at the High School auditorium on Monday evening, is a delightful one and is replete with many gems, vocal and instrumental.

Chief interest centers in the trio number, Tscharkowsky's opus 50, "A la Memoire d'un Grand Artist," a sketch of which was outlined in these columns earlier in the week. With Mr. McIntyre at the piano and Hans Letz, violinist, and Vladimir Dubinsky, cellist, this exquisite composition will receive an interpretation worthy of its great composer. In reality it is a piano concerto with string accompaniment and variation. Mr. Dubinsky also will appear later on the program as a soloist, as will John Young, tenor, for whom a charming group of songs has been arranged. The program follows:

Tscharkowsky's trio, in A minor, opus 50, "A la Memoire d'un Grand Artiste;" Mr. McIntyre, Mr. Letz, Mr. Dubinsky; (a) Pezzo Eligiacco, (b) Theme and Variations, (c) Finale and Coda; group of songs by John Young, (a) Grieg, Ein Schwan, (b) Strauss, "Allerseelen," (c) Hoffmann, Sanger's Heimgang; cello solo, Vladimir Dubinsky; Davidoff, Ballade; group of songs, Mr. Young; (a) Jensen, "Murruring Zephyrs," (b) Hawley, "To You," (c) Chadwick, "Before the Dawn."

Miss Trenbath Returns.

Miss Mabel C. Trenbath, a teacher in the Somerset school, who has been unable to perform her duties this fall on account of ill-health, has recovered, and will resume her regular position on Monday morning. Miss Martha T. Baxter, who has been teaching these classes since September, has returned to her home in Garrison, New York.

NO FORTUNE FOR THEM

John Henry Hess Amused at Query Made by Grandchildren.

BELIEVED HE WAS DEAD.

Mansfield, Ohio, Relatives Wrote Mayor Fisk and Daily Press Quickly Located Hess for Him.

Having an idea that their grandfather, John Henry Hess, was dead and that he had left an estate, grandchildren in Mansfield, O., communicated with Mayor Charles J. Fisk, who suggested that The Daily Press find the supposedly missing man and inform his relatives. A reporter of this paper located Mr. Hess, who is seventy-nine years of age, discharging his duties as sexton of Grace Methodist church.

When apprised of the letter from his grandchildren, Mr. Hess showed little surprise and equally little interest. He said that he knew they lived in Mansfied and was certain they were aware he lived here.

"Mansfield, O., Nov. 23, 1909.

"Dear Sir:

"We are trying very hard to find our grandfather, John Henry Hess, who has been lost to us for the last seventeen years, and the last we heard of him he was in your city. We would be very thankful to you if you would assist us in finding him. If he is there or if he has any property, or if there was any property in his name in the last seventeen years please notify us. You will find a stamp here for return mail. If there is any more information as to his books or clothes please write us and we will send you his picture. Please look this up and let us know.

"WILLILAM J. BEER,

"119 S. Foster St., Mansfield, O."

Shown the letter received from his nephew, William J. Beer, of 119 South Foster street, Mansfield, Mr. Hess said:

"So they want to know if I am in my grave and what estate I left? Well, just say that I am as lively a man for seventy years as you want to find. Tell them that I own my humble home and eke out my living as best I can and that I enjoy the respect of my neighbors. I left Mansfield, in 1878 and landed in this city, where I settled down. Ten years later I went to my brother's funeral at Mansfield, but have not communicated with my grandchildren since. Tell them that my address is 84 Somerset street, but be sure and say that I have no fat estate to be divided among them."

HELD IN $500 BAIL ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Harold Powell, the man who was arrested by the Jersey City police on a serious charge yesterday, was arraigned in the city court this morning before Judge William Runyon. Powell denied the charge, but the evidence brought was so overwhelming that Judge Runyon was convinced of his guilt. He was held under $500 to await the action of the grand jury.

The victim in the case is Maggie Simpson, a young Irish girl, who has been in this country but a short time. Her parents appeared to press the charge against Powell, who was brought from Jersey City yesterday by Detective Sergeant Flynn.

TROLLEYS SET SIGNALS

F. E. Kinsman's Device Tried in Newark Proves a Success.

HOW THE MECHANISM WORKS.

Saves Time and Trouble to Conductors—It Also Prevents Boys Tampering With the Signals.

Automatic signalling for trolley cars was tried yesterday for the first time in Newark when eighty-four cars were run over the Mulberry street line between Clark and Ogden streets, every one of which showed danger, caution and signal lights according to schedule and without manipulation. The device used is the invention of Frank E. Kinsman, for many years a resident of this city.

Trolley signals heretofore have been set by conductors, the car waiting for them to get off, and the signals have been so easy of manipulation as to tempt the small boys ambitious to show what they could do toward blocking a service.

By the new device two insulated rails are laid at each end of a block section, and to set the signal and the other to release it. When a car passes over the rails on entering the block it lights a green lamp at its own tailboard and a danger signal at the other end of a block. If desirable seventeen cars may follow one another in a single section, each motorman getting the green or caution signal ahead of him and the red signal remaining set until all have passed.

The mechanism consists of a series of magnets operating a cogged wheel by means of a pawl which sets the signal. The lamps are operated on the voltage used for the cars. It is possible to use the device on single or double track lines.

The Kinsman Block System Company, which installed the subway and Hudson tunnel signal systems, made yesterday's demonstration.

ANNOUNCE PATRONESSES FOR SUFFRAGE LECTURE

Professor Zueblin, who is to lecture at the high school auditorium Friday evening, December 10, is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, Northwestern University and Yale. Also of the University of Leipzig, Germany. In 1891 he founded the University Settlement in Chicago and was for a long time a professor of Sociology in the University of Chicago.

The subject of the lecture which Mr. Zueblin is to give in Plainfield is "Representative Government versus Democracy." It is to be given under the auspices of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, and the following patronesses: Mrs. Albert H Atterbury, Mrs. Lindsey Best, Mrs. Allan Cowperthwaite, Mrs. Edward V. Cox, Mrs. William Griscom, Mrs. Francis De Lacey Hyde, Mrs. Henry M. Maxson, Miss Ellen Osgood, Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, Miss Mary Wells, Mrs. Henry C. Wells, Mrs. Henry C. White. Many of the patronesses are not suffragists, but desire to hear the well known lecturer present his views on true democracy.

Las June Prof. Zueblin took part in a civic revival in Fort Wayne, Ind., speaking for four days, afternoon and evening on some phase of municipal betterment. These lectures were given in the largest theatre in the city, but toward the end there were nearly as many turned away as there were admitted.

The year previous Professor Zueblin took part in a civic revival in Grand Rapids, Mich. Not long ago he was invited to give a course of lectures on the "Religion of a Democrat" in Cambridge, Mass, and the assemblies grew in a few weeks from 300 to 1,100. The Cambridge Chronicle says: "It has been the fortune of few men to do in the last decade what Mr. Zueblin has done in stirring educational and civic organization to an appreciation of their power in the promotion of democratic culture and civic improvement."

MRS. WILLIAM DAGNALL PASSED AWAY TODAY

Mrs. William Dagnall, of 603 Richmond street, died this morning after a long illness from a lingering illness. She was a native of Ireland, but spent most of her life in this city. About three weeks ago she went to Beloit, Wis., where her son, Dr. Lawrence D. Doyle, had just opened an office for the practice of medicine. She remained there but a short time, owing to the poor state of the health of her son as well as that of her own, and she returned less than two weeks ago, accompanied by the doctor and her granddaughter, Miss May Breem. Since then she failed rapidly.

Mrs. Dagnall was well-known here, where she had a large number of relatives and friends. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. U. G. Force and Mrs. William F. Townley; one son, Dr. Lawrence D. Doyle and a granddaughter, Miss May Breem. The funeral services will be held from the late home Tuesday morning and also from St. Mary's church at a later hour to be announced Monday. The burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

PLAYLETS PRESENTED BY TALENTED AMATEURS

Russell Harden, of the faculty; Kathleen, a Celtic maiden, Miss Margaret L. Darby; Jonas, the Seminary "Man," Mr. David D. Smalley, Jr.

COURT PLACES BAN ON THE AIR RIFLES

Flobert and air rifles are to be tabooed in this city. Boys who have a predilection for taking shots at any animate thing they see will have to desist from the practice. Arthur Moore, of North Plainfield was arraigned this morning before City Judge William Runyon for having shot Elizabeth Harper and Sadie Mika, children who live on Manning avenue in the borough. Of course, Arthur had no intention of injuring the little girls, but it was providential that they were not seriously hurt.

Judge Runyon allowed the boy to go in charge of his father, who will in future prescribe the limits within which the air rifle may be fired. In the meantime all promiscuous shooters will be gathered in and their rifles confiscated. The shooting of any kind of arms in any public thoroughfare is prohibited by statute and the law will be enforced.

CURRENT HISTORY TALK BY MISS J. E. RICHARDS.

ELKS' MEMORIAL SERVICE

Solemn Exercises in Memory of the Dead to Be Held in Plainfield Theatre.

JUDGE RUNYON THE SPEAKER.

Seven Former Members to Be Memorialized—Special Music to Be Provided.

The Elks' Memorial service which will be held at the Plainfield Theatre tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, is the regular service appointed to be held in memory of dead members. This is one of the most solemn services of the order and undoubtedly will be largely attended. Seven members of the order are to be memorialized and special and appropriate music will be sung by a quartet of splendid singers. Judge William N. Runyon will deliver the memorial eulogy and Rev. William H. Neilson, D. D., will offer the prayer. The quartet engaged to sing is composed of Miss Ada B. Conner, soprano; Miss Cornelia Marvin, contralto; Lawrence Ripley, tenor; Townsend H. Fellows, baritone.

The first Sunday in each year is set apart by the order of Elks and dedicated as a day on which shall be commemorated by every lodge of this order in sacred session the memories of departed brothers. The ordr of the service is as follows: "The Day is gently sinking to a close," sung by the quartet, after which the usual ceremonies of the order will occur. Mr. Fellows will sing a baritone solo which will be followed by the singing of "Nearer My God to Thee," by the quartet and audience. Dr. Neilson's prayer will be followed by a soprano solo "Evening and Morning," sung by Miss Conner.

Judge Runyon's eulogy will follow the solo. This speech will surely be well worth hearing as the judge is famed for his oratorical ability and his intimate acquaintance with the order and the members who have died fits him peculiarly to deliver a most interesting and valuable sermon. Judge Runyon's speech will be followed by a contralto solo contributed by Miss Marvin. The quartet will sing Shelly's "Saviour When Night Involves the Skies" and the hymn "Abide with Me" will end the musical part of the service. The benediction will be pronounced by Rev. Dr. Neilson.

The members of the order desire it known that the service is open to the public and everybody will be welcome. The members to be memorialized are Daniel Detweiler, Herbert S. Taylor, Robert L. Thomas, Olin L. Jenkins, Herbert B. Brooks, Charles C. Burnet and Maze Edwards.

PROBATION CULPRITS DISMISSED BY COURT.

Probationers who have been reporting for the past six weeks to Judge Runyon, were told that their period of probation was over this morning and it is quite likely that the West End boys who have been subject to the good advice of the judge will remember their experience. One little colored boy, who was more severely dealt with, because of prevarication when there was no need for it, and who was fined three dollars, had his fine remitted by Judge Runyon because of the need of the family for the money.

MISS RANDOLPH WEDS ON TUESDAY, DEC. 21.

On the evening of Tuesday, December 21, Miss Josephine Fitz Randolph, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Fitz Randolph, will be married to Mr. Robert Spurr Weston, of Boston, at the residence of the bride's parents on East Front street. Mr. Weston is widely known and highly respected throughout the United States and in Europe as a sanitary engineer of high attainments and large clientele. He is a graduate of Amherst and of the Boston Institute of Technology.

Mr. Randolph to Lecture.

On Thursday evening, December 9, L. V. F. Randolph will deliver before the Y. M. C. A. at their hall, a lecture on historic and religious Egypt; and on Monday evening, December 13, he will lecture before the Men's Club of the First Baptist church, his subject being "From Jerusalem to Baal-Bek."

Karl Lehmann to Speak Here.

Karl Lehmann, the interstate field secretary of the Christian Endeavor Society, will speak at Warren chapel, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Mr. Lehmann spoke at the recent State Endeavor convention held in this city and made a favorable impression, and will doubtless be greeted by a large audience.

Jacob Pfaff, of this city, has been visiting relatives at North Branch.

SOMERVILLE.

The Bible Fellowship Club of the Second Reformed church, gave a most successful dinner in the chapel of the church Thursday evening. One hundred and fifty-seven covers were laid and the men had a most enjoyable time. The chapel was elaborately decorated with Christmas greens and a huge arch was over the tables. Mayor Charles C. Kenyon, president of the fellowship, presided and made the opening speech. He then introduced Rev. A. A. Pfanstiehl, pastor of the church, who acted as toastmaster. The speakers were Rev. A. J. Weisley, of Trenton; Rev. Fred Claire Baldwin, of East Orange; Rev. E. G. Read, of Plainfield, and Hon. S. S. Swackhamer, of Plainfield. The fellowship is a very prosperous organization.

Invitations were issued yesterday for the marriage of Miss Katherine Barcalow, daughter of Mrs. John Barcalow, of Altamont place, and George Cecil Hoffman. The ceremony will take place in the Second Reformed church, Tuesday, December 21, at 6:30 o'clock.

Rich Furs and Fur Coats for Xmas Wear

In purchasing furs every woman prefers to select them where assortments are most comprehensive; where qualities are dependable and prices most reasonable—conditions ever present in this store's showing.

Discriminating shoppers of this city, and for miles around, know this and also of the matchless values we offer, and in consequence—notwithstanding the mild weather—our fur business thus far is much in excess of any we have yet recorded.

We again admonish those who favor Black Furs, that the best time for buying—for Xmas needs—is NOW, while perfect choice and lowest prices are available.

CURED TO STAY CURED.

If you suffer from backache—
From urinary disorders—
From any disease of the kidneys,
Be cured to stay cured.

Doan's Kidney Pills make lasting cures.

Plainfield people testify.

Here's one case of it:

Mrs. J. Mottley, 546 West Sixth street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of kidney trouble three years ago and I have never had a return of it since. I am glad to confirm the public statement I gave in favor of this remedy at that time."

The endorsement to which Mrs. Mottley refers was given on August 26, 1905, and was substantially as follows: "About two months ago I was seized by a severe backache and dull pains in the top and back of my head. I could not rest well and had no strength or energy to do my housework. Doan's Kidney Pills which I procured at Randolph's drug store, gave me prompt relief and I am convinced that they are a first-class remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

CUPID'S CAPTIVE.

Dover, Dec. 4.—Alonzo Kimball was arraigned before Justice of the Peace John W. Young Thursday on a charge of stealing clothing from Turner & Co.'s store. He was released on $200 bail for his appearance at court. Kimball came to Dover from Newton about a month ago and took a position as clerk in Turner & Co.'s store. The proprietors missed a number of articles and suspicion pointed so strongly to Kimball's guilt that he was discharged. An inspection of the room in his boarding-house resulted in the finding of about $30 worth of goods. When Kimball learned that he was suspicioned he started to leave town, but Assistant Marshall Lindberg intercepted him at the Lackawanna station. Instead of sending for his Newton relatives to go on his bonds, Kimball hastily dispatched a messager for his sweetheart. She visited him in the local jail and after a brief interview she hurried home and got her father to go on his bond.

Foot Entangled in Rope Nearly Causes Her Death.

As a result of being dragged by a trolley car, Mrs. William Tevlin is in a serious condition in her home, 945 East Grand street, Elizabeth. It is said that her injuries may prove fatal. Mrs. Tevlin was crossing Broad and West Grand streets when her foot became entangled in the trollep rope. While she was disentangling her foot the car started ahead.

The woman was thrown to the ground and dragged several hundred feet before the car was brought to a standstill.

Engel Preparing a Reply.

Hudson Man Flies.

Tomorrow may dawn bright or stormy, but that won't hurt the feelings of Joseph Seiler, Bergenline avenue, Union Hill. He will not leave mother earth for good on the day named, but he will show just what a North Hudson man knows of aerial navigation. Seiler has built an airship, and he proposes to sail through and tear holes or blaze a trail through the atmosphere.

Conklin Asks Telegrapher to Send Message for Amount.

A well-dressed young man who said he was Roscoe Conklin was arraigned before Judge Mahon in Elizabeth yesterday on the technical charge of disorderly conduct. The young man went into the office of the Western Union Telegraph Company Thursday and said to the operator:

"I want you to click of a message for $1,000,000 to a firm in New York."

"What?" asked the telegrapher, in surprise.

"Come now, there is no reason why you should grow excited over the matter of a paltry million. Here, have a cigar. It may settle your nerves."

"Let me understand this," said the telegrapher. "Do you want to send a million or do you want the million sent to you?"

"Oh, the money is coming to me from a firm in New York," replied Conklin. "The firm doesn't mind a little thing like a million. Then, I need the money."

The telegrapher, however, thought it a case for the police, and Patrolman Healy was called. In court yesterday the man said he had been cutting down trees in Linden for telegraph poles."

He was requested to leave Elizabeth without delay.

WON'T FIGHT VICE.

Pastors Defeat Resolution to Begin a Crusade.

No concerted crusade against vice will be taken by the Ministers' Association in Elizabeth. This has been decided upon by the Ministers' Association. At Thursday's meeting to obey the laws governing or regulation was defeated:

"Resolved, That this association record its conviction that every pastor should visit all places of public entertainment in his parish and use his efforts both as a citizen and a moral teacher to compel proprietors to obey the laws governing or gerulating such places."

Almost to a man the pastors present opposed the passage of the resolution. The Rev. Mr. Atkinson, after he had presented it and before the discussion followed, explained at some length just what his interpretation of the resolution was. By "pastor," he said, he meant the head of each church of every denomination in the city, and that in his reference to places of public entertainment, he meant moving picture theatres, dance halls and saloons.

GRANTS MURDERER STAY.

Errors Court Will Review Case of Pietro Silverio.

Trenton, Dec. 4.—The Court of Errors and Appeals yesterday granted a rule for the filing of a writ of error carrying up for review the conviction of Pietro Silverio, the Passaic county murderer, who was to be executed in the State prison Monday.

The court also announced that the application for a rehearing of the writ of error under which the death sentence was pronounced upon Giovanni Maioni, the Mercer county murderer, was denied.

The court also refused a motion for a rehearing in the case of the Borough of Kenilworth against the State Board of Equalization of Taxes. This case involved the assessments levied by the local authorities in connection with the State school fund as against the amount allowed by the County Board of Taxation.

STARTS NOVEL SUIT.

Firm Wants Money Man Pays Employe on a Check.

D. Wolff & Co., of Perth Amboy, were plaintiffs in a novel suit against Thomas Shapiro, also of Perth Amboy, before Judge Lyon at New Brunswick yesterday afternoon. Walter Dey was formerly collector for the company and collected a bill of $88.47 from a man named Engleson and received a check. He took the check to Shapiro, endorsing it with the firm's name, and Shapiro cashed it. The check was deposited with the First National Bank of Carteret. D. Wolff & Co. claim that Dey became a defaulter and they did not receive the $88.47 and they claim that as Dey had no right to endorse their paper Shapiro is responsible to them for the money.

Pearls in Oyster Worth $150.

Atlantic City, Dec. 4.—Samuel Tyler, an insurance agent, silently anathematized a careless oyster dealer when he bit upon a hard substance during supper Wednesday night. His indignation vanished, however, when he examined what he supposed at first to be a piece of shell and found he had fallen heir to six small pearls, one the size of a buckshot and the others nearly as large as peas. Tyler took his find to a jeweler, who said his supper had netted him $150.

Jury Finds Duane Guilty.

After deliberating five hours, a jury at New Brunswick yesterday afternoon found James A. Duane, a contractor of Union Hill, guilty of forgery. He was charged with forging the name of A. S. Cornish, of Metuchen, to a note for $30 and securing the money. His defense was a complete denial.

TO RELIEVE POOR OF PERSONAL TAX.

Atlantic City, Dec. 4.—Senator Edward A. Wilson, of Atlantic City, announced last night his intention to present at the coming session of the Legislature a bill which, if it becomes a law, will relieve poor people in all parts of the State of the necessity of paying a tax on personal property which is worth $200 or less. The Senator has decided upon this step after conferences with the members of the board of city assessors, who have assured him the present law works a hardship upon many poor people.

During the last two weeks dozens of poor men have presented themselves before the County Board of Equalization and asked for a reduction upon their tax bills. In some instances where they have been taxed for $200 worth of personal property, they have said they would be glad if they could sell their goods for a little more than half that amount. Others taxed for less have made no plea, save that they are too poor to pay at the rate of $1.89 for each hundred dollars' worth of personal property for which they had been taxed by the assessors.

David R. Barret, one of the members of the City Board of Assessors, has taken the matter up several times with Senator Wilson, and he said that if it was not for violating his oath of office he would have assessed many people in his district for their personal property.

PASSAIC GIRL IS A TYPEWRITER WONDER.

Trenton, Dec. 4.—The most remarkable exhibition of speed typewriting ever seen in this city was given Thursday by Miss Florence E. Wilson, fifteen years old, of Passaic. The most remarkable of Miss Wilson's feats was when she wrote a memorized sentence at the speed of 199 words a minute, at the same time singing a song, the words of which had no reference to or connection with the sentence she was writing. Another wonderful performance was when she wrote 110 words a minute, with a single error, while she was asked all sorts of questions and answered them.

Miss Wilson attained the speed of 210 words a minute writing a memorized sentence without interruption. She copied new matter at the speed of 108 words a minute. From dictation, she took 99 words a minute.

BATTLES POLICE CHIEF.

Lundy Threatens O'Neill, Who Attempts to Arrest Him.

Standing in his bedroom, with a hammer in one hand and a screwdriver in the other, Charles Lundy threatened Chief of Police O'Neill, of Westfield, if that official entered his room. Chief O'Neill paid no attention to the threat, and, jumping upon his man, soon overpowered him and took Lundy to the police station, where he is being held awaiting charges for insulting several women on the street.

Lundy, it is said, followed two women last night for nearly an hour, and they notified the chief, who located Lundy, but he ran away. Chief O'Neill fired two shots in the air to stop Lundy and then gave chase.

WOMAN FOILS BURGLAR.

Seizes Revolver and Fires Shot Over Man's Head.

Trenton, Dec. 4.—Miss Ethel Donaher, daughter of Thomas P. Donaher, foiled a burglar early yesterday when the fellow invaded her home in West Front street. Hearing him walking about on the first floor of the house, the girl seized a revolver and started after him. On the stairs she met him ascending and commanded him to go back. He ignored the command and was about to grapple with her when she fired above his head. With that he dashed down the stairs and out of the door, which he had previously opened. The girl's shot aroused the neighborhood, but the burglar got safely away, leaving no clue to his identity.

OVERCROWDED SCHOOLS.

And Still Roselle Refuses to Erect New Building.

Just what to do with the children in the Roselle public schools is a question which is puzzling the trustees. The board recently asked the people to appropriate the sum of $15,000 for the erection of a new school south of Ninth avenue. The people voted against the new school at the rate of 2 to 1.

The trustees are now trying to devise some plan to relieve congestion in the schools, which began with a land boom a few years ago.

Deer Pursued, Dies of Fright.

Paterson, Dec. 4.—A doe, one of two deer that escaped from Eastside Park several days ago, was discovered by boys near the Bergen county line yesterday and chased into the yard of Harry Knight, a motorman, of Eleventh avenue. The doe evidently was exhausted from hunger and the fright from pursuit caused it to die as the pursuers arrived. Nothing has been seen of the other deer.

Find Negro's Body.

Princeton, Dec. 4.—The dead body of an unidentified negro was found lying along a roadside near here. The police believe the man died from natural causes.

Plain Field Notes and Queeries

By Druid

In our ancient Druidical boy days we were taught that listening to the conversation of strangers was the depth of bad manners. Be that as it may, nowadays one simply can't help hearing the merry chatter of the sweet creatures who screech their confidential exchanges right into the ears of those sitting immediately in front of them, despite the rumble and clatter of the train from New York. And prettily interesting it is sometimes. This, for instance:

* * * *

"If you could marry next week, Amie
What sort of a man would you choose?"
"Well, I know the kind I would seek, Mamie,
But the next best I wouldn't refuse!"

"Now, if I'd my choice, he should have a good voice,
An elegant figure—and know how to show it,
Be a Browningite too, (I'm a bit of a blue),
And writer, not poet, no, not if I know it;
Have a broad English accent; a fortune in reason,
And must take me to Paris and London each season."

"Well, the man I shall choose must have wits, and be graced
With good temper, good manners, (good looks all the better)
Have lofty ideas, but be simple in taste,
He needn't write books, but a jolly love letter;
Rich or poor I should never be anxious to roam
From my throne as the queen of his kingdom of home!"

"Mamie dear, we must just take the best we can get."

* * * *

Every morning in the year the New York papers outvie each other in demonstrating how badly the country is out of repair. Here it's all crooked, there everything has gone wrong, the wicked rich are not yet jailed, but the poor dear murderers and maimers throng the dungeons, without hope of release in spite of their bouquet-bearing sympathies. Even the distinguished group of martyrs who have been sentenced to nine several deaths, as if they were tomcats, are begrudged their twentieth appeal for pardon. The daily exhibits of Gotham's choice variety of public sins and civic iniquities rather palls on our jaded senses. If all is true nothing short of a quake that will send the skyscrapers down with a rattle can possibly do justice to the city. Of course it would spare the tall-talk newspaper buildings because of their virtue in telling on their neighbors and patrons.

* * * *

But there's a grand cure-all coming. Somebody this side of Jordan is going to have it sent down at once from the place where all blessings flow. We are going to get a House of Governors—think of that! They will be inspired "to lessen the power of the federal government (centralisation), and to increase the power of the States." The House of Governors will be the semi-divine megaphone through which the Senate and House of Representatives will hear with both ears the vox populi in grim earnest. Then they will easily make us "a Stronger Nation." Nay, Tuesday's New York Times pitches a higher key, winding up its No. 2 editorial thus: "Paul planted, Apollos watered. The House of Governors should give the increase." Doesn't it seem odd that while the more blatant vox populi of England are crying "Down with the House of Lords," the very latest evolution of genteel progress in this republic should startle its stalwart people with the slogan: "Up with the American House of Lords!" For as the work of Governors is to govern, this new house is put up to lord it over the Senate and Lower House, to sit on our representatives and boss our bosses.

* * * *

The mere killing of twenty-seven fine young fellows in this young season's college football matches is, one has to suppose, too, trivial an argument against the insane brutality encouraged because it pays as a holiday spectacle for a Christian public. Perhaps the appeal to vanity may have more force. Ordinary folk don't much care to play the fool in public. In Druidical days of old we used to be content to work at our play as rational creatures. We tried our best to win but when we lost we never felt it a thing to be ashamed of, we never crept behind trees to blubber like babies because we were licked. Much less did we dream of scheming to maim our opponents, just to save our childish sense of glory. No. We went into the game to play, not to fight, and, what's more to the point, we kicked the ball, not our friends, the enemy. But now the rule is to kick everybody anywhere, and then scoot away cuddling the ball.

* * * *

As a rule sacred Cantatas, which are short Oratorios, are too ambitious for the technical skill of an average good church choir, a voluntary choir. For myself any ordinarily qualified volunary choir is preferable to the finest professional quartette—if the true spirit of congregational worship is considered. The one is natural service, the other artistic, therefore strictly artificial, and presumably less appropriate in churches. Why commercialize the higher things? The Harvest Thanksgiving in the First Baptist church last Sunday evening was on the whole the most admirable and completely satisfying musical service of its kind the writer recalls from an extensive experience. The composer's name, De Ferris Tozer, was not familiar, but above the fine scholarly and ever melodious music of his cantata, "The Two Harvests," was noticeable his perfect grasp of conditions mostly ignored in these matters. The music is interpretative throughout, it is written within easy reach of such excellent choirs as can be collected in almost any large church, it also exactly hits the golden mean between the dignified plainsong which should be the glory of the churches, and the more ornate compositions which rightly belong to great church edifices and oratorio concerts. The whole piece was right well sung, soloists and the choruses rose to the inspiring music, and the organist must be praised for his rare restraint in subordinating his instrument to its proper use. The composer needs no apology for frankly modelling his final chorus, "And they shall reign for ever and ever on Handel's mighty Halleujah Chorus." Here imitation is indeed the noblest homage.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY VOTES $102,000 FOR GOOD ROADS.

The Middlesex County Board of Freeholders Thursday voted to borrow $25,000 in anticipation of the sale of $102,000 worth of bonds on January 10, 1910, the money to be used to pay for new county roads.

The report of County Collector H. Raymond Groves showed the balance on hand November 1 to be $15,613.74; receipts during November, $67,760.63;; disbursements, $58,406.12.

Some law may be found whereby the county board can transfer sufficient funds to pay all the election bills. The $12,000 that was appropriated last January is insufficient, the constitutional amendment election adding $7,000 to the expense.

The board voted to pay the district election boards and ont the other expenses for printing ballots, legal advertising, etc. The new Democratic board will have to provide for this in the new budget on January 1.

The thoroughfares to be improved are: Trenton turnpike, Kingston lane, Plainsboro and Cranbury road, Cranbury and South River turnpike, Deans and Franklin Park road, Helmetta and Spotswood road, Jamesburg and Helmetta road, Milltown road, Perth Amboy and Keasby road, Seventh street, New Market; Jefferson avenue and Somerset streets.

CHURCH WROTE BIBLE

Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 3, 1909.
Editor, The Daily Press:

May I be allowed space to add a few words to what was said by the Rev. Father Bogan in regard to the relation of the Church to the Bible in your Thursday night's issue. He well says that the Church has ever been the "guardian and depository of the Bible" and that far from suppressing it. She has been particularly zealous in perpetuating it.

I think, however, that his argument would have been much further strengthened if he had carried his history further back than the fourth century and shown what a good many people seem to forget or never to have learned, namely, that the Church wrote the Bible, in the New Testament portion of it. Our Lord had founded the Church and she had been in corporate existence for about twenty-five years before a word of the New Testament was written. At that time in order that the facts of our Lord's life and teaching might not become confused or some of them lost sight of, certain of the great leaders or officers of the church (among the two of Our Lord's apostles) set down in order an account of these things.

In addition to these accounts of Christ's life we have also the other books of the New Testament also written by the church's ordained officers, containing a history of the early church doctorinal teaching exhortations, and last of all a revelation of final things. All these books (written in the Greek language, which previous to Latin, was the universal language of the then known world and also the language of the Church) were written for and read to the people from the first century onward by the Church herself. Any argument therefore that the Church is opposed to the reading of Scripture to the people or opposed to the people reading it themselves is on historical grounds untenable. For she certainly would not have written, read and delivered into the hands of the people something she did not want them to know of and possess. Finally let me say that I state these few facts simply in the interest of historical accuracy and without any personal feeling in the matter whatsoever.

Adding in conclusion that I think nothing is to be gained by Christians (of whatsoever name) making public pronouncements of condemnation upon one another's beliefs, especially their belief about the sacred Scriptures which are loved and reverenced by Christians the world over and ought to lead them to paths of peace rather than paths of discord.

AS TO PURE FOOD.

New York, Dec. 3, 1909.
Editor, The Daily Press:

I saw in your November 29th issue that Mrs. Wm. Vanderveer was made ill by partaking of food in which poisonous ptomaines had developed. It is certainly appalling to learn how rapidly ptomaine poisoning cases have increased since the enforcement of the Pure Food Law. According to press dispatches there have been in the United States, since the enforcement of this law, 16,793 cases of ptomaine poisoning, 597 of which were fatal. Prior to the enactment of the Pure Food Law borax and boron compounds were used on meat, fish, fowl, sausage, oysters, etc., consequently such food, which readily becomes contaminaed, was kept in an hygenic, healthful condition.

The Pure Food Law compels truthful labels on all articles, packages or containers of food. A truthful label, however, upon meat, fish, fowl, sausage, oysters, etc., will not prevent them from spoiling, so that conditions are favorable for the propagation of poisonious germs. Thus, while the Pure Food Law compels truthful labels, it does not, on account of prohibiting preservatives, insure that food will reach the consumer in a pure, healthful condition; neither does the label prevent perishable articles of food from deteriorating, when in the consumer's hands, so as to become a menace to health and life.

The authorities should realize the above facts, and amend the laws so as to permit the use of modern noninjurious preservatives on all articles of food that favor the propagation of poisonous germs.

Yours very turly,
H. L. HARRIS.

MAYOR SIGNS THE TROLLEY MEASURE.

Hoboken, Dec. 4.—Mayor George Steil yesterday signed the resolution passed by the Common Council, a month ago, permitting the Public Service Corporation to construct a bridge and loop for trolley cars over Hudson place to connect with the elevated terminal being built.

As soon as the Mayor signed the resolution he notified Chief of Police Patrick Hayes of his action and directed him to withdraw the police that have been on duty at the place where the proposed bridge is to be erected for three weeks.

The police were called in by the chief and Lawrence Fagan, the contractor in charge of the work, immediately begun preparations to construct the bridge and loop. Work upon it will begin today or Monday and it will be pushed day and night.

THE BUTTON CROP.

We are told that while the button crop is fairly large the button is to be indulged in with reason. Common sense may not always sway the millinery world, but it should at least enter a protest, with the dressmakers' sanction, against the excessive use of the irrelevant button.

The pockets and cuffs of the year may prove so compelling that we will gladly welcome the munber of buttons they demand.

All those French fashions extending over a long period of years upheld the decorative button on lapel and sleeve and pocket. They permitted the requisite number for fastening, with a few odd ones thrown in but they did not encourage the profligacy that has been our portion during the last few months.

There seems to have been no French excuse, either modern or medieval, for the loading down of the princess panel with contrasting buttons, and we will hope that the incoming girdle around the waist will at least have the effect of stopping the onward rush of the front panel buttons.

Somewhat Cheaper.

"Is it so that you need to call regularly on that girl?"

"Yes; she always sang a song to me that I loved.

"Why didn't you marry her?"

"I found I could buy the song for 50 cents."—The Circle.

"THAT BILL HAS BEEN PAID."

You may say with absolute certainty That bill has been paid when you have a Bank Account and pay your bills by check." No creditor will dispute the evidence of a cancelled check, made payable to his order. In order to get the money on that check he must endorse it, or in other words, put his name on the back of it.

With this in your hand you have a "Receipt" that is good in any Court—BANK NOTES.

Sundays in England

No. 1—At Wells.

By Rev. Charles L. Goodrich

Between Clovelly in Devonshire and Wells in Somerset the contrast is very marked. One is a fishing village perched on the steep sides of a ravine; the other is a cathedral town, with the finest group of ecclesiastical buildings in England. The skies wept with us when we mounted the box seats of the tally-ho to leave behind us the lovely Devon coast, taking with us the memory of nature in her fairest face. But they smiled again as we continued our circuitous journey toward Wells whose cathedral was drawing us. It was as though we had been absorbing all that we could contain of nature's lavish gifts and had reached the limits of our expressions of delight, and now we were turning to another side of our being and the wonderful conceptions of men, worked out in columns and arches and pinnacles of stone, were to give us equal pleasure and inspiration.

You must not be in too much of a hurry when you wish to go to Wells. Howells remarks: "Even the most conservative person will admit that the train service thither leaves something to be desired." It is a common saying in Wells itself that three railroads make it difficult to get there, and four would make it impossible.

One place on the route thither, however, one need not wish to be hurried past, that is Glastonbury, five miles away. If we had only visited it on a Sunday, instead of a Monday, so that it could have legitimately have come into the theme this evening, a Sunday in Wells, the theme would have been richer. For with legend and poetry, romance and history, the past of Glastonbury is very rich. That was the mystic Isle of Avalon that figures so frequently in song and story. Lovers of Idyls of the king will remember that there according to one legened, King Arthur and Queen Guinevere were buried.

Tradition goes back still farther than King Arthur's days in the sixth century and affirms that Joseph of Arimathea thirty years after the death of Christ, came there bearing with him the cup with which our Lord instituted the sacrament, the "Holy Grail," for which the knigh's of the Round Table afterwards sought so earnestly, and that on a certain hill at Glastonbury he thrust the thorn staff into the ground while he sat down to rest; that the staff took root and grew to a tree that endured till modern times, and had the strange property of blooming at Christmas time instead of in May. We climbed the hill and found a bit of a thorn tree lying upon the ground, which we should be glad to think was some distant descendant of the original; for Joseph of Arimathea was one of the two men who stood friends to Jesus Christ when all other men had forsaken him. I should be glad to believe that he once stood on English soil.

But if that is too difficult of belief, this at least one may take as historical, that there was built in the very earliest days of Christianity in England a little church of wattles, the first church erected in England of which we have any knowledge. Other churches succeed the little wattled church, larger and larger, until there stood there one of the most magnificent abbeys of the mediaval times, rich, powerful it continued through many centuries wielding great influence, till Henry the Eighth.

At Winchester were the beginning of English history and English literature, but at Glastonbury was the beginning of the English church life.

So one need not be too anxious to hurry past. Still Wells is our destination. Glastonbury's glory is in ruins, that of Wells still abides. Nothing is left of the once stately abbey but mouldering walls and the aroma of ancient fame; but the cathedral still stands majestic amid its accompanying buildings within its green close, approached through ancient gates, and dominating the quiet old town. There it has stood for many centuries and seems likely to stand for as many centuries more.

In fact, when one studies the lofty and imposing western front one can almost believe that this facade which bears upon itself in sculpture the history of all the Old Testament ages from creation down, will itself endure to witness the history of all future ages, so stately is it.

A cathedral, you know, is not simply a large church. It is not so called because of its architectural excellence; but simply because it has in it the Bishop's seat, the cathedra, and is, therefore, the center of a diocese. That first gives them their importance, but naturally they were made the especially elaborate and large compared with other churches. To some they are not especially interesting, but as Mrs. Dorr says: "There are others to whom they have so much to say that it is overpowering. For them every stone has a voice, every aisle has a message. The great sombre towers bring them strength and healing; the soaring spires lift them above earth and its weariness to an atmosphere where all is peace." Whether architecture appeals to one or not, one would have to be indifferent to history and to Christianity, not to admit the impressiveness and significance of these cathedrals. In the Dark Ages, when there were no distinctions of Romanists and Protestants, no divisions of sects; but when the world was divided into just two vast armies—Heathendom and Christendom; and abbot and bishop, priest and vicar were mail clad knights fighting the battles of the latter. These were the fortresses and bulwarks of Christianity.

So did they help mould and shape the future for us, so are we their debtors. So are they objects of interest to every Anglo Saxon Christian. And, surely, he world be very dull of spirit who could approach and linger about these "mighty towers, gray with the touch of centuries," and not feel some swelling of the heart.

It is not the cathedral alone that interests one at Wells, the adjacent buildings also are unusually attractive. It is the group of the finest in England, which make Wells famous, not the cathedral itself, which is neither one of the largest or richest.

There is the Bishop's Palace for instance, surrounded by an ancient, with a moat kept full of water by streams from the springs within the grounds, which gave Wells its name, which have never ceased to flow, with its drawbridge, and portcullis guarding the massive gateway. All these reminding us of the old days of violence and terrors. Within the walls are gardens which some declare are the most beautiful in England; there is a yew-tree one thousand years old there are ruins of what was once the largest banqueting hall in England; there are lawns and vines and colorings of flowers and grass and foliage and old walls, to make one cry out with the joy of them; there one may walk along the old wall looking out on the country at intervals through cross-shaped slits, through which arrows could be sent in defense in the old days. And all the while, the great, gray walls of the cathedral and its lofty pinnacled towers, rise up over you, and keep attracting the eyes as you wander about, exclaiming constantly at some new beauty or some new angle of vision.

The ancient yew tree within the walls can scarcely be much more ancient than the long row of elms outside the wall, arching the path along the moat on the western side. I have seen many great elms, but this is the most notable row I have ever seen. All of them are huge in bulk, massive in limb, and bear every mark of great age. In many of them, ten or twelve feet up from the ground where former branches had been broken off by long ago storms, new shoots had started, either from grafts or because the tree was determined to repair the damage; and these tower up straight and large like new trees beginning at that height. So the long row was preserving its majestic arch. They must be as old as the cathedral or older. We of New England are proud of the elms of our native land. Wells were ancient before there was any New England. Just the trees of Wells are worth taking a journey to see and the trees of England are worth a journey aeross the Atlantic to see,—even for a poor sailor. They are wonderful, they are fascinating.

Wells has something for the children as well as the elders.

There is a great clock built by a Glastonbury monk centuries ago, which at the hour sends wooden figures through various evolutions on the inside of the cathedral, and on the outside face of the clock, knights in armor strike the quarter hours day and night with blows of their halberds upon bells.

Besides this there are swans constantly swimming about upon the moat of the Bishop's palace and at certain times, when they are hungry they reach up to a bell-pull near the entrance gate and ring the bell; thereupon food is thrown to them. they were hungry when we watched them. They are sometimes, however, to the delight of children and adults also.

The Vicar's Close, too, deserves special mention.

It meant more to us than the Bishop's palace, for we lodged there, not in the palace.

We did not know what pleasure was in store for us when we bade the driver take up to an address which a friend had given us, 23 Vicars' Close. We were too ignorant to know that it meant a part of the ecclesiasastical group about the cathedral. So we were surprised when the carriage clattered through a grim old gateway toward the Chain Gate, and let us down in a narrow street, between two most picturesque rows of buildings, all of the same style of ecclesiastical architecture, all with the evidence of antiquity about them, all with their vines or bright flowers relieving the gray of the walls, all with their quaint chimneys adorned with shields of long dead bishops. And when we found that we could have apartments in one of these ancient and classic houses, that we could have three rooms and private service and delicious meals, with all this antiquity and romance thrown in, for six shillings a day, we felt too youthful and exurberant in spirit to suit the environment.

So on the Sunday morning we opened our eyes in a quaint old house, whose walls were two feet thick, whose stairway and lower floor were of stone, whose date went back to twelve hundred and something. It gave one from such a youthful land as ours, a land which had not even been dreamed of at that date, a strange feeling to be lodging there. In America we call a house that has been built a hundred and fifty years a very old house. But this house was one hundred and fifty years before Columbus was born.

At a little before eleven we set out for the service at the cathedral we entered by a relatively low, small door, made to remind one of the "strait and narrow way," and passed in to the spacious and ornate interior, treading where the steps of twenty generations of worshippers had worn grooves in the solid stone flaggings of the pavement of the aisles. There we bowed in worship where men had bowed in prayer under this roof or earlier ones for more than twelve centuries.

About us was the glorious beauty of the nave, with its nine piers clusters of redlike shafts the capitals enriched with exquisite carvings of bird and leaf and flower. Above the pier arches ran the deep triforium, with its slender columns of Purbeck marble. Up, up, up, springing lightly from the arches of the triforium, soared the loafty vaulted roof. Down the length of the nave beyond the strange inverted arch were the richly colored lights of the far eastern window. Surely there are sermons in stones for even a dull soul. One of them is this, one that does not come at first, but as you go about and study the fine carving, and see that in every obscure place as well as in the prominent places, every boss and capital is as carefully and perfectly as in the nave, the lesson the poet has worded is repeated:

In the older days of art
Builders wrought with greatest care
Each minute and unseen part,
For the God sees everywhere.

The singing was the feature of the service. The singing vicars, who with the boys make up the choirs in the cathedrals, are picked singers from all over England, have life positions, and sing remarkably well. They dwell in the Vicar's Close. Our host was one of them. He told us in the afternoon of one of their number, who was the most famous church singer in the Kingdom. He had sung at the funeral of William the Fourth, at the coronation of Queen Victoria, at her Jubilee, at the funeral and at the coronation of Edward the Seventh. Though over ninety years of age, he had only recently ceased to sing in the choir. Yes, the music tended to devotion. But now I come to something disappointing, to something perhaps better left unsaid. They are not as thoughtful of strangers there as at Clovelly, they gave us no prayer books. Perhaps it could not have occured to any official of that diocesan church that any one could be travelling without a prayer-book. I am afraid we did not get as much from that service as we should have if we had had books. I am afraid we did not find it as easy to worship there or be in as spiritual a frame as we did the Sabbath before, in the little country church. The intoning was poor and jarred upon us; the words could not be understood; the reading of the lessons could not be heard; the sermon preached by a saintly, scholary dean could be heard only in fragments, and what was heard was inspiring. I am reluctent to say that I was too much in the mood of the dissenter that morning. I could but feel as I sat there, this is not a service to match these surroundings, this is not the kind of service to draw men to religion; this is not the kind of service to win the young to religious ways or hold them to the church of God or inspire them to Christian activities. And I thrilled to think that my spiritual ancestors had left this and had discerned that the world needed something else, something with more fire of the Holy Ghost, something more warm and vital and natural than all this; and that then they had had the courage to break away from all this art and magnificensce and hoary custom, and state authority and go forth to stand for a more spiritual and practical mode of religious and church life. All honor to them, for seeing that great need of the world and daring to sacrifice to further it. You do not realize what heroism and sacrifice it meant until you go among the magnificent monuments and ancient customs of the old established order of things which at once became their enemies and persecutors and honestly enough too.

Of course I recognize how different the English church is now from what it was in the days of the Separtist revolt, and admit also that we happened in upon an exceptionally uninteresting service. Nevertheless, at 6:30 we turned our backs on the great cathedral, upon all its storied past, its art, its grandeur, its income from many estates, and sought out the Congregational church. It was in a poor part of the town, close to the people who need an earnest Gospel. It was an unimposing building. The interior had no artistic pretensions. The service was plain. There was no famous singer. But the sermon, in thought, in imagination, in the choice of words, in tone, in the eloquence of the melodious voice, in spiritual earnestness, amazed us.

There in that unadorned place of worship was a spiritual power to lay hold upon heart and soul and lift to the higher life.

I admire the great in architecture. I thrill with the sense of the past in historic buildings. I delight in the beauty and sublimity of architecture and appreciate the orderly and stately in worship, and have my reverence for ancient customs; and yet these are not enough for the spiritual needs of men; these are not enough with which to win men to religion; more than all these is spiritual power, the truth, the Christ message in a Christ-filled soul. The contrast between those two services impressed this fact forcibly upon me. For any church, architecture, art, wealth, prestige, established position and authority, ancient customs, orderly ways and fine music, are not enough.

The one most essential thing is spiritual earnestness in the message and work of Jesus Christ. For any individual, the acceptance of old customs, of a creed, of inherited ways, the observance of orderly forms of worship, are not enough; as possession of culture and good manners is not enough; the essential for every individual is the warm touch of the soul with Jesus Christ, spiritual earnestness through vital personal relation with him. Thank God for all that art and wealth and established ways and social position and power can furnish to help the kingdom and help us all; but after all it is spiritual earnestness, the devotion of the soul to Jesus Christ and His work which is most important.

The Chorus Lady

By JAMES FORBES

Novelized From Forbes' Play of the Same Name by JOHN W. HARDING

Copyright, 1908, by G. W. Dillingham Company.

CHAPTER II.

"SELP me bob, d'yer mean that, Shrimp?"

The Duke—recorded in the register of births of the parish of Marylebone, London, as plain William Perkins, but favored with his exalted title by the other stable boys of the Mallory quarters—dropped the sponge with which he had been performing the morning toilet of one of his thoroughbred charges and drew himself up to the full height of his five feet nothing as he gazed at his fellow helper with incredulous indignation.

"I mean jest what I said," responded the Shrimp, otherwise James Mitchell, who claimed Newark, N. J., as his natal city. "If she don't pay me them five bones by Saturday I'll ask the old 'oman for 'em."

"I s'y," remonstrated the Duke, aghast, "yer wouldn't split on the gal?"

"Sure's yer born!" declared the Shrimp complacently.

"But—"

"There ain't no buts about it. Didn't she bet me yer mount 'd win in de trial spin, and didn't she lose? An' if I'd 'a' lost, wouldn't she have wanted her five plunks? Of course. An' I want mine, an', what's more, I'm goin' to have de money. She might 'a' knowed yer couldn't ride a horse an' that she'd lose anyhow."

"Me not ride an 'orse!"

"That's what I said. Take my tip, Dook, de next time we has a race don't get on its back; get inside."

The Duke at this deadly insult reddened to the tip of his little turned up nose, and his fists closed convulsively, but he restrained himself.

"Hi'll be winnin' the Futurity or the Derby when you're scrapin' a canal moke," he said.

Then, reverting to the subject of their conversation, he continued insinuatingly:

"That 'ere bet weren't serious; it wus on'y a lark, yer know, Shrimp."

"Lark nothin'! It was a bet fair an' square, and I wants me money."

"But Miss Nora's daown the pan. She ain't got it. She told yer so."

"She can't, ain't she! D'yer believe that dope, yer bughouse? Because she ain't it's up to her to get it. That's all."

"Well," commented the Duke disgustedly, "I allus knowed you wus several kinds o' things, but I never thought you wus a bloomin' sneak."

"I don't see what youse want ter butt in fer anyway," declared the Shrimp, waxing angry in turn. "It ain't none o' your funeral. Why don't yer pay it yerself if you're so blamed anxious about it? I wouldn't believe dat girl under oath. She can't have me fer no sucker."

"When you speaks of a lydy before me—henny lydy, d'y' 'ear?—you speak respeckful," commanded the Duke, with dangerous dignity and quietness.

"Nora a lady? Aw, come off! Yer gives me de willies wid yer airs," retorted the Shrimp. "I have a hunch you're stuck on her, yer chump."

The idea seemed to tickle him.

"Stuck on Nora! Oh, lor'! Look who's stuck on her," he chuckled. "The Dook in love an' stuck on Nora!"

And he burst into a roar of uncontrollable laughter.

"Strike me dead! You s'y thet ag'in an' I'll pull yer boko," said the Duke, going over to him menacingly.

The next moment a young girl entered the stable. It was plain from her demeanor that she was not pleased.

"You boys are a perfect nuisance," she complained. "I've been calling you the last ten minutes. Breakfast's been ready for an hour."

"Oh, all right!" he growled.

Further argument was prevented by the advent of Mallory, accompanied by Mr. Crawford and O'Brien.

"Fur hiv'n's sake, but I thought you bhoys was at brikfast long ago," said O'Brien. "Ye'd bitter git over to the house at wanst, or it's precious little ye'll be gittin', I'm afther thinking."

The boys slipped out, and Nora would gladly have followed them, but her father stopped her.

"Me daughter, Mr. Crawford, sor; me daughter, Nora," he explained, his honest, ruddy face beaming with pride.

Crawford, with easy politeness, doffed his hat.

"I am awfully pleased to meet you, Miss Nora," he said in a soft, low voice, adding, "You are very fortunate to have such a charming daughter, Mr. O'Brien."

The old man regarded the visitor with a dubiousness which was quickly succeeded by positive disapproval. He did not like this sudden change from the brisk business manner with which Crawford had previously comported himself, and somehow the man's intonation and attitude jarred upon him, struck a discordant note in his heart.

As to Nora, encouraged by the unaccustomed gentleness and courtliness of speech, the girl ventured to look at him, and as timidly she held out her hand and he clasped it with a warm pressure she encountered his gaze of mingled amusement and admiration.

Nora's eyes were large and dark and expressive. Crawford thought he had never seen any more beautiful. But they were not by any means the girl's only charm. She was distinctly pretty, with small, regular features and a blush rose complexion which her dark hair, worn in a braid down her back, set off to the best possible advantage. Although barely seventeen, she was well developed, and her plain cotton dress, white, with thinned stripes, was becoming in its very simplicity. In a word, she looked just what she was—a sweet, naive country lassie.

"I'm sure we shall be good friends," he said encouragingly.

"Y-yes, sir," she stammered, reddening still deeper, and, hastily withdrawing her hand, she made her escape.

* * * * * * *

In the spacious living room of the trainer's house, which served the purpose of kitchen and dining room, the Duke and his enemy, the Shrimp, sat at the table disposing, with ravenous appetite, of the good things provided for the first repast of the day by Mrs. O'Brien. Nora, still excited and jubilant, was serving them, and as she flitted lightly about from dresser to stove and from stove to table she cast complacent glances at herself whenever she passed a small mirror that hung on the wall. The Duke followed her movements with sheepish, adoring eyes. The Shrimp bent sullenly over his plate, intent only on what was upon it.

"Might I trouble you for a little more of that 'ash, Miss Nora?" asked her admirer, with about the deference with which he would have addressed the queen of England.

"No, you might not," snapped Nora. "And you needn't make googoo eyes at me either. I have no use for you any more."

"I ain't to blyme. I couldn't 'elp it," pleaded the boy, who cared nothing about a further helping of hash, but did care a very great deal to retain Nora's good graces.

"I'm sure it was your fault, and I'll never speak to you again for getting me into this trouble," the girl insisted.

"Hindeed, it wusn't," he assured her humbly. "As I've already explyned, Shrimp 'ere on Ginger crowded me into the deep goin' on the ry'ls, an' Lydy Belle didn't like it."

"It's a lie!" shouted the Shrimp fiercely. "It was a fair race, an' I wants me money."

"Then you'll have to wait for it," said Nora decisively.

"I needs the coin, an' I won't stand for no welchin'."

"Haven't I always paid you?"

"Yer kep' me waitin' t'ree months de last time, and it was like drawin' a tooth to get it out'n yer, and that was on'y a dollar."

Nora began to cry, and the Duke shifted uneasily in his chair. His whole love and sympathy went out to her, standing there in tears, and he would have given worlds to be able to fold her in his arms and help and comfort her.

"Wisht I could lend you the money," he sighed regretfully, "but I can't. I ain't got a 'y'penny in the world—not a 'y'penny. Couldn't you write to your sister, Patsy, an' ask 'er to 'elp you aout?"

"I wouldn't dare to. I promised her the last time I wouldn't ever bet again," she sobbed, becoming reconciled to him for his sympathy.

"What t'ell," broke in the Shrimp, almost choking himself with a piece of bread in his disgust. "'if there's one thing I hates it's seein' a goil sniv'lin' an' doin' de baby act. What I wants ter know is do I get me five dollar bet or do I tell"—

"Phwat's that about a bet? Who's bin winnin' foive dollars?"

The questioner, an elderly and somewhat stout person, was Mrs. O'Brien, who had entered with a can of milk.

"Ah! And who off a?"

She glanced suspiciously at Nora, who was trying to get rid of the traces of her weeping without attracting attention, while the Duke, with furtive but expressive pantomime was menacing the Shrimp with awful consequences if he dared to betray the girl.

"Phwat are yez cryin' for. Is it bettin' ag'in ye've been up to?" she demanded.

"Me? I'd like to know where I'd get $5?" replied Nora evasively.

"Faith, an' so would Oi!" agreed her mother. "But phwat are yez cryin' for thin?"

"I'm not crying. It was something in my eye," she prevaricated.

The Duke, much relieved, hastened to change the subject.

"Search me!" responded the Shrimp.

"Him?" said Mrs. O'Brien, with the air of importance of one who knows. "He's Mister Crawford, Mister Mallory's partner, so yez had bitter be on yir bist behavior whin he's around. He won't stand for anny foightin', Oi kin tell ye."

Then, her curiosity getting the better of her, she asked:

"Phwat loike a lookin' man is he?"

"Fair lookin', if you likes 'em big an' mushy," said the Duke. "But most wimmin' Hi've known 'as preferred 'em small an' jaunty."

Nora tossed her head contemptuously.

"I think he's real handsome," she declared.

"Did yez see him yit?" questioned her mother surprised.

"Yes, I did," said Nora proudly, "and I spoke to him too. He's a real gentleman and took off his hat to me."

"Took his hat off to yez? For hiv'n's sake!" ejaculated the old woman.

At this moment the door opened, and O'Brien entered.

"Still at it, are yez?" he said as he hung up his cap behind the door. "Be the look av things it's looky Oi'm here, or it's no brikfast I'd be havin'."

"The 'ash is uncommon fine, sir," volunteered the Duke. "Could I trouble you, Mrs. O'Brien?"

O'Brien took the outheld plate and deposited it on the table.

"Yez has had enough an' to spare. Begone with the lot ov yez!" he commanded.

"Patrick, Oi'm surproised at ye!" exclaimed his spouse, intervening with a motherly air. "Phwat's the hurry? L'ave the poor darlin's have their fill."

"All roight, wolfe," assented O'Brien resignedly, and he seated himself at the table, while Nora hastened to pour out his coffee. After awhile, however, he said as though it had just occurred to him:

"Oh, mother, Danny and Mr. Crawford's goin' to step in on their way from the stables for a cup av yir coffee. They'll be here in a minute."

The woman gazed at him in wrathful astonishment, and her demeanor underwent an entire transformation.

"It's a wonder yez wouldn't say so instid of kaping it to yirsilf all this toime," she said witheringly. "Here, you bhoys, skedaddle, the lot av ye. Do yez want to sit 'atin' here all day?"

And she waved them toward the door with a peremptory gesture, which they lost no time in obeying. Nora already, at the announcement of the coming of Crawford, had vanished upstairs.

"Now, you, Nora, clear off the dishes, an' you, too, Patrick. Don't be talkin' an' watchin' me do all the wurruk," went on the mistress of the house, although her husband, putting on his knees so as to make room the plate she had given him, had opened his mouth to say a word. "Nora! No-ra! Drat the girl! She's upstairs primpin' ag'in. She does nothin' else the livelong day, Oi declare!"

His better half turned upon him with icy dignity.

"When Oi need yir advoice about me own choild, Oi'll ax ye for it," she said. "Here, give this a twist while yir oidlin'."

"Can't yez l'ave her alone?" she asked scornfully. "It's the queer girl she'd be entoirely if she didn't want to spruce up a bit whin a strange young man comes eallin'."

But Nora had responded to her father's summons and came down hooking the waistband of her skirt.

"I never saw such a place," she grumbled. "A person can't even get time to dress in this house. What do you want now?"

"Here, groind this coffee," ordered her father.

"Groind it yirsilf, Patrick," interposed his wife sharply. "I want Nora to set the table for Mister Crawford."

Nora, however, was in no mood for docile obedience. She was harboring what she imagined, especially since she had seen the gentlemanly stranger from New York, to be a trying grievance and was bent on airing it.

"I'm sick and tired of it," she declared.

"Sick an' toired of phwat?" queried her mother, stopping and eying her, her arms akimbo, while the girl sullenly went on getting the clean cups and saucers.

"Of this work," said the girl.

"An' why shouldn't ye wurruk, Oi'd loike to know? Ye're a wurrukin' man's daughter. Oi wurruk. An' doan't yir sister wurruk, poor girl?"

"Oh, ye would, would ye? An' who d'ye think 'u'd give yez a job on the stage? An' why would yez think yez was cut out to be an actress? Sure, yez can't sing or dance like Patricia. She takes after me, while ye're the livin' spit of yir father."

"I'm lots prettier than she is," asserted Nora, with a pout, as she shot a rapid glance at herself in the mirror.

"Prettier, indade!" cried her mother, raising her hands. "There ye go ag'in, loike yir father. Both of yez is settin' up now as the beauties av the fambly."

"Patsy herself says that if she had my face she'd have every soubrette on Broadway beat a mile," insisted the girl. "I don't think it's f to expect me to spend my life waiting hand and foot on a lot of dirty stable boys and Patsy having all the clothes she wants and off enjoying herself."

"Ain't she always sendin' you things?"

"Cast offs!"

"Cast offs! Mercy me, there's gratitude! An' do yez call gallivantin' all over the country with the 'Moonlight Maids' enjoyment?"

"I'd like to try it for a change, and if I have to earn my living"—

"Phwat d'ye mean, earn yir livin'? Who said annything about earnin' yir living, chold?"

"Daddy said I'd soon have need to be thinking of it."

"Oh, he did, did he?" commented the old woman, with an ominous look at her husband. "Let him pay attintion to his horses. I'll run me children. An' that'll be about all av that. Go around to the pantry and fitch the butter."

O'Brien scented another storm gathering about his devoted head, and as soon as the girl's back was turned it broke upon him:

"It's you that's spoilin' her, puttin' this nonsense into her head about goin' on the stage," began his wife fiercely.

He answered her with a calmness and assurance that gave her choler pause.

"Oh, the oidea's not a bad one. It's good money Patsy's earnin'," he said.

"But I misdoubt Nora's knowing how"— she began falteringly.

He cut her short, quick to push home his advantage of superiority.

"Phwat talk have ye?" he said, rising and snapping his fingers. "Sure, actin's no trick at all, at all. Oi've seen babies do it!"

Mrs. O'Brien was unable to gainsay this. It was an unanswerable argument. But his triumph was short lived, for she fell back upon the weapon to which every woman has recourse when all else has failed—tears.

"Sure, it's glib ye are to have them l'ave me!" she wailed. "No wan thinks of a mother's heart. Me baby's goin' to l'ave me!"

O'Brien descended from his perch incontinently.

"Whist, woman—whist—she ain't gone yit!" he reminded her soothingly.

"But—she—will! Oh"—

And at the thought of it she gave way to a violent paroxysm of weeping that filled him with consternation.

"Whist—sure, Mister Crawford 'll be here anny minute. I doan't want him to think I've been abusin' ye," he appealed entreatingly.

Mrs. O'Brien dried her eyes.

"Phwat sort is this Crawford?" she asked.

"Oi've tuk a disloike to him," he said, shaking his head.

Mrs. O'Brien recovered her equanimity and resumed her customary domination.

"Thin God prisarve us all! Ye'll glory in showin' it!" she commented.

"No, Oi'm l'arnin' diplomacy," he ventured, scratching a match on his trousers and lighting his pipe.

"It's hoigh toime," she retorted. "Use a bit av it now and thin. Was it you invoited him over?"

"It was not. He's comin' for a cup of coffee to take the chill off."

GOLF.

With the end of the metropolitan golf season in sight, many devotees of the game are preparing to put their clubs aside for the winter, a procedure that is always accompanied with regret, for the long lay-on means considerable hard work in the spring ere one can hope to get back in his best form. In various quarters, however, the enthusiasts have determined to keep up their practice indoors.

The Rev. J. G. McPherson died at Forfarshire, Scotland, recently, after an illness o fseveral months. A native of St. Andrews, where he was born on June 28, 1843, Dr. McPherson received his education at the Madras College and University. After a period as head master at Hexham Academy, he was called to the pastorate of Ruthven in 1870, and he has discharged his duties there ever since.

Dr. McPherson in his younger days was a golfer of exceptional ability, and there are on record accounts of many close matches between him and the late Tom Morris. Latterly Dr. McPherson contributed frequent magazine articles on golf; and he was always a stanch champion of "golf at its best," as he was pleased to style the game as played thirty and forty years ago.

"SIT" AND "SET."

Some one who believes in taeching by example has concocted a lesson in the use of two little words which have been a source of mortification and trouble to many well-meaning persons.

A man, or woman either, can set a hen, although they cannot sit her; neither can they set on her, although the hen might sit on them by the hour, if they would allow it.

A man cannot set on the wash bench, but he can set the basin on it, and neither the basin nor the grammarians would object.

He could sit on the dog's tail, if the dog were willing, or he might set his foot on it. But if he should set on the aforesaid tail, or sit his foot there, the grammarians as well as the dog would howl—metaphorically at least.

And yet the man might set the tail aside and sit down, and be assailed neither by the dog nor by the grammarians.

Useless Argument.

The eloquent and humorous Dr. Parkhurst, when abstruse theological arguments arise, is fond of silencing the disputatns with a story about a little girl.

This little girl said to her father:

"Papa, can God makes stones?"

"Yes, darling," the father answered.

"Can He make big stones?"

"Oh, yes."

"Could He make a stone as big as a mountain?"

"Oh, yes, of course."

The little girl frowned and said:

"Well, then, could He make a stone so big He couldn't lift it?"—Washington Star.

Quite Personal.

"I suppose you know of my family tree?" said Baron Fucash, impressively, for he was after the daughter of the house.

"Yes," answered Mr. Gotcash. "It may have been a good tree, all right, but it looks to me as if the crop was a failure."

Then He Went.

"I think I must be going," remarked the young man for the tenth time.

"You do not appear to me to be going," declared the young lady, after inspecting him carefully. "You seem to be perfectly stationary."

Numerous Wives.

"Business deals are slow in Persia. Seldom will a Persian go into an enterprise without consulting his wife."

"Well?"

Easy.

"Does 'oo love heaven, fly?"

(Sotto Voce)—Yes.

"Would 'oo love to see heaven, fly?"

(Sotto Voce)—Yes.

(Slashes it)—Now 'oo's there.—The Tattler.

Think of going out day after day—the same two stock cars—and winning every race offered—from four to 100 miles.

Here is another remarkable fact: In every race which both "30's" were entered they won second place as well as first. BOTH "30's" defeated every other car of their class. They were always together neck and neck, at the finish.

Neither of them was out of commission at any time. The "30's" also won second place three times racing in the bigger car class—the only three races were entered in this class.

During the whole distance covered in all these races the "30's" averaged 60 miles an hour. A mile a minute for every minute they were running on the track.

There are no other cars in the world at any price with such records for consistency.

Members of the technical committee of the A. A. A. and Editors of the Automobile Trade Journals who keep careful records of automobile contests, both in America and Europe, are authority for the statement that the Chalmers Detroit "30's" hold the world's records for consistent performance.

Their records show that the Chalmers Detroit "30's" has won more events in proportion to the total number entered than any other car in the world.

The Chalmers Detroit "30's" sell for $1,500, and it is thoroughly proven to be the best car in the world for the price.

POSTOFFICE MEN FEAST

Uncle Sam's Local Employes Celebrated 21st Anniversary of Free Delivery.

TOASTED THE POSTMASTER.

Rev. George A. Warner, Henry C. Krebs, Hugh J. McQuillan, E. H. Bird and C. J. Fisk Speak.

In honor of the twenty-first anniversary of the establishment of free delivery of mail in Plainfield, the local postal system gave a banquet at Truell Hall, Saturday night. It was the first affair of the kind ever attempted by the employes of the Plainfield office, and it proved to be a great success.

Postmaster Elias H. Bird was toasted frequently throughout the evening and the announcement by Mayor Charles J. Fisk that Congressman Fowler had promised to send his name in for re-appointment and that United States Senator Kean had promised to lend his support, was received with cheers.

Another announcement, this one by Postmaster Bird, that he has been practically assured of a substation for Plainfield to be located at 411 Park avenue, was also the occasion for much enthusiasm, while it was further stated that other improvements would be forthcoming and that in the opinion of Mr. Bird it would not be long before the city would have a Federal building.

There were forty-five guests at the banquet, it being served in one of the private dining rooms at the Hall. Alfred E. LaPorte was the toastmaster and the toasts and speakers were as follows:

"Our Office and Its Responsibilities," Postmaster Elias H. Bird; "Good Citizenship," Rev. George A. Warner; "The Post Office as the Public Sees It," Henry C. Krebs; "The Inspection Branch of the Service," Hugh J. McQuillan, of Paterson, postoffice inspector, and "The Opportunities of Today," Mayor Charles J. Fisk.

After the fine dinner was served, the speechmaking began. Mr. LaPorte made a capital toastmaster and he introduced the various speakers in well chosen words. In presenting the first speaker, Mr. LaPorte took occasion to express the high admiration of the employes of the office for Postmaster Bird, and it was his fond hope that when he left his present position it would be to take one higher up in the service. According to Mr. LaPorte, the postmaster possess is all of the qualities which go to make up an ideal official, and this was further evidenced in the frequent applause.

Mr. Bird said that when he took charge of the office eleven years ago, it was in the second class and it had since been promoted to the first class. The receipts had jumped from $30,000 to $70,000 a year. Eleven years ago there were four clerks and eleven carrier, while today there are twenty-two regular carriers, three rural free delivery carriers and eleven clerks, while the office floor space had been increased by one-third.

Speaking of complaints, Mr. Bird said that there were a few from time to time, but it was generally an easy matter to satisfy the complainant, except in the case of one women who wanted a carrier dismissed from the service because he was sick. The entire force, he said, was as efficient as any in the State and it makes just as few mistakes. He said that the rating of the local offices as recorded in Washington was excellent and had been so for a long time.

"We are looking for a Federal building," continued Mr. Bird, "and I do not believe that it is a long way off. $100,000 was originally appropriated for it and now Senator Kean proposes to secure an additional $75,000. With that amount the building will be a possibility. However, we have one of the best equipped offices in the State, in fact, Superintendent Norris, of this district, says that it is the best in his territory.

"One of the improvements to be made soon will be that of a sub-station. I would like to have one near Clinton avenue and another in the East End, but if my requisition is honored, we will soon have a station at 411 Park avenue.

"Another matter I would like to see in effect is the granting of fifteen days' allowance to carriers and clerks for sickness with pay. Now they lose all their time, outside of regular vacation times. I believe that the clerks will sooner or later be placed on an eight hour schedule, which is right.

"Another improvement is coming soon in the registry department, that of doing away with the personal receipt. Any responsible person should be permitted to receive a registered letter, and the money order advice should also be abolished, and I believe it will be within a

GREAT DAY FOR TRINITY

Eighteen are Added to Membership and Dr. Harrison Makes Address.

SPECIAL MUSIC WAS PROVIDED.

Congregation's New Missionary to Arabia Among Those Joining the Reformed Flock.

Trinity Reformed church yesterday was the scene of several important events. Primarily the membership was added to by eighteen new members, nine of whom joined the congregation by letter from other churches while nine others were young people from the Sunday-school. The reception into the church with its attendant services was a most impressive ceremony, attended as it was by the reception of Dr. Paul Wilberforce Harrison, who will next February go to Arabia as a medical missionary under the auspices of Trinity.

Dr. Harrison.

Dr. Harrison made several addresses during the day, the principal one being delivered at the evening service. Dr. Harrison spoke to the various departments of the Sunday-school in the afternoon, giving to each a talk specially adapted to the different departments. At the meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society his remarks covered especially the work that each member of the society could do in missionary work among those nearest to them as well as those who are remote.

Dr. Harrison was born in Scribner, Nebraska, where he received his secondary and collegiate education. He was a student of Doane College and of the University of Nebraska. He received his Bachelor's Degree at the latter college in 1905. He graduated from Johns Hopkins University in 1908 with his degree of doctor of medicine. He has been recently house physician in the Massachusetts General Hospital, in Boston. His support in the missionary field has been assumed by Trinity Reformed church.

Dr. Harrison was admitted to membership in this church on a letter from Brown Memorial church, Baltimore, Md. He will spend the last week in Plainfield before his departure for Arabia, early in February, where he will be the guest of members of the congregation and will make several addresses during the week. A reception will also be tendered the doctor and a farewell service will take place.

At the morning service Dr. Harrison read the Scripture lesson and one of the largest congregations was present. Special music had been arranged by Organist Titsworth and at the offertory Miss Winifred Carroll and Miss S. Etta Raybert sang beautifully solo parts from the "Holy City," by Gaul; which music is especially adapted to a communion service. Two members were baptized at this service before they were admitted to membership in the church.

Dr. Harrison's address in the evening had for its text, taken from John 7: 17, "If any man will do His will, he shall know of the doctrine.'" From the Doctor's remarks it is believed that the whole process of the service of the Master is the absolute submission to His will and a faith that cannot be shaken.

TO SERVE TWENTY DAYS FOR BEING DRUNK.

Matt Slaughter, colored, who gave his address as Westfield, was sentenced to twenty days in the county jail this morning by City Judge Runyon for being drunk and disorderly and resisting Patrolman Anderson when the latter was taking him to headquarters.

Anderson met Slaughter on Park terace at 11 o'clock Saturday night. Slaughter was intoxicated and was carrying a bundle. When asked where he was going he made an offensive reply and was immediately taken into custody. He attempted to throw the patrolman.

Autos in Collision.

Two automobiles were in collision Saturday afternoon at the corner of Belvidere and South avenues, both sustaining slight damage. One was owned by W. A. Mobus, of Summit, and the other by Dr. E. W. Hedges, of this city. According to the police report of the accident Dr. Hedges turned the wrong corner. Fortunately for both they were going at reduced speed.

FOWLER'S G. O. P. CREED

Five Articles in His Statement of Demands for Party's Welfare.

TO INTRODUCE HIS BILL.

"Unless the Party Gets Rid of Aldrichism and Cannonism, the People Will Get Rid of the Party."

Representative Charles W. Fowler of the Fifth New Jersey district, which includes Union county, gave out last night a statement outlining and commenting on the Tariff Commission bill, which he will introduce in the House of Representatives at Washington. It will provide that Congress shall fix the maximum and minimum tariff schedules and rates, and that the commission, consisting of fifteen members, shall, with the approval of the President, fix the actual rates to be paid at some point between the mixiumum and minimum rates so established by Congress. But no rate so fixed and approved shall become effective or operative for eighteen months after it has been promulgated by the President, in order that every industry affected by tariff changes may have ample time to adjust itself to the new conditions.

Returning to his attack upon the present control of Congress, Mr. Fowler declares it to be now perfectly clear that unless the Republican party gets rid of Aldrichism and Cannonism, the people will get rid of the Republican party." Loss of the next House of Representatives, he says, can be avoided "only by emblazoning on our party banners these pledges:

First—We are against Aldrichism and Cannonism.

Second—We demand tariff revision hereafter by evolution and not revolution.

Third—We demand tariff revision based upon ascertained facts and not upon selfish trades and corrupt agreements.

Fourth—We demand a permanent, broad, and responsible tariff commission which shall ascertain these facts, obviate trade wars, and assist in securing and retaining the good will and friendship of all nations by wise, just, and advantageous trade treaties.

He asserts that the people's hopes have been turned to disgust and their faith to resentment, and he says he does not believe that they will permit Mr. Aldrich "to pick their pockets through the legerdemain of words." He prophesies "a thunderbolt of righteous indignation and punitive wrath" as about to "strike, shatter, and paralyze the Republican party unless it utterly repudiates Aldrichism and its subservient complement, Cannonism."

HERE'S AN OPPORTUNITY TO WITNESS "THE CLIMAX"

An opportunity to witness "The Climax" will present itself in connection with the Charity Ball to be given for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital on Friday night, December 31. Those who purchase tickets for the ball can secure reservation for "The Climax" without extra charge.

Miss Leona Watson is the heroine in the "Climax." She is a shy plain girl with an exquisite voice and nobody could give more charm and dramatic adequacy to the delicious roll of Adelina von Hagen, the girl with the temperament and voice which both fall under the sway of mental suggestion so gracefully. Miss Watson is delightful both as a vocalist and comedienne and her simple, mischievous girlishness, her eloquent directness and her delivery of the music are most attractive and delicately emotional. With most brilliant youthfulness and spirit Effingham Pinto portrays a stormy young American-born Italian rampant with genius, passion and tempers. He plays most beautifully on the piano and is enjoyed every instant. The play is simple in its stage setting and an irresistible quartette make of the "Climax" a beautiful play, delightful in humor and atmosphere.

The management assures the public that no seats will be reserved until December 20, and that the first applicants will be first served. Unquestionably, every seat in the house will be sold and those who desire favorable locations should attend to securing them early.

Church Feast Observance.

The Feast of the Immaculate Conception will be observed by four masses in St. Mary's church on Wednesday. The time set by Father Bogan for the services are 5:30, 7, 8 and 9 o'clock. The last service will be a solmen mass at which Father Bogan will be the celebrant.

SECOND STORY MEN ARE AT WORK AGAIN

Second story men are working towards Plainfield and it would be well for people to see that their windows are securely locked and ladders are not left lying around promiscuously.

An attempt was made to enter the home of Mrs. Emil Osbrey, of 6 Sycamore avenue at 11 o'clock Saturday night. Mrs. Osbrey was awakened by a noise alongside the house and, looking out her window discovered a man half way up a ladder which he had placed against the side of the house. She screamed and the man made a quick getaway leaving the ladder standing where he had put it. George Muir, of Essex street, who was near the bridge on Watchung avenue when the man ran by gave the police a description of the would-be burglar.

ADELBERG SAVES FAMILY OVERCOME BY COAL GAS

Because Hyman Adelberg is a light sleeper may be attributed the fact that his wife and three children are alive today. Saturday night the gas fumes escaping from the heater in the cellar of his home on East Second street became so strong that the family was rapidly succumbing to its influence when Mr. Adelberg was aroused by the noise made by his wife in attempting to speak.

Mr. Adelberg's room adjoins that of his wife and children and fearing that something had gone wrong with them he opened their door. The instant he entered he detected a strong odor of coal gas and noticing the apparent agony of his wife, he opened the windows and summoned Dr. Dundon. After emetics were administered the family revived and with the aid of fresh air were soon out of danger.

MRS. TIMOTHY S. THORN'S OBSEQUIES YESTERDAY

The funeral of Mrs. Timothy S. Thorn was held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, pastor of the First Methodist church conducted the services. The interment was in Hillside cemetery and the pall bearers were George W. Cornwell, George M. Rittenhouse and John Corey, officers of the church, and Mr. Townley, John B. Lane and Sylvanus Hoffman, members of the Bible class.

Mrs. Thorn was a member of the Methodist church for upward of forty years and in his address, Dr. Anderson referred to this fact and also spoke with tenderness of her love for Christian work and her really beautiful faith. Although Mrs. Thorn had been a great sufferer during the past two years she had manifested a fortitude which passed beyond the comprehension of those of her intimates who knew of the pain of her illness.

Mrs. Thorn's absence from the Bible class would be a cause for comment because of her recognized punctuality. Many floral tributes were received, that of her former associates in the Bible class being conspicuous. Miss Willis, the soprano soloist of the church choir, sang two hymns, favorites of Mrs. Thorn, the first "Pentcost" being the words last uttered before her death. "Abide with me" was the other and in both the feeling of love and reverence was beyond description.

The services were attended by a large number of friends of the dead woman, many of whom had known her intimately for many years. Besides her husband Mrs. Thorn has left three sons, Walter B. of Allentown, Pa., and Harvey R. and Wesley, of this city.

MAYOR-ELECT TO PRESENT FOUNTAIN TO DUNELLEN.

Mayor-elect William A. Sanford, of Dunellen, is not waiting to display his progressive ideas until he assumes the office of chief magistrate of the borough on January 1, for he is starting in right now. He is credited with possessing advanced ideas on matters of public improvements and he is about to exemplify this characteristic.

When the Dunellen Council meets in regular session tonight that body will be notified of the willingness of Mr. Sanford to present to the borough a bronze fountain with the suggestion that it be installed near the borough hall. The fountain is an ornamental affair and is for the use of man and beast.

Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Coates, who have spent the past season at their country home in Washington Valley, have returned to New York for the winter.

ANNIVERSARY OF CHAPEL

ITS HISTORY IS REVIEWED.

Several Addresses and Special Music Features of Colored Flock's Observance.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of Bethel chapel on East Fifth street, was appropriately observed at the chapel yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The ministers of all the churches in this parish, as well as several laymen who are active workers, took part in the interesting program arranged for the occasion.

R. A. Lasley Smith, organist of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, presided at the organ and rendered a selection in opening the services. After the singing of the Doxology, the Lord's prayer and the singing of a hymn, the Scripture lesson was read by Rev. F. D. Tildon, pastor of the chapel.

Leander N. Lovell, who has been identified with the work at the chapel for the greater part of its existence, presented a short historical paper, telling how the work was established at the chapel a quarter of a century ago and of its steady progress. In the historical sketch, due reference was made to the several earnest workers at the chapel. Of the original officers and teachers in 1884, the only cones now connected with the school are Miss Lucy Everett and A. W. Duxbury, the present superntendent There are four original members of the chapel, Samuel Bolden, Henry Johnson, Mrs. Louisa Carey and Miss Lizzie Dunham.

L. S. Pilcher, tenor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church quartet, sang a solo, which preceded an address by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the parent church. He congratulated the members upon the completion of the quarter of a century of earnest work and then made a plea for new and enlarged quarters, claiming that the worshippers had outgrown their present accommodations.

Rev. L. R. Howard, of Hope chapel, was present, but owing to a little throat trouble, was unable to speak. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, of Warren chapel, was among those who offered congratulations. Letters of congratulations from Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, Miss Chamberlain and Miss Kimball were read by Superintendent Duxbury. The earnest and faithful work of Pastor Tildon was not overlooked in reviewing the work at the chapel.

The services closed with the singing of a hymn and the Gloria. The Benediction was said by Rev. Dr. Zelie.

SENATOR KEAN AFTER EXTRA APPROPRIATION

United States Senator John Kean will introduce a bill during the present session of Congress for an extra appropriation for the proposed Federal building to be erected here for the postoffice service. A year ago, he succeeded in obtaining an appropriation of $100,000 for the purpose but the treasury department subsequently found on asking for bids for land that it was insufficient.

From the many bids received, the Government, it is understood, favored the Durlach property at East Front street and Watchung avenue, it being offered for $60,000. The Government's estimate on the cost of the building is a trifle above $100,000 and therefore if the Dunlap property is bought, the $175,000 will be needed.

TO ESTABLISH ANOTHER SUB-POSTOFFICE STATION.

Following the announcement at the postal men's banquet Saturday night, that a sub-station would soon be established here, Postmaster E. H. Bird received the information today that his request has been granted.

The sub-station will be opened within a short time at 411 Park avenue, in the stationery store conducted by James C. Field, Jr., where stamps, postal cards, money orders and registered mail at that station may be obtained. It was less than a month ago that Mr. Bird made a request for the improvement.

Young Friends to Meet.

The Young Friends Association will meet tomorrow night at the home of W. J. Buzby on West Fourth street, when reports of the recent general conference held at Moorestown, will be presented.

TWO HORSES SUFFOCATED

TOTAL LOSS IS BUT $750.

Fire Chief T. O. Doane Says Blaze Was Caused by Spontaneous Combustion.

Fire partially destroyed a frame stable belonging to the J. T. Fritts estate at 423 Park avenue early this morning. In adition to $300 damage to the structure, two horses, one belonging to Dr. A. F. Carpenter and the other to Arthur S. Giles, lost their lives by suffocation. A motorcycle, belonging to Dr. W. H. Anthony, which was also stored in the building was slightly damaged by the flames.

Fire Chief Doane, ascribes the cause of the fire as due to spontaneous combustion. The flames started under a starway leading to the loft, and they were first discovered shy Mrs. Edward Rushmore at 11:20 o'clock, who promptly notified fire headquarters by telephone.

At that time the flames were issuing from the westerly side of the building. All of the downtown companies responded promptly, but the firemen were considerably handicapped in their efforts by the dense smoke. It was due to these conditions that the fire fighters were unable to rescue the two horses.

Failure of the fire alarm to operate properly also checked the efforts of the firemen. The alarm gave only one toot and few, if any, of the call men responded. This necessitated all of the work being done by the regulars, but in face of this discouraging conditions, the firemen executed quick work by getting three streams on the flames, thereby saving the building from total destruction. The firemen remained on duty until 1 o'clock.

While going to the fire Truck No. 1, driven by William Robinson, and a hack, driven by Moses Carey, collided at the corner of Fourth street and Park avenue. Carey's vehicle lost a wheel in the the crash. Carey was also hurled to the street, but he escaped injury.

The building was covered by insurance. Mr. Giles fixes $150 as the value of his horse which was also insured, while Dr. Carpenter's horse which was rated at $200 did not carry any insurance.

PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION TO MEET THURSDAY NIGHT.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Franklin and Stillman Schools will hold a special meeting in the interest of their own school playgrounds on Thursday night in the Franklin School building at 8 o'clock. Howard Bradstreet, secretary of the Playground Association of New York city, will be the speaker. Mayor Charles J. Fisk will preside at the meeting.

All parents of public school children and others who are interested in the subject of playgrounds for Plainfield children are cordially invited to be present. An opportunity will be given for asking for information on the subject as Mr. Bradstreet is considered an authority.

SAINT MARY'S FAIR WILL CLOSE TONIGHT.

St. Mary's fair and bazar which has been in progress ten days will be brought to a close tonight. All of the articles remaining unsold will be disposed of tonight by the various committees. Another feature will be an informal dance which will be given for the benfit of thos who assisted in making the fair a success.

A special program has been arranged for the children between 2 and 5 o'clock this afternoon. Refreshments will be served the young folks and they will also be awarded prizes for their share in the enterprise.

Youth Upsets Village.

Willie Scherrer, a twelve-year-old New Market boy, created a lot of anxiety for his mother by disappearing from the village yesterday afternoon. Young Scherrer left home in the morning and did not return until midnight. When he failed to appear at the supper table Mrs. Scherrer sounded an alarm and several of the neighbors started a searching party. The youth, however, returned shortly after midnight and explained to his mother that he had been fishing at South Plainfield.

E. T. Dunn Among the Guests.

Edward T. Dunn, who, for many years, was one of the local letter-carriers, but who retired about five years ago, owing to defective eyesight, was among the guests at the banquet given by the Plainfield postal employes Saturday night and thoroughly enjoyed the affair.

ELKS' MEMORIAL SERVICE

Judge William N. Runyon Delivers a Most Impressive Eulogy.

REV. DR. NEILSON OFFICIATES.

Quartette Renders a Fine Program —Service for Seven Departed Members of the Lodge.

In accordance with the annual custom on the first Sunday in December of each year, the members of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, held its memorial service at the Plainfield theatre last night. This day is designated and dedicated as a time which shall be commemorated by every lodge of Elks in sacred session, the memories of departed brothers.

Judge William N. Runyon.

The theatre was thronged with members and friends of the Lodge of Elks, the members occupying seats reserved for them in the centre of the main floor. The stage was appropriately arranged for the occasion. Along the footlights there was placed numerous palms, and in the centre was displayed the head of the elk, the symbol of the order. Suspended overhead was a large star illuminated with seven incandescent lights, representing the number of departed brothers since organization.

Exalted Ruler John H. Cose, who was in charge of the services, together with all the other officers, occupied seats on the stage, in addition to Rev. Dr. W. H. Neilson, who also took part in the services. There was the customary opening ceremonies, so familiar to the Elks. During this there was an impressive feature. As the secretary, William R. Townsend, announced the names of the departed brothers, one of the electric lights was extinguished until the auditorium was left in perfect darkness.

The names of the departed brothers are Daniel Detweiler, April 8, 1906; Herbert S. Taylor, April 16, 1906; Robert L. Thomae, July 21, 1906; Olin L. Jenkins, November 13, 1906; Herbert B. Brooks, January 8, 1907; Charles C. Burnet, February 23, 1907; Maze Edwards, July 4, 1909.

The services were opened with a selection by a quartet, "The Day is Sinking to a Close," by Miss Adah B. Connor, soprano; Miss Cornelia Marvin, contralto; Lawrence Ripley, tenor, and Townsend H. Fellows, baritone, with Mrs. J. Harrison Irvine at the piano. Then followed the impressive opening exercises conducted by the lodge officers. A beautiful baritone solo, "Echo," Lord Henry Somerset, was then sung by Mr. Fellows, after which the audience joined in singing "Nearer My God to Thee."

After a fervent prayer by Rev. Dr. Neilson, Miss Conner sang "Evening and Morning" by Spicker, in a pleasing manner. The feature of the service then followed, the memorial eulogy by City Judge William N. Runyon.

The speaker drew an impressive word-picture of the ever changing seasons, contrasting in the choicest language, summer with her beautiful garb of green and flowers, with winter accompanied by her chilling blasts from the north, but he said within a short time the chilling winds would go back to the north and once more summer in all her prismatic glory would come again.

Impressing upon all the individual duty required by the Great Exalter Ruler, Judge Runyon brought home to each one the necessity of measuring up to the high standard set. He said that it was the fond hope that all would be reunited sooner or later with those who have gone before and that it behooved everyone to so live and be prepared to answer the last call.

"It is not in the past that we live," said the speaker, "but the present, and it is what we make of today that counts. We should live today as though it is doom's day, taking no thought for the morrow.

Between Ourselves

Ever drop your household duties—maybe neglect the children—to rush down town to some much vaunted bargain sale only to return home empty handed and disappointed?

Ever waste ten cents carfare and a lot of precious time to buy a fine $1.50 so and so for 69c that you could buy in any store or at any time for, we'll say 75c?

You were a victim of "sugar-coated values"—those delusive little honey-sweets with which some stores attempt to lure your dollars!

Why merchants persist in this is more than we can fathom. The fact remains, however.

We don't think you ever encountered a "sugar-coated value" at this store, and we'll take right good care that you never shall.

We don't want you to assume that everything we advertise is at a cut price, because it isn't, but you can cut this out and paste it in your hat: Whenever we do advertise a bargain it is a bargain, and you can safely drop almost anything that you may be doing and come for it.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Thrown from his milk wagon when his horse ran away, William Joyce, of Woodbury, was badly cut on the face.

Ripe blackberries were picked Thursday from the vines in the yard of Mrs. Charles Corsen, of West Cape May.

John C. McMenamin has been elected first lieutenant of the Atlantic City Troop and John Ray Lever has been made second lieutenant.

Pilot Judson Bennett, John Meeray and Frank Meeray, of Cape May, returned from a gunning trip of two days in the sounds with eighty-four wild ducks.

Tripped by the leashes of two dogs he was leading across a cranberry bog dam, John Bunnell, of Forked River, was thrown and two ribs were broken.

Suit has been commenced in the Court of Chancery by J. G. Wilson, Randolph Chamberlain and Harvey G. Rue, of Hightstown, against the Telepost Company to stop the concern from erecting poles on their lands. An order has been made requiring the company to show cause why a writ should not be entered restraining further progress in the matter.

Subjected to the "third degree" again Friday by the Camden police, William Hibbs, who robbed the residence of Mrs. William Lawrence, 554 Benson street, that city, of jewelry to the value of $400, and who later confessed to stealing $600 worth of gems from the residence of Albert Hitch, of Norfolk, Va., admitted that he had served several terms in prison.

Mrs. John Higgins, of Stone street, who has been visiting at Millstone, has returned.

J. Allen Wilson, of Grove street, who has been sojourning at Atlantic City, has returned.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Winn, of Linden avenue, are parents of a girl, born to them a few days ago.

John Valiant, of Myrtle avenue, a student at Williams College, has returned after spending a couple of weeks at his home.

Mrs. William A. Nye, of Narragansett Pier, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Hooley, of the borough, has returned.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

The Crescent Athletic Club, of Brooklyn, has leased a large tract of land on Long Island for a golf course. The land lies a little to the north of Hewletts, and covers an area of over two hundred acres. For the most part it consists of meadowland, unbroken by hills. Bunkers and other necessary features of a golf course will have to be made by use of pick and spade. Work upon this will be started at once.

A handsome clubhouse is to be erected at a convenient point upon the grounds, and the surrounding lawns will be well kept. The lease covers a period of twenty-one years, and was given by a water company that owns the land.

W. D. Vanderpool, secretary of the Metropolitan Golf Association, calls attention to the fact that clubs are unusually slow in appointing delegates in response to a notice he sent out on November 12. In other words, credentials have been received from only sixteen of the sixty-odd clubs, which means that forty-four clubs have paid no attention to the communication. The annual meeting will be held at Delmonico's on December 14.

STRICKEN IN THEATRE.

Victim Is Carried to Lobby, Where He Dies.

Camden, Dec. 16.—Walter Reed, 42 years old, of 403 Taylor street, this city, was fatally stricken while in one of the theatres Saturday night. When the play was well under way he was noticed to be acting in a peculiar manner. When approached by an usher, although sitting in an upright position, he was found to be unconscious of his surroundings.

He was removed to the lobby and the city ambulance was hurriedly summoned and he was conveyed to the West Jersey Homeopathic Hospital. As he was being carried into that institution he gave a gasp and was pronounced to be dead by the physicians.

His death was due to heart disease.

SNYDER KILLED IN FALL UNDER TRAIN.

Was on His Way to Visit Sister When Jolted From Lehigh Valley Car.

Perth Amboy, Dec. 6.—The body of William Snyder, an employee of the Standard Underground Cable Company, in this city, was found cut in half on the Lehigh Valley Railroad tracks at Fords yesterday.

According to a statement made by the dead man's sister, with whom he lived, Snyder boarded a freight train for Easton last night, where he intended to visit another sister.

It is believed that a sudden jolt of the train caused Snyder to lose his hold, falling beneath the wheels.

The body was discovered by one of the employees of a brick plant near where the accident occurred.

FARMER WALKS FORTY MILES WITH A JERSEY COW.

A Jersey Cow, lead by a middle-aged and tired farmer, passed through Kearny avenue, Kearny, Saturday. The farmer is W. B. Kurtz, who recently moved from Closter to a place near Bound Brook. The cow was the last of his chattels to be transferred to the new farm and Kurtz was on his way there. The distance between the two points is nearly forty miles and the entire journey is being made on foot. Friday night Kurtz and his cow reached Kingsland, where they put up until daylight Saturday morning. Before retiring Kurtz milked the cow and sold the lacteal fluid to the hotelkeeper. The cow did not seem to mind the walk half as much as her owner and contentedly chewed her cud while Kurtz stopped for a short rest in Kearny Saturday.

"BOB" DELANEY'S CURE FOR CONFIRMED TOPERS.

Robert E. Delaney, proprietor of the Dunlop and one of the best known men at Atlantic City, would sentence professional topers to terms of hard labor on the county farm as a cure for alcoholism.

"Public dependents who welcome long terms in the county prison because they get three square meals a day, and have a comfortable home without the necessity of working, should be sent to the farm and made to work hard for their keep," he said Saturday. "People of this class are too lazy to make any attempt to support themselves and they should be made to till the soil and chop wood to pay for their keep. Enforced manual labor in the open air would help to banish alcoholism and put the hookworm to rout."

short time. I am now serving my last year, and if not reappointed I trust you will give my successor the same loyal support you have given me."

This last statement called forth cries of "No! No! third four years more." Mr. Bird informed the men that he would be a candidate for the position again and was later given assurance of the right support.

"Good Citizenship," was the toast to which Mr. Warner responded, and he at once made himself solid with the postal men by relating a good story. He then went on to give his opinion of a good citizen. He said that all knew too well about the undesirable citizen. In his opinion men cannot be scared out of hell and into heaven, that the method employed by many people to do this is all wrong.

"There is a certain type of goodness in itself," said Mr. Warner, "and we must look to that. I have a barrel of fine apples in my cellar, which I love to look at and eat. I forget the blemishes and think only of the good part. The majority of men in public life are honest and are doing their duty, just the same as Postmaster Bird.

"It is in the individual himself that we are to find the man of character and then law and order and other good things will follow. Love rules the world. It takes hold of the individual man and when you touch the unit you have done something worth while. I don't give a rap for speeches and work en masse. It is the individual influence that counts. Raise the type of citizenship and you will have no trouble in accomplishing your purpose."

"As Other Sees Us," was the toast given to H. C. Krebs and he gave an excellent practical talk, interspersed with considerable humor. He briefly reviewed the progress of the postal system from its inception in the time of King Cyrus the Great, to the present time, showing how in the earlier times, it met with much opposition and often caused dire results.

The speaker declared the postoffice to be a great civilizer, especially through the rural free delivery system, which brings the latest news and other information to the farmer quickly. He believed the postman to be one's best friend for he brings the news, pays one's bills and in other ways is a benefactor.

In describing what a postman should and should not be, Mr. Krebs said that it was important that he should have good health, that he shouldn't be afraid in the dark, that he shouldn't lisp and that he should have a good education and have a knowledge of history. These attributes and qualities were interspersed with short humorous stories to illustrate the speaker's remarks. He had nothing but words of commendation for the postoffice and its employes. Such a complex system he said was astonishing, and he hoped the time would come when a similar one would be adopted for the telegraph and telephone.

Hugh J. McQuillan, of Paterson, one of the postoffice inspectors, spoke on the subject of "The Inspection Branch of the Service." He started in the service as a boy in the Paterson postoffice and through hard application to work has risen to his present position, being acknowledged as one of the foremost experts on postal laws. At the outset Mr. McQuillan said that it was his duty to gather information and not dispense it, but was glad to be present and give them a short talk. He then related several interesting cases that had come under his supervision recently, showing that it is not always the postoffice employe that is to blame.

An inspector has about four hundred offices to look after, which requires about one-quarter of his time. This is exclusive of numerous special cases. Mr. McQuillan said that the government is now cutting down postal expenses and on of the cuts will be that of the money order service. Last year there were written $65,000,000 in money orders and $12,500,000 passed through the Chicago postoffice and the proposed change will save the work of one hundred clerks in that office and eighty in the New York office.

The speaker said that it is also proposed to permit a carrier to deliver a registered letter to any responsible person, which would mean a great saving of time for the carrier.

"The Opportunities of Today," proved an interesting topic for Mayor Fisk. He said that he considered one of the best opportunities that of being present with a lot of good fellows. He said that success only comes through hard work and the use of brains, and he referred to Mr. McQuillan as an illustration of that fact. He said that Edward T. Van-Winkle and William Demarest were the only two employes of the local postoffice present who were of age, both having entered the service twenty-one years ago. He then paid a high compliment to Assistant Postmaster James Martin, recalling the time when he was his boss in the fire department.

"Another good opportunity I had," said Mr. Fisk, was when I was privileged to be the first to sign Mr. Bird's petition for his present position. I want to be able to repeat that when the time comes. I have asked Mr. Bird to prepare his petition and let me sign it first and then we will show the officials at Washington what we thing of him.

"Congressman Fowler has promised to send Mr. Bird's name in and Senator Kean says that he will back it up, and that means the re-appointment of our present efficient postmaster.

Again referring to opportunities, Mr. Fisk briefly recalled how the late C. P. Huntington became a man of wealth and influence through hard work. He said that most men have to work hard for what they get and they are better off for it. He said that he had been called a good mixer, which was true, for he felt at home in any society. He said that it is not the clothes, but the man that counts.

The speechmaking was concluded with brief remarks by Letter carriers C. B. Stephens, Elmer E. Ripley, George Keen, Daniel Shea and Thomas Meaney and Clerks W. B. Sharp and William Thorn. James Bailey also favored the gathering with several excellent songs. Throughout the banquet, Andrew Carpenter rendered popular selections on the piano.

The committee which deserves credit for the success of the affair comprised A. E. LaPorte, Ernest A. Millard, William H. Thorn, T. J. Meaney, William Demarest and George L. Apgar.

In conclusion, Judge Runyon recalled the names of the seven departed brothers and spoke words of the highest praise concerning each one. Of the last member to pass away, Maze Edwards, the speaker said that he was one who had found life harder to live than most people, but he was brave to the end. Throughout his life he tried to conceal his deformity, but this feeling was tempered somewhat by the knowledge that all his friends loved him. Referring again to the departed brothers, Judge Runyon said, "all have run the race, passed through tribulation and now rest from their labors and we hope to see them again."

Miss Marvin then sang a beautiful solo, "Like as the Hart Desireth the Waterbrook," which preceded the closing ceremonies, in which the officers took part. The quartet then sang a selection from Shelley, in an impressive manner, and after the audience joined in singing "Abide With Me," Mr. Neilson pronounced the benediction and the service closed with the singing of the Doxology.

The officers of the lodge, all of whom had seats on the stage were: Exalter Ruler, John H. Cose; esteemed leading knight, Lewis A. Bellis; esteemed loyal knight, Fred G. Lynn; esteemed lecturing knight, J. Alexander Wilson; secretary, William R. Townsend; treasurer, Harry B. MacDonald; chaplain, Joseph Noonan; esquire, John E. Nicol; inner guard, Alfred Prudhon; tiler, Edward S. Searing; organist, William J. O'Keefe; trustee, S. P. T. Wilbur; acting trustees, E. H. Bird and Fred Sandford.

BLAIR AS POSSIBLE GUBERNATORIAL TIMBER.

At a conference of Republicans held at Belvidere recently at the home of A. Blair Kelsey, the possible candidacy of Judge John A. Blair, of Hudson county, for the nomination for Governor was discussed. While fully informed as to the purpose of the conference, Judge Blair is quoted as having said to his friends: "I will seek no public office until convinced that the office and the people are seeking me."

The conferees assured the Hudson judge that if he becomes the standard bearer in the next Gubernatorial campaign, "Warren county, the home of the Blairs, will make a new political record for itself by going Republican."

MRS. ALEXANDER HEADS CHILDREN'S GUARDIANS.

The State Board of Children's Guardians chose new officers to fill vacancies caused by the death of Mrs. Emily E. Williamson and the resignation of Hugh F. Fox, of this city. Mrs. C. B. Alexander, of Hoboken, was chosen president, to succeed Mr. Fox. The new staff of officers, in addition to Mrs. Alexander, are:

Joseph McCrystal, Paterson, vice-president; Anthony T. Williams, Trenton, secretary; Benjamin F. Edsall, Newark, treasurer. Mrs. Mary C. Jacobson, of Newark, who was recently appointed, attended the meeting, which was held at 15 Exchange place, Jersey City, the office of the board.

PEAPACK SWEPT BY A DISASTROUS FIRE

Peapack, Dec. 6.—Fire from unknown cause yesterday nearly wiped out the entire business section of this town, destroying several of the largest stores and doing damage estimated at $50,000. While the firemen were fighting the blaze a large chimney tumbled with a crash that was heard for blocks around. Two firemen were badly hurt and were taken to their homes. Others barely escaped with their lives by jumping. The falling chimney crashed over on several of the burning buildings, breaking in the roofs. The injured firemen are Frank Allshesky, of Bernardsville, and James Ludrow, of Peapack. Allshesky was the more injured of the two. He received a deep gash in his head besides internal injuries. Edward Schweck was badly hurt by an axe he was using rebounding.

The fire started in the drug store of Joseph F. Achsik, in the very heart of the business section. It had evidently been burning some time before it was discovered. A passer-by saw smoke issuing from the crevices in the door and from the windows. He sent in an alarm. Before the Peapack volunteers arrived there was a deafening explosion, evidently caused by gasoline in the cellar exploding. Before the firemen reached the blaze flames were shooting from all parts of the building.

Realizing that they were unable to cope with the blaze assistance was asked from Far Hills, Basking Ridge, Bernardsville and Morristown. Chief Engineer J. Fred Runyon, of the Morristown department, responded with Second Assistant Chief Robert Mack, Fireman Maynard Day and Fred Hiper, with Chauffeur George Hangborn at the wheel. They went to Peapack on the automobile chemical engine, covering the thirteen mils between here and the fire and being at work on the blaze in twenty-one minutes from the time of leaving the company's quarters. The Morristown men relieved the country firemen, who were almost exhausted, and took a stream into the residence of Philip Todd.

The firemen, however, were unable to check the flames. The fire spread to the general store and hall of John Allen, and while efforts were being made to save this building another building, occupied as a harness store by William Van Ness, caught fire.

Fanned by a brisk wind the flames were carried to the building of Philip Todd, in which were a barber shop and several families. The buildings of William Wilson, Andrew Ballantine and A. C. Moke took fire in rapid succession and were almost totally destroyed.

The raceway in the rear of the buildings, built many years ago, probably saved much greater damage from fire. It supplied the water for the companies from Far Hills and Peapack. Nearly all of the burned buildings are covered by insurance.

The fire was discovered about 8 o'clock, and it was noon before the blaze was under control. Several firemen were overcome and medical aid was summoned. None of the cases was serious, and after several minutes the men were revived.

GOVERNOR HELPS "BIDE-A-WEE" HOME.

Atlantic City, Dec. 6.—Local heads of charitable enterprises who know of Governor Fort's open opposition to the proposed tuberculosis preventorium at Lakewood were delighted Friday at the announcement that the Governor has made a contribution to the "Bide-a-Wee" home for incurables at Longport.

The amount of the donation made by Governor Fort is not stated, but officials of the institution look on his contribution as a sign of his desire to forward the work of the home established by Mrs. Charles A. Plummer, a Philadelphia cottager.

Business on the Boom.

Brisk business at the Pond Machine Tool Works has necessitated the establishment of a night force. The new order goes into effect tonight. Up to this week a gang had been working overtime up to 9 o'clock every night. The company is rushed with orders for planers, lathes, drills and other heavy machinery.

Two Hound Dogs Gone.

William Beekman and Percy A. McVoy are mourning the loss of their valuable hound dogs. On Friday in company with William McCormick, they went rabbit hunting. Beekman's and McVoy's dogs scented a fox, started off on its trail, but never came back. McVoy valued his dog at $100.

Thomas F. McGinnis.

Thomas F. McGinnis, for many years an employee of the Central Railroad, died at his home, 710 Central street, yesterday. He is survived by a widow and three children. Mr. McGinnis had been ill for some time and had been unable to work. The funeral notice will be given tomorrow.

—A break in the borough fire department wires caused box 143 to ring early this afternoon. The fire department responded promptly but no evidence of a fire was discovered.

THE AMERICAN WOMAN.

Her Position Here and Its Influence In the Old World.

There is no doubt that the most interesting thing to the European who lands on the northern shores of the new world is the American woman—that happy, victorious heroine of modern femininism who has discovered how to extract from the new condition of woman all the advantages with almost none of the inconveniences; that being who has known how to assume the masculinity in all that regards independence and liberty of action and remain feminine in grace, charm and altruism; that American beauty, that American genius, whose wonders are seen and felt in all the American and European reviews, whose writers declare her to be engaged almost entirely in severe study, in masculine work, sport and similar occupations.

Europe, moreover, is right. The American woman is not only one of the most interesting phenomena of North America, but is also the phenomenon of the new world that might have the greatest and gravest effect on the old, shaking on their foundations the essential principles of our female instruction and training, overthrowing the society of the old continent or continents, which rest to a greater extent than is realized on the antique functions of woman in the family and in society.—Gina Lombroso Ferrero in Putnam's Magazine.

THE RACE FOR RICHES.

Is Wealth That Cannot Be Enjoyed Worth the Price?

The writer once inquired of a very successful man:

"When do you ever get a moment's time for your own self—to be yourself and to think your own thoughts? Do you ever get a time like that?"

The very successful man hesitated for a moment and then replied:

"Why, yes, I get such a time while I am being shaved in the morning."

Is success really worth the price when it must be paid for at such a rate? Of what use are mansions and country houses and great estates if one has no time to visit them and enjoy their beauty? Why should one collect through agents the most exquisite works of art if he cannot find more than a casual half hour in which to view them? What are wife and children if you are always hastening about the world, far too preoccupied to give them any serious thought or to receive the pleasure which their company could afford you?

And yet there is one sole satisfaction—if it be a satisfaction. Millions of your fellow countrymen and countrywomen will believe beyond all doubt that you are really happy and will envy you.—Munsey's Magazine.

Icebergs.

Apparently ice is ice, of course; but, strangely enough, there is a marked difference in it. Sea water and salt water in general freezes at a lower temperature than pure water, in doing which a part of the salt separates and the ice when melted gives water that is fresher than the original, and along this same line there exists a marked difference in form between the icebergs of the two hemispheres. Arctic bergs are of irregular shape, with lofty pinnacles, cloud capped towers and glittering domes, whereas those of the southern waters are flat topped and solid looking. The former reach the sea by narrow fiords, while the latter are more regular in formation, reaching the open sea by the way of wide passageways and not subject to the grinding and breaking efforts of their northern relatives.—Pittsburg Press.

A Real Cute Dog.

A good dog story is attributed to a visitor to an English country inn on market day. "Now," he said, "I've got a dog here I wouldn't take £20 for. You can believe me or not, but what I am going to tell you is perfectly true. In the early part of last spring I lost six ewes and could find them nowhere. One day about three weeks later as I was looking across from my house to the edge of the moor about two miles away I noticed some sheep. I got my telescope and assured myself that they were mine. I placed the telescope in a suitable position and made Bob look through it. After about a minute the dog wagged his tail and looked at me as if he understood what I wanted and was off like a shot. In less than two hours he brought the sheep home safe and sound."

No Misunderstanding.

"I hear you have had a misunderstanding with your old political friends."

"No," said Senator Sorghum; "the worst of it is the impossibility of misunderstanding. We have expressed our opinions of each other in terms so explicit as to be unmistakable."—Washington Star.

A SWIFT STORY.

The Way the Dean Rebuked His Publisher, Faulkner.

An amusing story of George Faulkner, the printer of many of Dean Swift's works, who lived in Parliament street, Dublin, is told by Mr. Wilmot Harrison in "Memorable Dublin Houses." Mr. Harrison relates how Faulkner, after a visit to London on business for Swift, called to see the dean, having arrayed himself in a laced waistcoat, a bagwig and other fopperies. Swift received him ceremoniously as an entire stranger and asked:

"Pray, sir, what are your commands with me?"

"I thought it my duty to wait upon you, sir, on my return from London."

"Pray, sir, who are you?"

"George Faulkner, the printer."

"You George Faulkner, the printer! Why, thou art the most impudent, barefaced impostor I ever heard of! George Faulkner is a sober, sedate citizen and would never trick himself out in lace and other fopperies. Get you about your business and thank your stars that I do not send you to the house of correction!"

Poor George returned home and, having changed his dress, returned to the deanery and was received most cordially by Swift, who, having welcomed him "on his return from London," said:

"There was an impudent fellow in a laced waistcoat who would fain have passed for you, but I soon sent him packing with a flea in his ear."

THE OLD TIME NAVY.

Treatment of British Jack Tars In Nelson's Day.

Jack tars in the British navy in Nelson's day were treated like dogs and worse. Imps of midshipmen, twelve or thirteen years old, were permitted to cuff and kick them with impunity, and none dared protest. Torture, under the guise of punishment, was part of the regular routine of the service. From one to five dozen lashes with the cat-o'-nine-tails could be inflicted at the whim of a commander, but the usual number was three dozen.

Such sentences were for trifling derelictions of duty. For really serious offenses, such as violence to a superior officer, desertion or mutiny, offenders were strung up at the yardarm or flogged round the fleet, the latter a punishment more dreaded than death itself. Other savage punishments, such as "starting," "running the gantlet" and the hideous one known as "keelhauling" were also frequently resorted to, although nominally they were illegal.

Nowadays, of course, a bluejacket, although subject to naval discipline, is in no more danger of being subjected to corporal punishment than is the average civilian.

His officers are courteous, kindly and considerate, and if his life is not a happy and comfortable one he has, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, only himself to blame.—Pearson's Weekly.

Louis the Magnificent.

As soon as he rose he was dressed by his valet in a coat of blue cloth. Two little epaulets of gold cord were sewed to the cloth. Under the coat was a white waistcoat, which was almost entirely hidden by the ribbons and wide sashes of his orders. His satin breeches ended in a pair of high boots or gaiters of red velvet, which came above the knees and were more supple than leather, for the thickness of leather on legs that were often painful from gout would have created too much friction. He made a great point of these boots. He thought that they made him look like a general, ready at any moment to spring upon a horse, though this was a physical impossibility to him since he was much too fat and too infirm. He used powder with a view to hiding the white locks of age, and this gave his complexion an appearance of youth.—From "The Return of Louis XVIII.," by Gilbert Stenger.

Telling the Time.

His horse had lost a shoe, and as it was being replaced by a Somerset blacksmith he asked the time. "I'll tell 'ee presently, sir," said the man. Then he lifted a hind foot of the horse and, looking across it attentively, said, "Half past 11."

"How do you know?" asked Coleridge.

"Do 'ee think I have shod horses all my life and don't know by sign what time it is?"

The poet went away puzzled, but returned in the evening and offered the blacksmith a shilling to show him how he could tell the time by a horse's hoof.

"Just you get off your horse, sir. Now do 'ee stoop down and look through the hole in yon pollard ash and you'll see the church clock."

Hard to Tell.

"If your mother bought four bunches of grapes, the shopkeeper's price being nitepence a bunch, how much money would the purchase cost her?" asked the new teacher.

The Stuart Penny.

A pamphlet published in 1677, entitled "The Worth of a Penny; or, A Caution to Keep Money. With the Causes of the Scarcity and Misery of the Want Thereof In These Hard and Merciless Times," contains a list of articles obtainable for a penny in the days of Charles II. These include "a dish of coffee to quicken your stomach and refresh your spirits," "a fair cucumber" and "portions of such commodities as nuts, vinegar, grapes, cake, onions and oatmeal." The catalogue of pennyworths obtainable at an apothecary's is a lengthy one and includes "lettuce to make you sleep, mithridate to make you sweat and aniseed, which may save your life in a fainting or swound."

This in the way of recreation "for a penny you may see any monster, jackanapes or those roaring boyes, the lyons; you may hear a most eloquent oration upon our English kings and queens if you listen to him who keeps monuments at Westminster; you may have all the news in England and other countries of murders, floods, witches, fires, tempests and what not in the weekly newsbooks."—London Scraps.

The Mahogany Tree.

There is no such thing as a forest of mahogany. The mahogany tree lives by and for itself alone. It stands solitary of its species surrounded by the smaller trees and dense undergrowth of the tropical forest, rearing its head above its neighbors. Two trees to the acre is a liberal estimate for mahogany "finds." More frequently perhaps only one tree will be found over a larger stretch of territory. True mahogany is the only species of the Swietenia mahogani, the name Swietenia having been given to it in honor of the celebrated Baron von Swieten, physician to Maria Theresa. It is distinctly a native of tropical America and frequently towers to a height of 100 feet, the trunk being often twelve feet in diameter. It is of exceedingly slow growth, and the time of its arriving at maturity is probably not less than 200 years. Occasionally small specimens have been found in southern Florida.

British Julius Caesars.

Julius Caesar, who on one of the closing days of August in 55 B. C. landed on the Kentish coast, has had many British namesakes, including a great cricketer, but the best known is Julius Caesar, master of the rolls under James I., about whom Lord Clarendon in the first volume of his history tells the amusing story, "Remember Caesar." The unpopular Earl of Portland sat up all night in a barricaded house with his friends and retainers armed to the teeth because he found in his pocket a slip of paper bidding him "Remember Caesar," which really had reference not to the assassination of the Roman statesman, but to some preferment promised to a son of Sir Julius Caesar. The tomb of Sir Julius Caesar, with a quaint epitaph in legal phraseology, is among the many curious monuments of St. Helen's, Bishopsgate.—London Family Herald.

Parent and Prodigal.

In a Hongkong paper a short time ago there appeared a paragraph reciting that a wealthy young Chinese whose mother controlled a large business in Canton had been spending the money of the firm too lavishly, the attraction of motorcars and other vehicles of extravagance being too powerful for him. After various endeavors to control him the mother at length prepared chains and fetters and had him locked up. He, however, escaped, and the irate mother announced her intention to exercise her maternal rights on his return by cutting the tendons of his ankles and thus crippling him. The account proceeded to say that this treatment is often resorted to by irate parents with prodigal sons.—From "China," by Mortimer Menpes and Sir Henry A. Blake.

Turtles of the Amazon.

The fresh water turtle of the Amazon grows to a great size, especially on the upper river, where full grown ones three feet in length, two in width and weighing 200 pounds are often seen. Every house has its little pond or corral to hold a stock of these animals through the season of dearth, the wet months. Those who have Indians in their employ send them out for a month when the waters are low to select a stock; others purchase their supply.

Knew of One.

"Suggestion? H'mp! Did you ever hear of a real cure effected by 'suggestion?'"

"I personally knew of one. I once suggested to a young fellow that if he didn't want to have a big dog chasing him off the premises he'd better quit coming to my house, and it cured him of the habit."—Chicago Tribune.

Something Left.

Brown (at the club)—Yes, by Jove, there's very little you can teach me. I've been everywhere, done everything, seen everything. The Scotch Member—Young man, did ye ever have D. T.'s? Brown—D. T.'s! Great Scott, no! The Scotch Member—Then ye've seen nowt.—Sketch.

Sarcastic.

"I can recommend this horse, sir," said a dealer, "as a strong, sound animal."

"It must be," agreed the customer, "to have attained its present age!"

A Cinch.

Dubbins—Do you know where I can find a lot facing south? Stubbins—Why not try around the north pole? That's a very likely place.—Judge.

CHAPTER III.

O'BRIEN drew open the door, and Crawford entered. As he did so Nora, who had made her way upstairs again, came down in all the glory of fresh pink bows and ribbons. She had been sorely tempted to don her Sunday clothes, but had not dared to do so, fearing her mother's displeasure.

"Come roight in, sor, an' welcome," said O'Brien. "Wolfe, this is Mister Crawford."

Crawford bared his head and bowed to her; then bowed to Nora, with a smile of recognition.

"'Tis an honor to know ye, sor," said Mrs. O'Brien graciously.

Then, indicating Nora with her thumb, she added,

"Ye've already seen me baby."

"Baby! Oh, mother, the idea!" exclaimed Nora, abashed, while the visitor admitted that he had had the pleasure of meeting her.

"Take the gintleman's coat, Nora. Draw up yir chair, Mister Crawford. Wolfe, pour the cawfee," directed O'Brien, assuming the command.

"I'm afraid you have been put to a lot of trouble, Mrs. O'Brien," said Crawford considerately.

"Sure Oi loike to fuss for anny man that appreciates it," she assured him, with a condescending smile.

"He was detained at the stable. He said he would be here presently," replied Crawford.

"Is this all your family, Mrs. O'Brien?" he asked.

"Oh, no!" answered Nora for her. "There's Patsy."

"How nice!" he said. "A girl and a boy. That makes the family complete."

"Phwy, no!" exclaimed Mrs. O'Brien, with a laugh, in which her husband and daughter joined. "It's her sister, Patricia. Nora, run and git her photograph for the gintleman—git the one in costume—it's in the lower drawer. Lift up the waist av me black silk. It's wrapped in the Paisley shawl," she precised, seizing the opportunity to let her visitor know that she possessed and on occasion could attire herself in expensive and gorgeous raiment.

"And, Nora," called O'Brien as the girl disappeared, "look in me hat box. Ye'll found a couple av"—

"Father," chided his wife, "the gintleman'll think ye're daft. Sure, one's enough."

"Not at all. I am very much interested and would like to see them all," declared Crawford, highly amused.

"Thin, Patrick, ye may as well stip into the parlor an' bring the enlargement," she said.

"Patsy is rather an odd name for a girl," observed Crawford, left alone with Mrs. O'Brien.

"She's named for Patrick," she explained.

"Oh, I see! Sort of substitute for a son," he laughed.

"A substitute, is it? Sure, Oi wouldn't take a half dozen of the lovin' sons me frinds has for the loikes o' Patsy," declared the mother, with tender earnestness.

O'Brien returned bearing a crayon bust portrait of the common or garden variety highly tinted and incased in a huge gilt frame with an inner border of red plush. He handled it with the precaution he would have employed in carrying a $10,000 Sevres vase and held it in various positions so that the visitor could get the full force of its staggering effect. Crawford affected to be overwhelmed with admiration.

"She must be a very pretty girl," he opined.

"Oi've seen homelier," admitted O'Brien, swelling with pride.

"It's a rale decaivin' thing. Whin she's away from me Oi think it's the livin' image av her, but whin she's alongside"—

"It's the difference in the coloring," suggested Crawford.

"Patsy says it gives her the willies," cut in Nora, who had returned with the small photographs.

Crawford laughed merrily and took one that the girl extended to him.

"Ah, taken in fancy costume!"

"No; them's her wurrukin' clothes," said O'Brien, and as Crawford, surprised, looked at him interrogatively he explained, "She's on the stage."

"I see; an actress," said Crawford perspicuously.

"Oh, not at all! She's a queen av burlesque," corrected O'Brien, with loftiness.

"With the 'Moonlight Maids,'" added his wife.

"Oh, yes, a very fine company—lots of clever people!"

"They pays Patsy twinty a week," went on O'Brien, becoming more and more confidential.

"And her costumes," his wife reminded him.

"Well, they don't amount to much," remarked Crawford, examining the scantily clad figures in the photographs.

This little joke was quite lost upon the family, and Mrs. O'Brien began a spirited defense of the costliness of the costumes.

"Oi've seen few grand ladies with foiner silks on their backs," she declared.

"Sure," said O'Brien, backing her up stoutly. "The stockin's are all silk an' that long."

And he indicated with his outstretched hands a prodigious length of hose. He was preparing further to descant upon the value and attractiveness of his daughter's theatrical attire when the door was flung open, and the Duke appeared.

"I—hytes—to—bintrude," he apologized breathlessly, "but 'ere's a telegram—for Mrs. O'Brien."

Mrs. O'Brien turned the paper over for an instant in blank amazement. Then she became pale and collapsed into a chair.

"Oi have a tiligram. She's killed! My Patsy's killed!" moaned the old woman, while the tears streamed down her face in a veritable flood.

"Wouldn't it be as well to open it?" suggested Crawford dryly.

O'Brien grabbed the telegram and tore it open, but his wife snatched it back indignantly.

"Oh, is she alive?" supplicated Nora, who had remained petrified with consternation.

Then, while O'Brien heaved a great sigh of relief, she read aloud:

"'Show's on the'—on the—I can't make it out. It looks loike p-a-z-a-z."

"That's right," explained Crawford to the sorely puzzled family. "On the pazaz—Tenderloinese for on the blink." He added to make it perfectly clear to them, "She means that the show is no good—that it has busted, in a word."

But Mrs. O'Brien at the next few words of the telegram sat bolt upright.

"'Coming on the seven six. Me for home and mother.' Wake up, Patrick O'Brien! Don't stand there like the ninny ye are! It's half past sivin now, an' yir poor choild's waitin' in the cold daypo!"

She leaped to her feet.

O'Brien, as the significance of it had dawned upon him, had become wildly excited.

"Nora," he shouted, "where's me overcoat? Wolfe, where's me hat? You'll excuse me, sor. Oi must go hitch up."

But his wife brought him up short with a round turn and put a quick, effectual damper on his zeal.

"Hold yir hosses!" she directed. "Ye'll go ask Danny to meet her. It's dyin' glad av the chance he'll be. Ol've use for yez here."

"Use for me here? An' what'll Nora be doin'?" he demanded.

"Nora 'll be entertainin' Mister Crawford."

O'Brien departed to deliver his message to Mallory, and Crawford rose.

"I fear I am in the way," he observed.

"Not at all, not at all, Mister Crawford," said the old woman heartily. "Make yirself at home. Stop an' have a bit of a chat with Nora. She'll have a chance to say a wurrud for herself now her mother's l'avin' the room."

She went out, and Crawford and the "wild rose" were alone. He watched her awhile at her work of clearing the table and for once in his life was at a loss what to say. She was entirely different from the women of his class and from the women not of his class with whom he associated.

"So it's your sister and Mallory, eh? I shall have to congratulate him," he ventured, feeling that he must say something. "I am going to be his partner, you know."

"Isn't that nice!" exclaimed the girl. "Dan's a fine man, and he'll make a good husband. Mom says good husbands are awful scarce."

"I wouldn't worry about that if I were you," he laughed, amused at her candor and naivete.

"I'm not worrying," she told him. "I'm going on the stage."

"That's not a bad place to get husbands these days," he said.

"Oh," she protested, "but I'm not going on the stage to get married!"

"No? Oh, I see, for fame!"

He smiled at her, more and more amused.

"No, indeed," she said decidedly, "for $20 a week. Just think of all the pretty clothes you can buy for that!

"Patsy says I ought to stay at home—that I don't know when I'm well off," she confided, growing more bold and friendly as the conversation proceeded.

"I fear I agree with Patsy," he said gravely.

She looked at him with a pout of disappointment and displeasure.

"That's all very well. But how would you like to wear your sister's old dresses?"

"I don't think I would like it," he avowed, his eyes lighting up with a smile again.

"There—you see!" she exclaimed triumphantly. "Patsy or no Patsy, I'm going to New York."

THE HOME OF AMERICA'S FAVORITE

The splendid factory with its electrical equipment, ideal shipping facilities and enormous output, is the greatest monument of the Hallet & Davis piano.

A visit to our factory, will discover the careful detail of manufacture, the experience, the expert workmanship, and the purchasing power of capital, which go to make up the Hallet & Davis piano, proving a beneficial education to piano buyers.

We have been asked why we can sell our pianos at so moderate a price. There is but one explanation: The enormous factory output.

Without the steady demand, allowing us to do a great business on a small margin of profit, we would have to charge at least $100.00 more a piano.

DRAFTS LOW SPEED BILL.

Perth Amboy, Dec. 6.—Counselor Peter A. Peterson, of this city, stated yesterday afternoon that he is framing up a bill which he will introduce at the coming session of the Legislature which would, if passed, prevent the running of automobiles by incompetent persons. The bill provides that all applicants for licenses to run cars must pass an examination. The bill will be given to one of Middlesex County's Assemblymen in a few days.

Several local lawyers stated last night that the plan has been considered over the State, but no one cared to draft such a bill, as they doubted that it would pass.

P. H. S. GIRLS DEFEAT SOUTH ORANGE TEAM

Unlike the P. H. S. boys first and second basketball teams, who were defeated by the Montclair High School teams at Montclair, Saturday afternoon, the P. H. S. girls' basketball team defeated the girls' team of the South Orange High School at South Orange, by a score of 17 to 10.

It was the first game the local girls played away from home and they are proud of thier success. Katherine Sminck played a fine game making fourteen of the seventeen points for her team. Ruth Wean, Dorothy Merrill and Miss Sminck developed some fast team work, which completely mystified the home players.

The local team was penalized for at least twenty-five fouls. The South Orange team had abundant opportunity to win, but were lamentably weak in foul shooting. The Plainfield team had to play a side centre, making six players in all on a side. The lineup of the Plainfield team follows:

Katherine Sminck, rf; Jessie Stuart, lf; Dorothy Merrill, captain and centre; Ruth Douglass, side centre; Helen Woolley, rg, and Ruth Wean, lg; Miss Day was referee and Miss Johnson, the latter of South Orange, was umpire.

BOWLING.

Plainfield Lodge of Elks will roll its first home series in the Elks' League tomorrow night on Campbell's alleys. The opponents of the locals will be the New Brunswick champions.

The Watchung quintet will journey to Newark tomorrow night and roll against the Colonials and Mineralities in the New Jersey national tourney.

The Fraternal tourney will open on Campbell's alleys on Wednesday, when the Ponies and Public Service five will clash. On Thursday night the Knights of Columbus and Raritan teams will meet.

EUREKA F. C. DEFEATS LOCALS IN CLOSE GAME

The Eureka F. C., of Newark, defeated the Plainfield association football club on the Clinton avenue grounds Saturday afternoon in a fast game by a score of 2 to 0. During the first few minutes of play the ball was kept pretty well in the centre of the field, but before fifteen minutes had passed the Eurekas succeeded in getting a goal from a close scrimmage in the local end of the field. The visitors had several close shaves, but did not score, and half time was called with the score 1 to 0 in favor of the Eurekas.

On resuming play in the second half the Eurekas again made a rush on the Plainfield goal and got another point. The goal-keeper for the Eurekas made two fine saves, and their backs played a great game. There was no more scoring. The lineup:

ORANGE SUBURBANS DEFEATED BY THE Y. M. C. A.

Plainfield's Y. M. C. A.'s basketball quintet was a bit too speedy for the Orange Suburbans in the contest on Saturday night which was won by the locals by the score of 36 to 10. Plainfield clinched the game in the first half by taking the lead by the score of 30 to 22. The locals also excelled in the second half. Denton, Collier and Rumsey did splendid work for Plainfield. The line-up:

The Business Men's basketball five was trimphant over the L. M. C. A. "second team" in a redhot contest on Saturday night by the score of 30 to 29. The game was hotly contested in both halves and was featured by the star work of Line and Best. The line-up:

P. H. S. TEAMS DEFEATED AT MONTCLAIR BY LARGE SCORES

The P. H. S. boys' basketball team went down to defeat at the hands of the Montclair High School, at Montclair, Saturday afternoon, by a score of 54 to 9. It was a fast game and both teams played hard, but Montclair was too strong for the Plainfielders. The Montclair boys ran the score up in spite of all that their opponents could do. Morris played the star game for P. H. S., making four of the seven points. The line-up: Forwards, Morris, Clark and Woodhull; centre, Overton; guards, Doane, Ricketts and Bristol.

The second team from P. H. S., also went down to defeat, Montclair High School seconds winning by a score of 32 to 14. Clark played the best game for Plainfield. The line-up: Forwards, Clark, Woodhull; centre, Manley; guards, Runyon, Bristol.

FARMER MEETS DEATH CROSSING R. R. TRACK

John Mahrr, a farmer, while crossing the Lackawanna tracks in his farm wagon near Stirling, was run down and instantly killed by a west-bound train at ten o'clock on Saturday night. Mahrr was on his way home from Stirling to Pleasant Plains when he met his death. His body was badly mangled while the horse and vehicle were also cut to pieces.

Mahrr was seventy years old and was one of the best known agriculturalists in this section. On Saturday he was in this city marketing produce. The crossing at which Mahrr was killed is unprotected by a gate after eight o'clock at night. During the day time a gateman is on duty but after that hour the gate is raised until morning.

Mahrr is survived by a wife and five children.

NEW EUROPEAN BUSINESS.

Alibis Provided for Anybody Trying to Evade the Law, at Small Cost.

Within the last few years an entirely new industry has been brought to London by an enterprising foreigner. It is not, indeed, a desirable one, and in unskilled hands might verge closely on criminality. Yet there is not great capital in Europe without it, says the Era Magazine. It is the making of alibis, not for criminal, but for purely social and personal purposes.

He provides alibis for all sorts of men all over Europe who have good reason for making their wives, employers or creditors believe them to be in some spot where they are not, and do not intend to be.

As becomes a factor in international relations, he is strictly honest—at least, so he believes—and this was his first affirmation to the interviewer who, pretending that he wanted a letter posted in Marseilles, and paying the sum of 30 cents, wormed himself into confidential relations.

"My business," said the artist in aliases, speaking in excellent English execrably pronounced, "is done chiefly with foreigners. Englishmen—what do you say?—don't cotton to it, though I'm increasing my English clientele. The thing is wanted. In Paris, Lyons, Berlin, Rome, Vienna, Madrid and St. Petersburg, a man who, for honest reasons—not dishonest, mind—wants to give some one the impression that he is in a distant town, while all the time he is close by or in some other town, can pay a small fee and have a letter written by himself posted from the town where he's supposed to be. There was no such thing in London until I set up, and foreign visitors couldn't understand it.

"Suppose you're in a bank or an insurance office. You get gout and gout gets you, a fortnight's holiday, to be spent drinking the waters of Bath. Well, you decide to go to Paris and enjoy yourself. You have a perfect right to do that. But how convenient it is to have a letter posted from Bath! Or, suppose a Manchester man has 'business' in London, and runs over to the French capital for a couple of days. Nobody need know. He can have a letter posted from London every day if he wishes.

"The system is, of course, liable to abuse. But so is every system. In nine cases out of ten it enables a man to have a quiet holiday, and no harm's done. But it requires organization.

"If necessary, I can have letters posted from any post office on the continent. If it is an out-of-the-way palce, I have to make special arrangements and charge a special fee. But for Paris it's a mere trifle—25 cents, in fact. Nothing to a man engaged in amusing himself.

"You see how nicely it works. You have given me a letter to be posted at Marseilles; you have paid me 30 cents. That letter will go in a special envelope by to-night's mail to be delivered to my man at Marseilles to-morrow evening. He will open the envelope immediately, stamp your envelope and post it without a moment's delay. Next day it will arrive in London.

"Don't I think my business questionable? Not a bit! If a man wants to pretend he's somewhere he's not, he'll do it, whether I help him or no. I can't prevent people telling lies, and I may as well help them to do it skillfully."

Weird Apparition in Skirts.

Princeton, N. J.—In the moonlight that flooded the university campus the other night there coquetted a person in a black skirt, an ill fitting waist, and a tilted bonnet, who displayed willingness to flirt with whatsoever might be inclined. The moonlight parader gallivanted for three hours without a single flirtation. Then it sought the home of a well-known professor. There the skirt was released, off came waist and bonnet, and the professor stood revealed. He had volunteered to turn detective in an effort to avert a threatened strike of maid servants in the homes of Princeton professors. The maids are on the point of deserting because of annoyances to which they have been subjected by a mysterious man, who has lain in wait to kiss or hug maids returning home late at night.

HUGO A. [illegible] POET.

Praise For His [illegible] to the Master.

A Paris [illegible] tells a story of Victor Hugo [illegible] young unknown poet. The poet, hailing from the provinces, sent to the author of "Notre Dame de Paris" a copy of his work, which he had just published in the form of a book of poems. Hugo replied in most sympathetic terms, and the young man was delighted with the [illegible] as well he might have been.

His joy, however, was but short lived, for a day or two later his servant announced that the package containing the volume of poems had come back through the post unopened. The package bore the legend, "Refuse par le destinataire affranchissement insuffisant" (refused by the addressee on account of insufficient postage).

Hugo's letter was hyperbolic and in these terms: "Your work has given me a proud pleasure, under the impression of which I hasten to congratulate you. Your fame is young and radiant; mine is declining. It is the salutation of the night which departs at the rising of the dawn. You are shining, and I am dying. You emerge from oblivion; I return there.

"The heart either grows hard or breaks forth. Your sentiments have come forth, and you have written sonorous and superb poetry which consecrates you as a poet as well as affirming you as man. You are then 'deux fois mon frere' (twice my brother). Accept my admiration as great as my esteem."

SEAWEED.

Several Varieties Are Valuable For Food Purposes.

Seaweed is not much to look at, but seaweed does not depend so much upon beauty as upon more substantial merit to make itself worthy of attention. Various species of it are used in manufactures, and several varieties are edible, the most important of the latter being Irish or carrageen moss, used in the preparation of jellies—blancmange, for instance—dulse or dillesk, very highly thought of by Scotland, particularly when roasted by wrapping about hot tongs, and kelp or tangle.

Irish moss and some other species, particularly eel grass and flat stalk rock weed, have been found valuable as cattle food, especially when boiled to destroy the rank taste and mixed with meal. The eel grass and rock weed compare favorably with hay as regards the most important constituent—protein—containing 6.03 and 8.21 per cent respectively. They are deficient in fat, but contain a large amount of ash.

The great bulk of the seaweed gathered, however, is used as a fertilizer, and the average seaweed contains large quantities of all the essential fertilizing elements. Allowing 10 cents a pound for nitrogen, 2 cents a pound for phosphoric acid and 4 cents a pound for potash—and these are as low prices as it is possible to procure these materials in any form—a ton of seaweed containing 80 per cent water is worth as a fertilizer $1.42 a ton.—New York Press.

An Ancient Mountain Race.

The most ancient people still living in the mountains of India are the Todas. Long before the arrival of the other tribes of the region the Todas were the kings of this country, which they held in common without strife or treachery to one another. The Todas are a fine race, tall, well proportioned and with regular features. Their complexion is of a light brown, and their eyes are bright and intelligent. The men wear a linen or cotton garment that reminds a European of the Roman toga. Their bearing is proud and dignified; their countenances are pleasing; their fine straight hair is regularly cut and well kept. Their superior appearance, the mystery that surrounds them and the obscurity of their origin have caused certain students of ethnology to suppose that the Todas are descended from the soldiers of Darius or Alexander, the ancient conquerors of India.

Deaf Guests at Hotels.

"To waken a deaf person who wishes to be called at a certain time in the morning is about the hardest proposition a hotel clerk runs up against," said a member of that fraternity. "To ring the telephone is useless, because the man can't hear. Knocking for the same reason is futile. Now and then a guest who has lost his hearing suggests that he leave his door open, so we can walk right in and shake him, but there are so many chances of somebody less guileless than ourselves walking in ahead of us that we can't consent to that simple expedient. It seems to me that the man who can patent a device for waking the deaf is sure of fame and fortune, not to mention the gratitude of the brotherhood of hotel clerks."—New York Globe.

Think of going out day after day—the same two stock cars—and winning every race offered—from four to 100 miles.

Here is another remarkable fact: In every race which both "30's" were entered they won second place as well as first. BOTH "30's" defeated every other car of their class. They were always together neck and neck, at the finish.

Neither of them was out of commission at any time. The "30's" also won second place three times racing in the bigger car class—the only three races were entered in this class.

During the whole distance covered in all these races the "30's" averaged 60 miles an hour. A mile a minute for every minute they were running on the track.

There are no other cars in the world at any price with such records for consistency.

Members of the technical committee of the A. A. A. and Editors of the Automobile Trade Journals who keep careful records of automobile contests, both in America and Europe, are authority for the statement that the Chalmers Detroit "30's" hold the world's records for consistent performance.

Their records show that the Chalmers Detroit "30's" has won more events in proportion to the total number entered than any other car in the world.

The Chalmers Detroit "30's" sell for $1,500, and it is thoroughly proven to be the best car in the world for the price.

SEWER REPORT RECEIVED

City's Committee on Proposed Joint Sewer Explains why Scheme is Abandoned.

AN EXHAUSTIVE INVESTIGATION

No Joint Ownership With Borough—Not Permissable and Contract Would not be Satisfactory to Plainfield.

After an exhaustive investigation of the subject, in all its phases, the Councilmanic committee for the suggested intermunicipal sewage disposal system made an elaborate report at the meeting of the Common Council last night. Chairman Frederick E. Mygatt presented the document which, after being read, was placed on file.

The report follows:

To the Common Council:

The special sewerage committee reports as follows:

Since the date of its last report your committee was instructed by the Council, in committee of the whole, to prepare and submit a plan for the construction, operation and maintenance of a joint sewerage disposal works by the city and the other interested municipalities.

In endeavoring to formulate such plan, your committee felt that, because of the number and difficulty of the questions to be considered, the most practicable method of making progress was for the committees for Plainfield and North Plainfield, the two largest communities interested in the project, to meet together, and, if possible, agree upon a plan and division of costs and charges, because, if they could not agree, the plan would, of necessity, fall through, whereas, if they could agree, the terms agreed upon could doubtless be easily re-arranged, as necessary, in order to secure the approval of the other and smaller communities.

To that end, therefore, various meetings were held by your committee, and the committee from the borough.

The questions involved in the formulation of a plan were many and difficult, such as the securing of a suitable site and right of way; the kind and capacity of the plant; the management and control of the construction work; the management of the plant; the amount and division of the initial cost, and of the cost of subsequent improvements, additions or repairs; the division of maintenance charges; the limitation of the liability of each community, and the method of securing to each its full measure of benefit from the completed plant.

Two methods of operation were proposed, viz.:

(1) That the city should acquire the site and rights of way, construct and operate the plant, and enter into a contract with the borough, whereby the city should undertake to care for the borough's sewage at an agreed price, and

(2) That the construction and operation should be undertaken jointly, under a contract whereby the expense should be apportioned and each become liable only for so much thereof as should be apportioned to it.

After due consideration your committee decided that the first plan, viz., the contract plan, was the least desirable. Under that plan the city would be called upon to finance the whole construction, involving an issue of bonds in a large amount, against which the city would hold, as security for the shares of the other communities, only a contract extending over a long period of time, with comparatively small annual payments, the possibility of controversy during a term of years, and periodical re-adjustments of the contract, which if the parties themselves could not agree upon, would have to be settled by arbitration, thus creating an uncertainty over which the city would have no control.

The other plan, viz., a joint ownership, did not present the difficulties involved in the contract plan.

The idea with respect to this plan was, that the construction, operation and maintenance should be undertaken jointly by the city and the borough, through a joint board or committee, that the cost of construction should be apportioned between the two, and that each should be responsible only for its proportion of the cost.

Having in view, therefore, a plan for a joint construction, the two communities took up the question of an apportionment of the cost and maintenance.

No difficulty was experienced in arranging for a division of maintenance arose, however, with respect to both that the maintenance charges should be divided in proportion to the amount of sewage delivered by each community. A serious difference arose, however, with respect to the division of the cost of construc-

ENTERTAINS PARK AVE. BAPTIST S. S. CHILDREN

The third in the series of entertainments provided by Superintendent George E. Hall for his school and friends, was given last evening in the Park Avenue Baptist church before an audience that completely filled the large auditorium. The moving pictures by Plumb & Sampson, of New York, were particularly fine, and included subjects both humorous and instructive.

J. Wotley Gangloff, of Dunellen, humorist and dialect story teller, furnished abundance of amusement for both the children and grown-ups.

Several pleasing selections were rendered by the Sunday-school orchestra led by Arthur S. Mosher, violin, and including: Miss Mary Clark, piano; Miss Arline Brown, Miss Marjorie Brown, Charles Wheeler, violins; Elmer P. Wheeler, flute.

The offering was received by the Misses Alice Brown, Emily Templin, Anna Clark, Sarah Boyd and Marion Mortimer.

Mr. Hall stated that the fourth in the series of entertainments is to take place next Monday evening, to which the public is cordially invited.

OUR MEN OF BERKELEY WILL CELEBRATE XMAS

As usual, the society of Our Men of New Providence township, has arranged an elaborate Christmas entertainment for the children of New Providence township, which will be given in the Berkeley Lyceum, Thursday evening, December 23. Professional talent has been engaged from New York, notably Rosani, the great ventriloquist and juggler, and Miss Justine Roberts, the child entertainer.

Pound boxes of candies and oranges galore will be supplied to the children and the Christmas tree will be in evidence. Invitations have been sent to all of the teachers of the township to attend and to extend the invitation to their classrooms and people of the township. This will be another of the series of successful entertainments for which the society has become famous. The entertainments last Christmas and Fourth of July are still fresh in the memories of the children and everyone who witnessed them, and unless the weather is unfavorable, a crowded Lyceum is expected for December 23. A corner has been reserved for Santa Claus in case he finds time to pay Berkeley Heights a visit. The officers of the society are: William Jeffery, president; Angelo Delonico, treasurer, and Frank C. Shaffer, secretary.

PULLED GUN ON WOMAN. REMANDED FOR HEARING.

Willard Hammond, colored, of 117 North avenue, was remanded for a further hearing tomorrow by City Judge William Runyon this morning on a charge of drawing a revolver and threatening to kill Mary Ford, of Park avenue. Mrs. Ford will produce witnesses tomorrow morning to prove that Hammond had threatened to shoot her on other occasions and nearly carried out his threat last night.

Hammond denies having a gun and claims that he was struck from behind by a bottle in the hadns of the Ford woman. She admits using the bottle on her friend, but said she only did it after she had been threatened with death. The pair have been friends for about a year. It was discovered later that Hammond has a gun and it was found secreted in his room in the Belmont Hotel.

ASSESSMENTS REDUCED

Ten of Eighteen Borough Taxpayers Succeed on Appeal in Somerset.

BEFORE THE COUNTY BOARD.

William J. Buttfield Fails to Get a Lower Rating—The Complete List of Those Who Took Appeals.

Ten of the eighteen North Plainfield taxpayers, who filed applications to have their assessments reduced at the recent meeting of the Somerset County Board for the Equalization of Taxes, succeeded in getting reductions; in the cases of the remaining eight, the board voted to let the present assessments stand. All of the allowances were small, the total amount being chopped off in the valuations of real estate and personal property, being $2,451.

Mrs. Charlotte De Meza and Mrs. Margaret Smith received the largest consideration by the board, each receiving a deduction of $600 in their assessments. R. D. Carey, of Washington avenue, succeeded in having his entire bill of $400 on real estate and $1 poll tax thrown out, it being shown that he was not subject to taxation at the time the valuations were made, on the grounds that he was a non-resident and did not own the property at that time.

The board refused to meet the views of William J. Buttfield, and J. C. Tappen the latter representing the estate af Jane and John Tappen. Mr. Buttfield asked the board to reduse the assessment of $45,250 on four plots of ground on West End avenue and Rockview avenue to $39,948, while Mr. Tappen petitioned the board to revise the assessment on the Tappen estate on Maple avenue from $25,800 to $21,925.15. The petitions granted and the amounts follow:

Florence H. DeMeza, 74 Duer street, assessment of $2,750 reduced to $1,950.

Rev. R. S. Campbell, Rockview avenue, assessment of $2,200 reduced to $1,800.

J. Archibald Davie, Manning avenue, entire assessment of $150 on personal property was thrown out.

Antinette Schwartz, Walnut street; assessment of $1,100 reduced to $1,000.

Margaret Smith, 41 Jackson avenue, assessment of $4,600, to $4,000.

W. J. Hudson, Somerset street, assessment of $4,500 reduced to $4,400.

Estate C. A. Hudson, Somerset street, assessment of $4,800 reduced to $4,500.

James Wheeler, 26 Duer str et, personal assessment of $200, reduced to $100.

In addition to the petitions of W. J. Buttfield and the Tappen Estate, the following were refused by the board:

Walter H. Butts, 74 Chatham street, asked that the valuation of his property be reduced from $2,400 to $2,000.

Harold L. Mulford, 110 Park place, asked for a reduction on his property which was rated at $2,800.

Charles Barry, 18 Howard street, asked that the valuation on his property be placed at $1,150.

Mrs. W. M. Murray, of New York, owner of 151-155 Manning avenue, asked that the assessment of $1,550 be reduced to $1,100.

Delia Luebeck, 213 Duer street, asked that the valuation of her property be reduced from $1,450 to $1,200.

A. F. Brokaw, 32 Grandview avenue, asked that an assessment of $400 on an automobile be reduced to $300.

Will Repeat Cantata.

The choir of the First Prebyterian church, assisted by a chorus, will repeat the "Vision of St. John," at the church tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. The text of this cantata is taken from the Book of Revelation and the music is beautifully adapted by J. Whitney Coombs. The public is invited to attend this evening of sacred song and meditation.

WOULD STORE GASOLENE

F. L. C. Martin's Petition to Install Large Tank in Garage Held Up.

MANY COUNCILMEN OPPOSE IT.

Member of Fire Underwriters Board Says It Would Increase the Insurance Rates.

The application of the F. L. C. Martin Auto Company for permission to install a 10,000 gasolene tank on the premises of the company on Park avenue, caused a lively discussion at the December meeting of the Common Council, last night. Judge William Newcorn was present to represent the company, while H. W. Marshall, president of the Board of Trade, spoke against the granting of the application. There were several other interested spectators present in the lobby.

The public hearing brought out a most important fact, which was admitted, and that was that Mayor C J. Fisk had received, unsolicited, from John M. Whiton, of the Board of Fire Underwriters, a letter advising him that in case the gasolene tank of 10,000 gallons is installed, insurance on the adjoining property would be cancelled. It was also stated that a member of the Council had received a letter from Chief Croker, of the New York fire department, in which he spoke strongly against such a proposition. These letters were not read, but it was admitted that they had been received.

Mr. Martin's application was received early in the evening and later it was moved that a public hearing be granted. Judge Newcorn was given the privilege of the floor to speak in favor of the application. He said that he had thoroughly investigated the matter and found that there would be no greater danger from storing 10,000 gallons than one gallon, that every day a Standard Oil Company wagon goes through the city delivering gasolene in the open in five gallon cans, which he considered far more dangerous. It is proposed to place the 10,000 gallon tank four feet underground and equip it with every safety device.

Judge Newcorn said that experts were agreed that there would be no danger provided the tank was properly installed, and Mr. Martin proposed to have the work done by experts, the Hammond Iron Company, of Pennsylvania, that the tank would be constructed of iron and steel and would be thoroughly equipped, making it possible for Mr. Martin to buy his gasolene by the car load. He called attention to the fact that the Standard Oil Company now maintains a receptacle for 30,000 gallons of gasolene on East Third street, and no accident had resulted.

A letter from the officials of the Standard Oil Company's office in Newark, was read showing that if the tank was properly installed there would be no danger. The question as to whether insurance rates would go up was referred to, and in this connection John Tenney, Jr., of this city, who is a member of the committee on fire insurance rates for this district, was given the opportunity to speak.

In talking on the subject, Mr. Teaney was careful to explain that he spoke unofficially, but personally was of the opinion that the installation of the 10,000 gasolene tank would not materially effect the rates, in fact, he could see no reason for an increase. He said that so far as the danger of gasolene was concerned 1,000 gallons was considered as much of a risk as 10,000 gallons. He was questioned at considerable length by the councilmen on various points. He recalled the fact that tanks of a similar capacity were installed at different places in the State, but in answer to a question as to what the restrictions were in New York, said that of course a far less quantity of gasolene was allowed.

As president of the Board of Trade, H. W. Marshall took occasion to speak strongly against the granting of Mr. Martin's application. He said that the board had communicated with committees on combustibles in many cities throughout the country and these answers are coming in rapidly. In New York he learned that 275 gallons of gasolene is permitted in one building, and he thought it would be well to have such a restriction incorporated in the building code here. The quantity permitted in other cities was given as follows:

Jersey City, 1,375 gallons; Louisville, Ky., 250 gallons; San Francisco, 1,200 gallons; Knoxville, Tenn., 110 gallons; Baltimore, 275 gallons, and Atlanta, Ga., 200 gallons, and Mr. Marshall explained in these cities the gasolene must be kept underground in tanks properly installed.

Mr. Marshall then called the attention of the Council to the unso-

THIRD M'INTYRE CONCERT

Tschaikowsky's "Au Memoire d'un Grand Artiste" Splendidly Performed.

VLADIMIR DUBINSKY SCORES.

John Young, a Lyric Tenor, Makes Favorable Impression in Two Groups of Songs.

With nearly every seat in the main floor and in the gallery occupied, one of the largest and most appreciative audiences yet to greet Joseph McIntyre and his assisting artists assembled at the High School auditorium last evening for the third of the present series of Chamber Music Concerts.

The program was so replete with gems, vocal and instrumental, that it is difficult to hazard a guess as to which particular number brought forth the most vociferous applause. With John Young, tenor, and Vladimir Dubinsky, cellist as soloists, and Tschoikowsky's exquisite trio, "Au Memoire d'un Grand Artiste," in A minor for piano, violin and cello, the program was to the liking of all and each selection was so spontaneously applauded that the artists, one and all, graciously responded with an encore number.

The trio, beyond question, was the most pretentious as well as the most exquisitely rendered offering yet presented at the McIntyre concerts. Joseph McIntyre presided at the piano, assisted by Hans Letz, violinist, and Mr. Dubinsky, cellist. These three artists gave a brilliant interpretation of the great Russian composer's masterpiece. Mr. McIntyre was at his best, never has he played more brilliantly than last night. In reality this work of Tschaikowsky's is a piano concerto with strong accompaniment, but so exquisitely are the parts blended that each artist is afforded an opportunity to stand boldly forth for a time and carry the beautiful and plaintive melody that threads it way through the maze of variations.

The trio is in four movements. The opening movement shows Tschaikowsky in one of his most distinctive and characteristic moods, the depicting of deep felt grief, which is perhaps better illustrated here than in any other of his works unless it be in his Pathetique Symphony.

The heading of the movement, Pesso Elegiaco, prepares the mind for the sad and mournful mood which is carried out to considerable length.

The Elegiac theme is worked up to a majestic storm of passion and gradually dies away in a dull reverberation of minor chords, then, by a beautiful enharmonic change develops a new melody of great beauty telling of hope and consolation; changing again to the Elegiac theme in its original tempo, and developing in its former order to noble and exalted heights it gradually subsides to a plaintive pianissimo of exquisite beauty. Truly a collosal movement.

The second part is in the form of an Air with Variations unusually interesting as an embodiment of Tschaikowsky's memories of Rubenstein's musical life.

Here are reminiscences of the latter's career as a pianist. A violin melody with running pianoforte accompaniment and melodious cello counterparts. Then a cello part with sustained pianoforte chords and violin counterpoints.

Following this, a short brilliant variation with a music-box effect over a droning brass for the strings leading directly to a waltz in Tschaikowsky's most irresistible syle. Then a pathetically expressive movement in muted strings with harp-like pianoforte accompaniment. Changing completely, a sprightly Chopinesque Mazurka and finally a return to the original theme with no variation except in the method of accompaniment.

The last movement is an Allegro, majestic and vigorous, followed by an andante, the Elegiac subject, for the strings, treated with enormous Arpeggios for the pianoforte.

The final thirteen bars with dirgelike bass notes, melancholy chords for the pianoforte, die away into silence, and the hearer is left with a deep feeling of sorrow.

Mr. Dubinsky's solo offering was Davidoff's "Ballade," which earned him so many rounds of applause that he was compelled to take an encore.

Mr. Young was heard in two groups of three songs, the first German, the second English. At the conclusion of the first group he sank "Killarney" for his encore number, which brought forth a storm of applause. His concluding number was "What Else Could I Do," a delightful hit, sung with true dramatic effect.

It was announced last night that the fourth and concluding concert of the present winter series will be on January 10, instead of January 17, as previously designated.

EDUCATORS ENTERTAINED AT THE WATCHUNG CREST

There was an unusually fine "musicale" at Watchung Crest on Saturday night. A number of friends were the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Maxmilian P. E. Groszmann, among them Dr. and Mrs. Richard Moldenke, Dr. Henry M. Maxson, John Leal and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Frank T. Clawson, Dr. and Mrs Herbert E. Baright. Numbers were rendered by the well known New York violinist, Maurice Nitke, who is one of the finest interpreters of violin music in this country; by Miss Rose Ruth Levine, who possesses a soprano voice of excellent quality, and Mlle. Yvonne Koeniger, of Paris, pianist. Mlle. Koeniger also acted as accompanist to Mr. Nitke and Miss Levine.

Those present enjoyed the rendering of classic and modern music as presented by these artists, very much indeed, and hearty was the applause at the end of each piece. Refreshments and an informal dance closed the evening in a pleasant way. The same artists rendered several numbers in connection with the Pupils' Ethical service at the Groszmann School on Sunday morning.

ADVANCES REASONS AGAINST SOCIALISM

The concluding lecture of the course on Socialism, planned by the Monday Afternoon Club, was delivered yesterday at the Hartridge auditorium by John Bates Clark, Ph. D., LL. D., professor of political economy at Columbia University. His subject was "What We Should Do About Socialism."

At the beginning of his lecture Dr. Bates gave eight reasons why it was not wise to accept the socialist program, based on the complete absorption of all production by the State. Among these was the normal condition, which is pursuit of wealth, which would be exchanged for ambition for office which would result in the survival of the unfittest the great magnitude of the directive ability required would find few able to cope with the undertaking; there would be no means of avoiding coercion as to occupations, arduous, disagreeable and dangerous; the great progress in production due to mechanical appliances was the result of competitive skill, not possible in the socialist's system; invention would stagnate without the hope of reward, except simply a decoration; the corresponding growth of capital that must accompany increase of population, to prevent suffering, would be difficult to accomplish and if the riches of the world were devided pro rata, it would not sound like the millenium.

Dr. Clark expressed his faith in our present system, for while not ideally perfect, honesty was the rule and its evils could be corrected. Legislation is one of the ways to deal with monopolies, he said. "Keep alive the spirit of competition," urged the speaker, who said further he did not believe equality of possessions ensured equality of enjoyment. He looked forward to the future when accumulated capital, improved methods of machinery and freer competition would raise the working people to the row-boat lever, as compared with the millionaire's yacht, in which there might be equal enjoyment.

Councilmen Invited.

The members of the Common Council, through Duncan W. Taylor, have received an invitation to attend a meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association at the Franklin School, Thursday night, when Howard Bradstreet, secretary of the Playground Association of New York city, will speak. Mayor Charles Joel Fisk will preside. The public is invited.

Merchants to Dine.

The Plainfield Merchants' Association is making elaborate plans for its annual banquet to be held probably on Thursday night, January 20, at Truell Hall. It will be the most pretentious affair yet undertaken by the merchants and the price of tickets will be raised from $3 to $4 in the hope that there will be no deficit.

Thomas F. McGinnis.

The funeral of Thomas F. McGinnis, who died on Sunday, will be held tomorrow morning, leaving his late residence, 710 Central street, 8:15 and St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock, where a requiem mass will be said. The interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Boston Editor to Speak Here.

The teachers of the Plainfield and North Plainfield public schools will hold their first meeting of the year tomorrow afternoon at the Plainfield High School auditorium. An address will be delivered by Henry T. Bailey, of Boston, editor of the School Arts Book.

NO GRAFT AT DUNELLEN

Plans for "Rake-off" on Fire Hose Nipped by Council.

FENNER AWARDED CONTRACT.

Mayor Swackhamer Reports Progress on Sewerage Project—Council Accepts the Sandford Fountain.

Graft in Dunellen municipal affairs was never dreamed of by the inhabitants of that municipality until a few weeks ago when a rumor got in circulation that a couple of persons were in line to receive a "rake off" should the Council place an order of a certain brand of fire hose; if such was the case the graft worm was killed by the Council last night when that body accepted the bid of John Fenner, the hardware merchant, of that place, to supply the fire department with 150 feet of hose.

About a couple of months ago the fire department recommended the purchase of some new hose. Bids were received from Mr. Fenner and also from out of town parties. The sentiment of the Council was to place the order with Mr. Fenner, but an objection was raised, on the ground that Fenner was unable to furnish the desired brand, so at the November session of the Council the matter was allowed to lay on the table, and new bids were ordered.

In the meantime it was learned that a certain concern which was anxious to secure the business had quoted two different prices, one 55 cents a foot and another 65 cents a foot. The fact of the company naming the two prices for the same grade of hose led some of the councilmen to believe that the 10 cent margin meant a little "gravy" for some person or persons, and then the rumor of "graft" spread throughout the political circles of the borough.

If there was any graft intended, it was given a deathblow last night when the Council voted unanimously to give Mr. Fenner the order. Former Councilman Wilson Frederick, a member of the fire department, was "Mr. Graft's undertaker. Mr. Frederick was present at the session and when the hose question came up for attention, he made a few terse and plain remarks in which he gave his opinion of the matter, "The bids of the out of town people," he said, "looks crooked to me. Nobody can make me believe otherwise. This concern has named two different prices, 55 cents and 65 cents, to different dealers. I think there is something crooked going on."

Mr. Frederick supplemented his remarks by declaring he had seen the different quotations in writing and said it was plain to him that everything was not on the level. As a member of the department he recommended that John Fenner be given the contract, and when the vote was taken, there was not a dissenting opinion.

As forecasted in The Daily Press yesterday Mayor-elect William A. Sanford presented to the borough a drinking fountain. The Council expressed its appreciation of Mr. Sanford's generosity by tendering him a vote of thanks. The fountain will be placed in the middle of Prospect avenue at the intersection of North avenue. It will contain three basins.

Mayor Swackhamer referred to the proposed sewerage system by informing the Council that the matter between North Plainfield borough and township was progressing satisfactory. He stated that that the Zvonlnack farm west of Sebring's mills would in all probability be purchased for the beds.

C. W. Huff presented a revised bill for street sprinkling, and it was ordered paid. A batch of other miscellaneous bills were also ordered paid. The Council also confirmed the recent election in the fire department.

We again admonish those who favor Black Furs, that the best time for buying—for Xmas needs—is NOW, while perfect choice and lowest prices are available.

Pictures for Gift Givers

A Wonderful Collection Here for You to Choose From

Our Picture Galleries, always immensely interesting, are now daily thronged with seekers of beautiful, lasting gifts, for there is nothing much more pleasing than a fine picture, especially if it be an everlasting oil painting.

OIL PAINTINGS.

The collection of Oil Paintings is a remarkable one, embracing, as it does, magnificent original works that we value as high as $10,000, and running down to the popular little gold framed paintings that we sell at the extraordinary price of $2.50.

We have brought Oil Paintings within the reach of everyone, and we are able to sell them, because of our large purchases, at about half their actual value.

There are subjects here of every sort—landscapes and marines predominating, of course; they are the work of skilled foreign artists, some of whom will, doubtless, some day earn wide fame because of the excellence of their products.

These paintings are beautifully framed in gold, and all have protection boxes with glass. They are priced according to their size, and this is how we are selling them:

Paintings worth $50 at $30 and $25.
Paintings worth $40 at $20.
Paintings worth $25 at $15.
Paintings worth $20 at $10.
Paintings worth $15 at $7.50.
Paintings worth $10 at $5.
Paintings worth $5 at $2.50.

We direct particular attention to these paintings selling at $5 and $2.50. They are truly the most unusual value we have ever been able to offer in the picture line. Think of getting genuine oil paintings on canvas, framed in gold, with protection box, at the price of the ordinary colored print.

PICTURE FRAMING.

We do the largest picture framing business of any concern in the State, and we are filling many orders at the present time, keeping all our workers busy day and night.

If you have framing to do we advise you to place your orders at once.

MIRRORS FOR GIFTS.

In no other Newark establishment will you find such a splendid collection of mirrors as we present for selection. Here you can pick beautiful gifts at little cost and be very certain of delighting the recipient.

There are mirrors here in gold antique finish and Circassian walnut frames, some of the larger ones being in fine Colonial designs, and the prices range from $1 to $25.

We are featuring three styles. Of these we would say a word in detail:

$10 Mirrors in French antique frames with French picture top, bow knot design, covering a wall space 13x49 in.; very tall and handsome; are being sold at $5.00

$5 AND $10 PICTURES.

Remarkable collections at both the popular prices—$5 and $10—large pastels in gilt frames, mainly marines and landscapes and many beautiful figures as well as large water color etchings, in mission frames.

We devote one big division of the Picture Galleries to the $5 pictures, making it easy for you to pick when you have decided upon the amount you wish to spend.

$2.50 PICTURES.

Pictures at this price are always immensely popular—and they are especially so here because we are selling pictures, easily worth $5, at $2.50.

A feature of the $2.50 collection is the picture of the "Lady with the Fan" and its companion, "The Duchess," by Gainsborough. Both of them rank high in the world as practically perfect specimens of pictures of women. These are in handsome gilt frames and formerly sold at $5.

Other beautiful pictures in gilt frames including etchings, colored oleographs, colored photos, all large pictures and easily worth double the money, are included in this collection at $2.50.

There are many other lower-priced pictures, including the Harrison Fisher, Christy, and other productions, and a truly remarkable line selling for as little as 25c—pictures of the sort largely used by Sunday Schools for Christmas tree affairs.

COLORED PHOTOS.

The famous Wallace Nutting Water Color Photos, taken on the Nutting farm and colored by the best experts in hand-coloring, are growing in popular favor every day.

These pictures show colonial cottage scenes—interiors and exteriors, with men and women in the old-time costumes, and the old rag carpet rugs on the floor, ancient fire-places, delightful old-time doorways, and the most charming woodland and water scenes—some particularly fine sheep pictures being included.

All these colored photographs are signed by Wallace Nutting.

They are framed in neat gold frames, heavily matted. The prices rang from $2 to $7.

FINE GIFT PICTURES.

There are no more popular subjects in the higher grade pictures than

"When the Heart Is Young" and "Dream of Love."

These we have featured for some time, and we have them for the holidays together with a large line of other colored photogravures, all large-sized pictures, copyrighted pictures, filling a wall space 36x40 inches, with fine Paris mats and heavy Roman gold frames.

The regular value of these pictures is $18, but we are making the Christmas price $12.50

We recommend these most highly to the favor of those desiring to get really fine gifts.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

David Holcombe, a farmer, ran into the snares of Gloucester Saturday night and came out with two ugly cuts in the head. He was cared for at the city hall.

Rev. Benjamin Collins, of Millville, preached at the celebration of the eighty-seventh anniversary of the old Zion M. E. church, Bargaintown, Atlantic county, Sunday.

Trenton is soon to have a public auction of a city hall. The new municipal building will be ready for use during the coming summer. It is expected that the old building will bring about $200,000.

Princess Ruspoli and Marquois Perigord, principal stockholders in the Chatsworth Estate Company, near Medford, have disposed of their property rights to a New York syndicate, which also bought other real estate in the same vicinity.

At the December meeting of the Gloucester County Board of Freeholders Thursday, a steward and matron of the almshouse will be elected. Thus far there is no opposition to the re-election of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ridgeway.

There was such a rush at the opening of a new local variety and notion store in Asbury Park Saturday that policemen had to be sent to the scene to quell the disorder caused by women crazed by the bargain fever. Several of the women indulged in hand-to-hand encounters in their efforts to get the same articles.

Through the concerted action of several business men Pacific avenue, one of the principal business thoroughfares of Wildwood, has been supplied with large electric lights, which were lighted for the first time Saturday evening. The lights will burn throughout the holiday season and also in the spring and summer.

The dry brush and leaves in the vicinity of the Dean McNulty home for boys at Lower Preakness was set afire by boys Sunday afternoon and for a time the home was threatened. The fire alarm was sounded, and both companies from Totowa Borough responded and managed to beat out the fire before it reached the home.

The New Jersey and Pennsylvania Traction Company and the Trenton Street Railway Company are both endeavoring to get permission to extend their lines to Washington's Crossing, the scene of the proposed national park. Because of the rivalry between these corporations unusual concessions are being offered by them to the township committees.

Struck in the head with a baseball bat, Thomas Daly, twenty-five years old, of Ninth and Carpenter streets, Camden, sustained a fracture of the skull early Sunday morning, and for a time he was in a serious condition, but there was hope for his recovery late last night. He is in Cooper Hospital. Daniel Hart, Malachi Keefe and John Devlin were arrested on suspicion of being implicated in the assault.

Barred by the New Jersey laws from purchasing cigarettes, Arthur Lloyd, Norman Champion and William Sculbeker determined to become bandits of the Jesse James stripe and broke their way into the Central News Agency in the Pennsylvania Railroad station, Atlantic City. Detectives of the local force, who had been on the lookout for adult thieves, picked up the lads with their loot and the youngsters are now in jail.

By means of a decoy letter, officers captured Charles H. Richman on Broad street bridge, Bridgeton, Saturday night. Richman, it is charged, had been badly frightening young women out near Seeley. A letter was written with the name of one of them attached asking him to meet her on the bridge. Richman came, officers were on hand and the girl was there to identify him. He is now in jail awaiting a hearing. He is forty-eight years old.

BANK PLANS BUILDING.

National State to Erect a $100,000 Home.

A new banking building, to cost at least $100,000, will stand at the corner of East Grand and Broad streets, Elizabeth. The structure will be built by the National State Bank, now occupying quarters in 68 Broad street. The bank is understood to have an option on the Justice Morris estate, which now stands at East Grand and Broad streets. The new building will stand diagonally opposite the $80,000 structure now in course of erection by the Union County Trust Company.

This latter company has absorbed the Citizens' Bank, and some of the stockholders in the latter concern are contemplating the establishment of a new bank uptown, making five banks in the city.

GIRL STILL MISSING.

No Clue Found to Whereabouts of Etta Meyer.

Hoboken, Dec. 7.—Etta Meyer, 19 years old, of 60 Madison street, has disappeared, and no clue to her whereabouts has been obtained by the police. The hospitals, morgues and public institutions in New York and other nearby cities have been searched and everything possible done but no trace of the girl has been found.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

Official batting averages of the American League just given out show that Ty Cobb, of Detroit, led the league again, and by a wider margin than ever before, his percentage being .377 as against .346 for Eddie Collins, of the Athletics. Cobb led in stealing bases as well, with 76 to his credit, while Collins was second in this department also, stealing 67 bases. Cobb made 216 hits and Collins 198. Lapp, of the Athletics, and Gardner, of the New York Yankees, who played in only a few games, were third and fourth, and Napoleon Lajoie, of Cleveland, was fifth.

The first Yankee player who played in enough games to figure properly is Frank Laporte, who is tenth, with the fine percentage of .298; Chase, with .284; Engle, with .273; Keeler, with .264; and Cree, with .262, are the best of the other New York players.

Detroit leads in team batting, with Boston second. In this table New York stands fourth.

Nine players batted for a percentage of .300 or better—Cobb, Collins, Lapp, Gardiner, Lajoie and Crawford, of Detroit; Lord, of Boston; Baker, of Philadelphia, and Speaker, of Boston. Cobb and Speaker each made seven home runs, and were tied for first honors in that respect.

Town Gets Big Plant.

Bridgeton, Dec. 7.—Encouraged to locate here by the Bridgeton Commercial League, the Martin Dye Works is erecting the largest building in the city. Many hands will be employed in the works when it is ready for operation. To celebrate its achievements in booming the city the league will hold a smoker at its headquarters tomorrow night, and each of the 300 members is expected to bring from one to three guests.

READ THE MESSAGE.

President William H. Taft's first annual message to Congress, which was read in both Houses at noon today, should be read carefully not only by the voters but by every man, woman and child. There is a fund of information, regarding the present status of National affairs and the policies of the Government, to be obtained in its perusal that can be gotten in no other way. To thoroughly understand and appreciate the deliberations of the Congress during the present important session, one must, in fact, be acquainted with the recommendations set forth by the President. The document is reproduced in abridged form because the average reader will not spare the time to read the complete text.

SEWER COMMITTE REPORT.

Why the city has decided to abandon its efforts to build and maintain, in common with surrounding communities, a sewage disposal plant is concisely set forth in the report of the Councilmanic committee entrusted with the investigation of the subject. This report also outlines the reasons why it has been impossible to arrive at a fair agreement with North Plainfield whereby the city could construct the plant and make a contract with North Plainfield to dispose of its sewage. The final report as published today shows conclusively that the committee exhausted every effort to arrive at a satisfactory arrangement with North Plainfield and that its efforts were in vain.

"A JAPANESE GIRL" WILL RIVAL THE MIKADO

The presentation of the operetta, "A Japanese Girl," which will be given by the Cup Bearers, Circle of the King's Daughters, at the Hartridge School Auditorium Thursday night and again on Friday, with a matinee, will present a chorus of forty fresh young voices and an array of costuming which will rival the "Mikado." The solo parts are all in competent hands and S. Frederick Smith, the organist and choirmaster of Grace P. E. church, who has drilled the chorus, believes that this will be one of the events of the season.

Below will be found the story of the operetta with the argument which makes it possible.

The idea of this operetta was suggested by reading an account of a picturesque custom prevalent in some parts of Japan. When a near relative has to be absent from home for a considerable period he often leaves behind a growing plant, young tree, or singing bird, which is called by his name and regarded as his substitute.

The greatest care is bestowed on this object, as it is considered most unlucky to the person whom it represents, should any harm befall it during his absence.

The first act opens by a number of Japanese girls visiting O Hanu San, a young Japanese beauty who is about to celebrate her eighteenth birthday, regarded in Japan as "the coming of age."

The story is told in the dialogue and songs and contains many amusing and interesting situations.

In the second act, two American girls, who are touring in Japan with their governess for education and pleasure, are impelled by curiosity to enter the garden, and while their governess is sketching they slip away from her.

The Japanese girls returning resent the intrusion of a foreigner and awake the governess, who has fallen asleep at her easel, and pretend not to understand her explanations. O Hanu San comes to her rescue and in the end invites the American ladies to remain as her guests and witness the interesting and quaint ceremonies which are about to commence. They accept gratefully and win the hearts of all.

KNOCKS WOMAN DOWN AND THEN SPEEDS AWAY

Mrs. Annie Sutphen, of 115 Church stret, was knocked down and bruised by a bicycle rider last night while attempting to cross Watchung avenue at the corner of Fourth street. Mrs. Sutphen was assisted to Olmsted's news store, where she was revived and taken to her home.

The identity of the reckless rider could not be ascertained as he mounted his wheel and got away without anyone seeing who he was. It is said that the wheelman carried no light, neither did he ring a warning bell. The police are on the lookout for just such riders and the first one caught will be severely dealt with.

licited letter received by Mayor Fisk from Mr. Whiton, declaring that insurance will be cancelled on property within a defined territory in the vicinity of the Martin garage, if the tank was installed. He also referred to the letter received from Chief Croker.

"The question is," continued Mr. Marshall, "whether we want that gasolene tank installed in the heart of the city. If this application is granted there will be other applications. I am informed by a Standard Oil man that there are dangers in unloading gasolene through the breaking of a connection. And Mr. Whiton has stated that the insurance rates will be effected here if the tank is installed.

As an adjoining property-owner, John Manley entered his protest. He said that he hoped to erect a fine building on his property to cost several times 10,000 gallons of gasolene and he for one objected to granting the application. He had understood that in New York it is required that gasolene be delivered in steel barrels.

In reply Judge Newcorn explained that conditions in New York as compared with Plainfield are very different. He also called attention to the fact that in Newark there is a gasolene tank of 1,200 gallon capacity and one of 10,000 in Asbury Park.

He referred to the system employed at the Waldorf-Hotel on East Front street, where gasolene is used for lighting purposes and where 200 gallons of the liquid is stored in reserve and in his opinion that is more dangerous than a 10,000 gallon tank, and yet rates have not been increased there.

This closed the hearing and President Tolles announced that no action would be taken at that time on the application. In this connection, Councilman Taylor, chairman of the fire and building committee, who has the matter in charge, said that the committee would be glad to receive communications or any further information on the subject and that the committee would meet Friday night to further consider the proposition.

A NUISANCE.

Editor, The Daily Press:

The passengers on the main line trolley car arriving at the Watchung avenue transfer station at 8:45 this morning were glad to alight from the car and catch the train which was just pulling into the North avenue station. And there was a reason. The conductor who acts as stoker as well as collector of nickels managed to fill the car with smoke to the extent of making many of the passengers seek the rear platform in an effort to escape asphyxiation. Being a passenger the writer believes that if the Public Service Railway Co. really wants to serve the public it will institute a heating system similar to the electric heat adopted by many of the trolley railroads in other parts of the country.

HANGS HIMSELF IN JAIL.

Prisoner's Body Found Hanging On Cell Door.

New Brunswick, Dec. 7.—John Grassman, a German farm hand, who has been employed by John Major, a farmer, of Cranbury, for the past three years, hung himself in a cell in police headquarters Sunday.

Sergeant Kelly saw Grassman's body hanging from the door of the cell. He cut it down. The man was still alive. A physician was summoned, but before he arrived the man died.

Little is known of the man at Cranbury. He simply drifted to that place a few years ago and secured a job. It is believed that he has relatives in Trenton. He was about 45 years old. When arrested he had a bag of nuts, some oranges, a pair of boots and a bottle of whiskey.

tion, including the cost of additions, improvements and repairs.

The committee from the borough proposed that such cost should be apportioned, eighty per cent to the city, and twenty per cent to the borough. In arriving at this proportion, that committee assumed the total population of the city and the borough at twenty-four thousand, and calculated that the borough's population (estimated at fifty-five hundred), was 22.92% of the whole, and the city's population (estimated at 18,500), was 77.08%. They further assumed that the total assessed valuation of the city and borough, was $27,080,000, of which the borough's assessed valuation (estimated at $4,380,000), was 16.18%, and the city's assessed valuation (estimated at $22,700,000), was 83.82%. They then averaged these percentages, and reached the result. (North Plainfield, 22.92% plus 16.18% equals 39.10, called 40, of which one-half is 20%. Plainfield, 77.08% plus 83.82% equals 160.90, called 160, of which one-half is 80%).

Your committee, however, felt that neither the method adopted, nor the result reached, by the borough committee, was satisfactory. With respect to the method, it was conceded that an apportionment of a part of the cost, according to population, was reasonable, but they could not accept an apportionment of the remaining part on the basis of assessed values. With respect to the result, they would not accept a division on the basis of 80% and 20% (because, (a) those percentages were figured on a basis that was not satisfactory, and (b) that the percentage required to be paid by the city was too high.

On such a basis, assuming the cost at $300,000, Plainfield would be required to pay $240,000 and North Plainfield $60,000.

Your committee on its part, proposed that the cost should be apportioned 70% to Plainfield and 30% to North Plainfield, whereby Plainfield (on the same basis of cost), would pay $210,000 and North Plainfield $90,000.

In arriving at this basis of apportionment, your Committee had in mind the fact that Plainfield now had a plant in operation which would have to be abandoned, and they were of the opinion that a joint proposition could not, as between Plainfield and North Plainfield, be undertaken on the same basis as it could if neither community had a plant in operation. They, therefore, undertook to arrive at a proposition which, from a business point of view, would warrant Plainfield in abandoning its present plant and entering upon a joint construction, and while the proportion suggested by your committee was not based on any particular plan of averaging percentages, the proportion which they did suggest does in fact approximate very closely the average between the percentage of population and the percentage which the area lying within the limits of each municipality bears to the total area of both.

The discussion of the division of cost was exhaustive and for a time unfruitful, but finally it was suggested by North Plainfield that a basis of 75 per cent. and 25 per cent. should be adopted, upon the understanding that if any other community should join in the propect, the amount to be paid by them toward the construction cost should be apportioned on the same basis (viz: 75 per cent. and 25 per cent.) between the city and borough, thus operating to reduce the cost to each accordingly. Coupled with this suggestion, however, was the statement that the suggestion was final, and that if the city did not accept it the negotiations must fail.

While your committee still felt that the basis proposed by it was not unreasonable, they decided, after further consideration, that as the completion of the project seemed to be in the interest of the city, and as it had already involved a great deal of study and considerable expense, it was not desirable to permit the negotiations to fail, and it was, therefore, agreed that each committee should recommend to its respective Council that the cost be adjusted on the basis of 75 per cent. thereof to be paid by Plainfield, and 25 per cent. by North Plainfield.

On the return of the Corporation Counsel from his vacation, your committee took up with him the plan proposed, and a conference was arranged between him and the attorney for North Plainfield, with respect to the legal questions involved. Thereafter a meeting of the two committees was held, at which the corporation counsel and the attorney for the borough were present, at which time the corporation counsel advised your committee that in his opinion there was no existing law under which a joint ownership plan, such as had been under consideration, could properly be undertaken by the city. He, however, advised that under existing laws a contract plan could be undertaken.

It was suggested that, as the contract plan was not desirable, an attempt should be made to secure further legislation under which a joint ownership plan could be carried out, but it was stated by North Plainfield that the borough could not wait for such legislation, but must take action at once, and, therefore, there was nothing to do but to see if the terms of a contract could be agreed upon.

While your committee still felt that a contract plan was not advisable, for the reasons hereinbefore set forth, a meeting was subsequently held with the committee from the borough, to further consider the matter, but it soon became apparent that, even if the objections of your committee with respect to the plan could be overcome, no agreement could be reached as to terms, for the reason that the ideas of your committee with respect thereto differed radically from those of the committee from the borough. In this connection, your committee would call attention to the fact that before the project which this committee had under consideration, was proposed, it was suggested that the city should care for the borough's sewage at the present city disposal works, and at that time a tentative contract was prepared along lines which, it was thought, would be proper from the city's point of view. The terms of this proposed contract were satisfactory to the representative of the borough and the plan, as provided for in the proposed contract, was agreed to be fair and reasonable, but when the payments to be made by the borough thereunder were figured out, they proved to be more than the borough was willing to make.

In considering a contract for the present plan, your committee felt that the same general scheme should be adopted, as was provided for in the prior proposed contract, but the borough committee did not, and while no definite proposition as to payments was made by either committee, the suggestions offered were such as to show that the committees were hopelessly apart, and your committee, therefore, after again considering the whole matter, at length, wrote to the North Plainfield committee as follows:

"In view of the opinion of the corporation counsel of the city of Plainfield, that the only practicable method of establishing a joint sewerage disposal system between Plainfield and North Plainfield, is to have the whole plant constructed by Plainfield, and a contract for the use thereof made with North Plainfield, and after due deliberations, the Plainfield special sewerage committee has concluded that such an arrangement could not be effected according to the best interests of the city of Plainfield, and that committee, as now advised, proposed to report accordingly to its Common Council."

Your committee regrets that a satisfactory plant could not be evolved under existing laws. They believe the project has much to commend it, and that its consummation would be to the interest of the city and the surrounding communities. In order to accomplish the result, however, your committee believes that the project, if carried out at all, should be carried out on a business basis. They believe that such a basis could be worked out, and that if so worked out, the necessary legislation could be obtained to make it effective.

In their present negotiations they have earnestly endeavored, so far as their best judgment would permit, to co-operate with the borough in perfecting a satisfactory plan, but, restricted as they were under existing laws, to a contract plan, they concluded and do now report, that in their opinion a contract plan would not be in the interest of the city, and should not be entered into.

VOTING MACHINE'S RETURNS CORRECT.

Passaic, Dec. 7.—Charles O. Fuller, an inspector from the office of the secretary of State opening the voting machine used in the Fourth district of the Fourth Ward at the last election, and which registered a total in the eleventh column of 636 votes, whereas only 275 were cast. The examination took place in the presence of J. Sayre Oakley, custodian of the voting machines of this city, and several city officials.

The counters in the eleventh column showed 444 votes for McDonald, Republican; Cannon, Democrat, 153, and two other candidates 13 and 26, and in three squares further down, in which there were no candidates, were the numbers 3, 7 and 4. The fact that there were no candidates opposite these figures and there were no other figures on either side was proof to the inspector, custodian and others that numbers had been left in that column from the previous election. The machine indicated that 275 votes had been cast on November 2 and that the total vote upon it since it was put in use was 6,909.

To prove that the machine was not at fault a test vote was taken and was correctly recorded.

MESSAGE READ TO CONGRESS

No Tariff Revision For the Present.

NICARAGUAN TROUBLE.

Irresponsible Nations Not Protected by Monroe Doctrine.

A DEFICIT OF $73,075,600.

Legislation Urged Against Injunctions Without Notice.

Washington, Dec. 7.—In his annual message, read to congress, President Taft said:

To the Senate and the House of Representatives:

The relations of the United States with all foreign governments have continued upon the normal basis of amity and good understanding and are very generally satisfactory.

Europe.

The American rights [in the fisheries on the north Atlantic coast] under the fisheries article of the treaty of 1818 have been a cause of difference between the United States and Great Britain for nearly seventy years. The interests involved are of great importance to the American fishing industry, and the final settlement of the controversy [by the permanent court of arbitration at The Hague] will remove a source of constant irritation and complaint. This is the first case involving such great international questions which has been submitted to the permanent court of arbitration at The Hague.

Negotiations for an international conference to consider and reach an arrangement providing for the preservation and protection of the fur seals in the north Pacific are in progress with the governments of Great Britain, Japan and Russia. The attitude of the governments interested leads me to hope for a satisfactory settlement of this question as the ultimate outcome of the negotiations.

The Near East.

The quick transition of the government of the Ottoman empire from one of retrograde tendencies to a constitutional government with a parliament and with progressive modern policies of reform and public improvement is one of the important phenomena of our times. Constitutional government seems also to have made further advance in Persia. These events have turned the eyes of the world upon the near east. In that quarter the prestige of the United states has spread widely through the peaceful influence of American schools, universities and missionaries. There is every reason why we should obtain a greater share of the commerce of the near east since the conditions are more favorable now than ever before.

Latin America.

One of the happiest events in recent pan-American diplomacy was the pacific, independent settlement by the governments of Bolivia and Peru of a boundary difference between them, which for some weeks threatened to cause war and even to entrain imbitterments affecting other republics less directly concerned.

Our Citizens Abroad.

This administration, through the department of state and the foreign service, is lending all proper support to legitimate and beneficial American enterprises in foreign countries, the degree of such support being measured by the national advantages to be expected. A citizen himself cannot by contract or otherwise divest himself of the right, nor can this government escape the obligation, of his protection in his personal and property rights when these are unjustly infringed in a foreign country. To avoid ceaseless vexations it is proper that in considering whether American enterprise should be encouraged or supported in a particular country the government should give full weight not only to the national as opposed to the individual benefits to accrue, but also to the fact whether or not the government of the country in question is in its administration and in its diplomacy faithful to the principles of moderation, equity and justice upon which alone depends international credit in diplomacy as well as in finance.

The Monroe Doctrine.

The pan-American policy of this government has long been fixed in its principles and remains unchanged. With the changed circumstances of the United States and of the republics to the south of us, most of which have great natural resources, stable government and progressive ideals, the apprehension which gave rise to the Monroe doctrine may be said to have nearly disappeared, and neither the doctrine as it exists nor any other doctrine of American policy should be permitted to operate for the perpetuation of irresponsible government, the escape of just obligations or the insidious allegation of dominating ambitions on the part of the United States.

My meeting with President Diaz and the greeting exchanged on both American and Mexican soil served, I hope, to signalize the close and cordial relations which so well bind together this republic and the great republic immediately to the south, between which there is so vast a network of material interests.

I am happy to say that all but one of the cases which for so long vexed our relations with Venezuela have been settled within the past few months, and that, under the enlightened regime now directing the government of Venezuela, provision has been made for arbitration of the remaining case before The Hague tribunal.

On July 30, 1909, the government of Panama agreed, after considerable negotiation, to indemnify the relatives of the American officers and sailors who were brutally treated, one of them having, indeed, been killed by the Panaman police this year.

This government was obliged to intervene diplomatically to bring about arbitration or settlement of the claim of the Emery company against Nicaragua, which it had long before been agreed should be arbitrated. A settlement of this troublesome case was reached by the signature of a protocol on Sept. 18, 1909.

Many years ago diplomatic intervention became necessary to the protection of the interests in the American claim of Alsop & Co. against the government of Chile. The government of Chile had frequently admitted obligation in the case and had promised this government to settle it. There had been two abortive attempts to do so through arbitral commissions, which failed through lack of jurisdiction. Now, happily, as the result of the recent diplomatic negotiations, the governments of the United States and of Chile, actuated by the sincere desire to free from any strain those cordial and friendly relations upon which both set such store, have agreed by a protocol to submit the controversy to definitive settlement by his Britannic majesty Edward VII.

The Nicaraguan Trouble.

Since the Washington conventions of 1907 were communicated to the government of the United States as a consulting and advising party this government has been almost continuously called upon by one or another and in turn by all of the five Central American republics to exert itself for the maintenance of the conventions. Nearly every complaint has been against the Zelaya government of Nicaragua, which has kept Central America in constant tension or turmoil. The responses made to the representations of Central American republics as due from the United States on account of its relation to the Washington conventions have been at all times conservative and have avoided, so far as possible, any semblance of interference, although it is very apparent that the considerations of geographic proximity to the canal zone and of the very substantial American interests in Central America give to the United States a special position in the zone of these republics and the Caribbean sea.

I need not rehearse here the patient efforts of this government to promote peace and welfare among these republics, efforts which are fully appreciated by the majority of them who are loyal to their true interests. It would be no less unnecessary to rehearse here the sad tale of unspeakable barbarities and oppression alleged to have been committed by the Zelaya government. Recently two Americans were put to death by order of President Zelaya himself. They were officers in the organized forces of a revolution which had continued many weeks and was in control of about half of the republic, and as such, according to the modern enlightened practice of civilized nations, they were entitled to be dealt with as prisoners of war.

At the date when this message is printed this government has terminated diplomatic relations with the Zelaya government for reasons made public in a communication to the former Nicaraguan charge d'affaires and is intending to take such future steps as may be found most consistent with its dignity, its duty to American interests and its moral obligations to Central America and to civilization. It may later be necessary for me to bring this subject to the attention of the congress in a special message.

In the Far East.

In the far east this government preserves unchanged its policy of supporting the principle of equality of opportunity and scrupulous respect for the integrity of the Chinese empire, to which policy are pledged the interested powers of both east and west.

By the treaty of 1903 China has undertaken the abolition of likin with a moderate and proportionate raising of the customs tariff along with currency reform. These reforms being a manifest advantage to foreign commerce as well as to the interests of China, this government is endeavoring to facilitate these measures and the needful acquiescence of the treaty powers. When it appeared that Chinese likin revenues were to be hypothecated to foreign bankers in connection with a great railway project it was obvious that the governments whose nationals held this loan would have a certain direct interest in the question of the carrying out by China of the reforms in question. The administration deemed American participation to be of great national interest. Happily, when it was as a matter of broad policy urgent that this opportunity should not be lost, the indispensable instrumentality presented itself when a group of American bankers of international reputation and great resources agreed at once to share in the loan upon precisely such terms as this government should approve. The chief of those terms was that American railway material should be upon an exact equality with that of the other nationals joining in the loan in the placing of orders for this whole railroad system. After months of negotiation the equal participation of Americans seems at last assured.

In one of the Chinese-Japanese conventions of Sept. 1 of this year there was a provision which caused considerable public apprehension in that upon its face it was believed in some quarters to seek to establish a monopoly of mining privileges along the South Manchurian and Antung-Mukden railroads and thus to exclude Americans from a wide field of enterprise to take part in which they were by treaty with China entitled. After a thorough examination of the conventions and of the several contextual documents the secretary of state reached the conclusion that no such monopoly was intended or accomplished. This government made inquiry of the Imperial Chinese and Japanese governments and received from each official assurance that the provision had no purpose inconsistent with the policy of equality of opportunity to which the signatories, in common with the United States, are pledged.

Our traditional relations with the Japanese empire continue cordial, as usual. The arrangement of 1908 for a co-operative control of the coming of laborers to the United States has proved to work satisfactorily. The matter of a revision of the existing treaty between the United States and Japan which is terminable in 1912 is already receiving the study of both countries.

The Department of State.

I earnestly recommend to the favorable action of the congress the estimates submitted by the department of state and most especially the legislation suggested in the secretary of state's letter of this date whereby it will be possible to develop and make permanent the reorganization of the department upon modern lines in a manner to make it a thoroughly efficient instrument in the furtherance of our foreign trade and of American interests abroad.

Under a provision of the act of Aug. 5, 1909, I have appointed three officials to assist the officers of the government in collecting information necessary to a wise administration of the tariff act of Aug. 5, 1909. As to questions of customs administration they are co-operating with the officials of the treasury department and as to matters of the needs and the exigencies of our manufacturers and exporters with the department of commerce and labor in its relation to the domestic aspect of the subject of foreign commerce.

As a consequence of section 2 of the tariff act of Aug. 5, 1909, it becomes the duty of the secretary of state to conduct as diplomatic business all the negotiations necessary to place him in a position to advise me as to whether or not a particular country unduly discriminates against the United States in the sense of the statute referred to.

Government Expenditures and Revenues.

Perhaps the most important question presented to this administration is that of economy in expenditures and sufficiency of revenue.

The report of the secretary shows that the ordinary expenditures for the current fiscal year ending June 30, 1910, will exceed the estimated receipts by $34,075,620. If to this deficit are added the sum to be disbursed for the Panama canal, amounting to $38,000,000, and $1,000,000 to be paid on the public debt, the deficit of ordinary receipts and expenditures will be increased to a total deficit of $73,075,620. This deficit the secretary proposes to meet by the proceeds of bonds issued to pay the cost of constructing the Panama canal. I approve this proposal.

The Panama Canal.

The policy of paying for the construction of the Panama canal not out of current revenue, but by bond issue, was adopted in the Spooner act of 1902, and there seems to be no good reason for departing from the principle by which a part at least of the burden of the cost of the canal shall fall upon our posterity, who are to enjoy it, and there is all the more reason for this view because the actual cost to date of the canal, which is now half done and which will be completed Jan. 1, 1915, shows that the cost of engineering and construction will be $297,766,000 instead of $139,705,200, as originally estimated. In addition to engineering and construction, the other expenses, including sanitation and government and the amount paid for the properties, the franchise and the privilege of building the canal, increase the cost by $75,435,000 to a total of $375,201,000. The increase in the cost of engineering and construction is due to a substantial enlargement of the plan of construction by widening the canal 100 feet in the Culebra cut and by increasing the dimensions of the locks, to the underestimate of the quantity of the work to be done under the original plan and to an underestimate of the cost of labor and materials, both of which have greatly enhanced in price since the original estimate was made.

Government Economy.

In order to avoid a deficit for the ensuing fiscal year I directed the heads of departments in the preparation of their estimates to make them as low as possible consistent with imperative governmental necessity. The result has been, as I am advised by the secretary of the treasury, that the estimates of the expenses of the government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1911—that is, for the next fiscal year—are less by $55,663,000 than the total of appropriations for the current fiscal year and less by $94,000,000 than the estimates for that year. So far as the secretary of the treasury is able to form a judgment as to future income, there will be no deficit in the year ending June 30, 1911, but a small surplus of $712,000.

In the present estimates the needs of the departments and of the government have been cut to the quick.

For the purpose of securing information which may enable the executive and the legislative branches to unite in a plan for the permanent reduction of the cost of governmental administration the treasury department has instituted an investigation by one of the most skilled expert accountants in the United States. The object of the investigation is to devise means to increase the average efficiency of each employee. There is great room for improvement toward this end, not only by the reorganization of bureaus and departments and in the avoidance of duplication, but also in the treatment of the individual employee.

Under the present system it constantly happens that two employees receive the same salary when the work of one is far more difficult and important and exacting than that of the other. Superior ability is not rewarded or encouraged.

Civil Pensions.

As the degree of efficiency in all the departments is much lessened by the retention of old employees who have outlived their energy and usefulness it is indispensable to any proper system of economy that provision be made so that their separation from the service shall be easy and inevitable. It is impossible to make such provision unless there is adopted a plan of civil pensions. We cannot, in view of the advancing prices of living, hope to save money by a reduction in the standard of salaries paid. Indeed, if any change is made in that regard an increase rather than a decrease will be necessary, and the only means of economy will be in reducing the number of employees and in obtaining a greater average of efficiency from those retained in the service.

Frauds In the Collection of Customs.

I regret to refer to the fact of the discovery of extensive frauds in the collection of the customs revenue at New York city, in which a number of the subordinate employees in the weighing and other departments were directly concerned and in which the beneficiaries were the American Sugar Refining company and others. The frauds consisted in the payment of duty on underweights of sugar. The government has recovered from the American Sugar Refining company all that it is shown to have been defrauded of. The sum was received in full of the amount due which might have been recovered by civil action against the beneficiary of the fraud, but there was an excess reservation in the contract of settlement by which the settlement should not interfere with or prevent the criminal prosecution of every one who was found to be subject to the same.

Criminal prosecutions are now proceeding against a number of the government officers. The treasury department and the department of justice are exerting every effort to discover all the wrongdoers, including the officers and employees of the companies who may have been privy to the fraud. It would seem to me that an investigation of the frauds by congress at present, pending the probing by the treasury department and the department of justice, as proposed, might by giving immunity and otherwise prove an embarrassment in securing conviction of the guilty parties.

Maximum and Minimum Clause In Tariff Act.

Two features of the new tariff act call for special reference. In order that the maximum duty shall be charged against the imports from a country it is necessary that the executive shall find on the part of that country not only discriminations in its laws or the practice under them against the trade of the United States, but that the discriminations found shall be undue—that is, without good and fair reason. No one is seeking a tariff war or a condition in which the spirit of retaliation shall be aroused.

Tariff Readjustment.

The new tariff law enables me to appoint a tariff board to assist me in connection with the department of state in the administration of the minimum and maximum clause of the act and also to assist officers of the government in the administration of the entire law. I believe that the work of this board will be of prime utility and importance whenever congress shall deem it wise again to readjust the customs duties. If the facts secured by the tariff board are of such a character as to show generally that the rates of duties imposed by the present tariff law are excessive under the principles of protection as described in the platform of the successful party at the late election I shall not hesitate to invite the attention of congress to this fact and to the necessity for action predicated thereon. Nothing, however, halts business and interferes with the course of prosperity so much as the threatened revision of the tariff, and until the facts are at hand, after careful and deliberate investigation, upon which such revision can properly be undertaken, it seems to me unwise to attempt it.

War Department.

In the interest of immediate economy I have required a reduction in the estimates of the war department for the coming fiscal year which brings the total estimates down to an amount forty-five millions less than the corresponding estimates for last year. This could be accomplished only by cutting off new projects and suspending for the period of one year all progress in military matters. For the same reason I have directed that the army shall not be recruited up to its present authorized strength. These measures can hardly be more than temporary, for I am sure that the interests of the military establishment are seriously in need of careful consideration by congress.

The secretary of war calls attention to a number of needed changes in the army, in all of which I concur, but the point upon which I place most emphasis is the need for an elimination bill providing a method by which the merits of officers shall have some effect upon their advancement and by which the advancement of all may be accelerated by the effective elimination of a definite proportion of the least efficient.

The military and naval joint board have unanimously agreed that it would be unwise to make the large expenditures which at one time were contemplated in the establishment of a naval base and station in the Philippine Islands and have expressed their judgment, in which I fully concur, in favor of making an extensive naval base at Pearl Harbor, near Honolulu, and not in the Philippines.

The Navy.

The return of the battleship fleet from its voyage around the world in more efficient condition than when it started was a noteworthy event of interest alike to our citizens and the naval authorities of the world. The marked success of the ships in steaming around the world in all weathers on schedule time has increased respect for our navy and has added to our national prestige.

It is a regrettable fact that the higher officers are old for the responsibilities of the modern navy, and the admirals do not arrive at flag rank young enough to obtain adequate training in their duties as flag officers.

Owing to the necessity for economy in expenditures, I have directed the curtailment of recommendations for naval appropriations so that they are thirty-eight millions less than the corresponding estimates of last year, and the request for new naval construction is limited to two first class battleships and one repair vessel.

The secretary of the navy has inaugurated a tentative plan involving certain changes in the organization of the navy department, including the navy yards, all of which have been found by the attorney general to be in accordance with law. I have approved the execution of the plan proposed because of the greater efficiency and economy it promises.

Department of Justice—Expedition In Legal Procedure.

The deplorable delays in the administration of civil and criminal law have received the attention of committees of the American Bar association and of many state bar associations as well as the considered thought of judges and jurists. In my judgment, a change in public procedure, with a view to reducing its expense to private litigants in civil cases and facilitating the dispatch of business and final decision in both civil and criminal cases, constitutes the greatest need in our American institutions. I do not doubt for one moment that much of the lawless violence and cruelty exhibited in lynchings are directly due to the uncertainties and injustice growing out of the delays in trials, judgments and the executions thereof by our courts.

I therefore recommend legislation providing for the appointment by the president of a commission with authority to examine the law and equity procedure of the federal courts of first instance, the law of appeals from those courts to the courts of appeals and to the supreme court and the costs imposed in such procedure upon the private litigants and upon the public treasury and make recommendation with a view to simplifying and expediting the procedure as far as possible and making it as inexpensive as may be to the litigant of little means.

Injunctions Without Notice.

"We believe that the rules of procedure in the federal courts with respect to the issuance of the writ of injunction should be more accurately defined by statute and that no injunction or temporary restraining order should be issued without notice, except where irreparable injury would result from delay, in which case a speedy hearing thereafter should be granted."

I recommend that in compliance with the promise thus made appropriate legislation be adopted. Moreover, every such injunction or restraining order issued without previous notice and opportunity by the defendant to be heard should by force of the statute expire and be of no effect after seven days from the issuance thereof or within any time less than that period which the court may fix unless within such seven days or such less period the injunction or order is extended or renewed after previous notice and opportunity to be heard.

Anti-trust and Interstate Commerce Laws.

The jurisdiction of the general government over interstate commerce has led to the passage of the so called "Sherman anti-trust law" and the "interstate commerce law" and its amendments. The developments in the operation of those laws call for a discussion and some suggestions as to amendments. These I prefer to embody in a special message.

Postoffice Department — Second Class Mail Matter.

The deficit every year in the postoffice department is largely caused by the low rate of postage of 1 cent a pound charged on second class mail matter, which includes not only newspapers, but magazines and miscellaneous periodicals. The actual loss growing out of the transmission of this second class mail matter at 1 cent a pound amounts to about $63,000,000 a year. The average cost of the transportation of this matter is more than 9 cents a pound. The statistics of 1907 show that second class mail matter constituted 64.91 per cent of the weight of all the mail and yielded only 5.19 per cent of the revenue.

The figures given are startling and show the payment by the government of an enormous subsidy to the newspapers, magazines and periodicals. A great saving might be made, amounting to much more than half of the loss, by imposing upon magazines and periodicals a higher rate of postage.

Postal Savings Banks.

I believe postal savings banks to be necessary in order to offer a proper inducement to thrift and saving to a great many people of small means who do not now have banking facilities and to whom such a system would offer an opportunity for the accumulation of capital. They will furnish a satisfactory substitute, based on sound principle and actual successful trial in nearly all the countries of the world, for the system of government guaranty of deposits now being adopted in several western states which, with deference to those who advocate it, seems to me to have in it the seeds of demoralization to conservative banking and certain financial disaster.

Ship Subsidy.

Following the course of my distinguished predecessor, I earnestly recommend to congress the consideration and passage of a ship subsidy bill.

Interior Department—New Mexico and Arizona.

The successful party in the last election in its national platform declared in favor of the admission as separate states of New Mexico and Arizona, and I recommend that legislation appropriate to this end be adopted.

Alaska.

With respect to the territory of Alaska, I recommend legislation which shall provide for the appointment by the president of a governor and also of an executive council, the members of which shall during their term of office reside in the territory and which shall have legislative powers sufficient to enable it to give to the territory local laws adapted to its present growth. I strongly deprecate legislation looking to the election of a territorial legislature in that vast district.

Conservation of Natural Resources.

In several departments there is presented the necessity for legislation looking to the further conservation of our national resources, and the subject is one of such importance as to require a more detailed and extended discussion than can be entered upon in this communication. For that reason I shall take an early opportunity to send a special message to congress.

The White Slave Trade.

There is urgent necessity for additional legislation and greater executive activity to suppress the recruiting of the ranks of prostitutes from the streams of immigration into this country—an evil which, for want of a better name, has been called "the white slave trade."

Bureau of Health.

There seems to be no reason why all the bureaus and offices in the general government which have to do with the public health or subjects akin thereto should not be united in a bureau to be called the "bureau of public health."

Political Contributions.

I urgently recommend to congress that a law be passed requiring that candidates in elections of members of the house of representatives and committees in charge of their candidacy and campaign file in a proper office of the United States government a statement of the contributions received and of the expenditures incurred in the campaign for such elections and that similar legislation be enacted in respect to all other elections which are constitutionally within the control of congress.

Conclusion.

Speaking generally, the country is in a high state of prosperity. There is every reason to believe that we are on the eve of a substantial business expansion, and we have just garnered a harvest unexampled in the market value of our agricultural products. The high prices which such products bring mean great prosperity for the farming community; but, on the other hand, they mean a very considerably increased burden upon those classes in the community whose yearly compensation does not expand with the improvement in business and the general prosperity. Various reasons are given for the high prices. The proportionate increase in the output of gold, which today is the chief medium of exchange and is in some respects a measure of value, furnishes a substantial explanation of at least part of the increase in prices. The increase in population and the more expensive mode of living of the people, which have not been accompanied by a proportionate increase in acreage production, may furnish a further reason. It is well to note that the increase in the cost of living is not confined to this country, but prevails the world over, and that those who would charge increases in prices to the existing protective tariff must meet the fact that the rise in prices has taken place almost wholly in those products of the factory and farm in respect to which there has been either no increase in the tariff or in many instances a very considerable reduction.

BASKETBALL.

The Business Men's basketball team trimphed over Plainfield High in a sensational game on the Y. M. C. A. court last nightt, the score being 25 to 22. The High School athletes looked like sure winners when the first half ended in their favor by the score of 22 to 11.

In the second half, however, the tide turned and when the whistle blew the score was tied. The High School five apparently lost all its steam in the first half as it was unable to score in the second session. Six minutes of additional play was necessary to decide the result. YOUNG HEBREWS FEAST AND INSTALL OFFICERS

The Young Men's Hebrews' Association held its first annual banquet in its auditorium on Grove street, last night, the occasion being the installation of officers. A short business meeting was held, when the officers were installed and the committee reported that all arrangements were completed for the reception and ball to be held at Saengerbund Hall on January 1.

During the dinner which followed, there were a number of speeches by the officers. President-elect Samuel Rothberg spoke briefly of the work the association had accomplished in the past and outlined the different objects to be attained in the future. He also stated that the association rooms would be open ever Wednesday evening for the good and welfare of the members. He urged all the members to work in harmony and unity and by so doing the association was bound to advance in its good work.

Abraham Victorsen in an address impressed upon the members the ways and means of bringing the social life of the association to the front, as well as increasing the membership. A. H. Richards sang a number of popular songs and gave several impersonations of prominent actors. Moses Amdun and Max Bernstein made the evening enjoyable with piano and violin selections. The committee in charge of the installation and banquet comprised Henry Rosenbaum, chairman; Edward Nadel and Jacob Abrams.

CITY FATHERS' ROUTINE

Citizens Complain Tnat Trolley Cars are Unsanitary and Antiquated.

DEPARTMENT HEADS REPORT.

Petition for a Marquee Front to Business House, Minus Advertising Signs, Is Granted.

Aside from the public hearing granted in connection with the application of the F. L. C. Martin Auto Company for permission to install a huge gasolene tank on its premises, there was no busines of great importance considered at the December meeting of the Common Council, last night.

Wm. C. Kinney, president of the hospital governors, and other residents of Arlington avenue, registered a vigorous protest against the trolley cars now being operated on the Arlington avenue line. They declared that the cars were unsanitary, have flat wheels and played out motors, and urged that some action be taken to compel the company to live up to its promise of three years ago, that of supplying new and modern cars for Plainfield. The matter was refered to the committee on public affairs.

The Central Park Realty Company petitioned for additional electric lights on Prospect, Evergreen, Martine and Thornton avenues, and the matter was referred to the light committee. Later two lights were granted for Thornton avenue. Residents of West Fifth street and Prescott place, requested that property-owners be requested to lay sidewalks, and this was referred to the street committee.

The petition of George J. Tobin to erect a marquee in front of his place of business on North avenue, was received and granted, with the restriction that no sign or advertising matter be placed thereon. The marquee is within the building line, and conforms to the building ordinance.

W. B. Wadsworth informed the Council that he will take possession of his new house on Woodland avenue, April 15. 1910, and requested that electric lights and water be provided for that thoroughfare at that point. This was referred to the committee on public affairs.

A protest was received from the W. C. T. U. signed by the preident, Mrs. M. D. Tomlinson, and representing over two hundred members, requesting that no additional liquor licenses be granted. This was referred to the license committee.

A communication was received from C. C. Campbell, of 1001 Central avenue, asking for a readjustment of tax assessment and a correct bill for the same. This was referred to the finance committee. An official statement of figures of the municipal election last month was presented and filed. The Mayor appointed Thos. McInerny a special policeman and the appointment was confirmed.

Street Commissioner Gavett reported the granting of thirty sewer permits during November and Building Inspector Doane reported that he had granted 25 building permits during the same period. The report of Overseer-of-the-Poor A. D. Ayers showed that outside expenses for the past month amounted to $286.04 and those of the alms house $328. The reports were filed. Horace G. Adams, clerk of the District court, reported receipts of $133.08 and expenses of $38 for the past month. This report was filed.

Following a recess to consider the application of George J. Tobin for the erection of a marquee, the Council returned to regular order of business, and a resolution offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted, instructed the city treasurer to pay the State and county tax amounting to $133,007.-21. Another resolution by the same member and adopted, instructed the city treasurer to withhold certain warrants due contractors, pending the guarantee of sidewalk work for one year.

When Council adjourned it did so to meet on Friday night to receive bids for the new issue of school and sewer bonds, advertised for recently. During the evening a public hearing was granted on the proposed action of establishing side lines on Sherman avenue, between Grant and Plainfield avenues, but no one was present to speak for or against the ordinance. The application of K. A. Marten for an auctioneer's license was granted, and the petition of Rosa Frucht to remove a building from Park avenue to New and Third streets, was referred to the street committee with power.

MRS. THADDEUS O. DOANE IS INJURED BY A FALL.

Mrs. Thaddeus O. Doane, wife of Chief Doane, of the fire department, had a nasty fall last night on Madison avenue while returning home from a social call at the home of A. L. Force.

Mrs. Doane suffered bruises on her shoulder and head and the Chief said today that his wife was getting along nicely and that no bad results were expected from the fall.

H. G. Black, of Sandford avenue, has taken a position with the Armour Beef Company at Providence, R. I.

DR. GROSZMANN'S TRIP THROUGH THE SOUTH

During their recent trip South, Dr. and Mrs. Maximilian P. E. Groszmann had the pleasure of meeting President Taft und r rather interesting circumstances. They visited the Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute at Old Point Comfort, unwittingly on a day which had been set aside as "Taft Day." Visitors were not allowed on the grounds during the larger part of that day, but when Principal Dr. Frizzell, who knows Dr. Groszmann by reputation, learnt of his arrival, he extended the hospitality of the Institute to Mrs. Groszmann and the doctor, introducing them personally to his friend and former Yale classmate, the president. Mr. Taft had been elected a member of the Board of Trustees of the institution, and had on that day resumed his functions.

The day was marked by special celebrations. There was a review of the students; a luncheon, and an assembly at the gymnasium, where Mr. Taft addressed an audience of about 3,000 people. Among his party and among the speakers on this memorable occasion were Andrew Carnegie, President Eliott, Bishop McVincar, Prof. Peabody, ex-Governor Montague, of Virginia and J. D. Rockefeller, Jr.

At Washington, D. C., Dr. Groszmann delivered several lectures on the problem of the Atypical Child, before the teachers, school and medical officers and normal students of the district, speaking altogether to about 2,000 persons. He also visited the schools there, and paid particular attention to the ungraded and special classes, with the teachers of which he met in round table discussion.

One of the school officials wrote to Dr. Groszmann after his return: "I regard your presence in our community most fortunate in that your words will lead to an awakened public conscience in regard to weak and helpless humanity. * * * As a missionary I sincerely hope that you may enter every considerable city in our land to preach this new gospel of the duty of society itself and to the unfortunate, and eventually to bring about a federation of all activities for the study and education of exceptional children. Since your advent into our midst another attitude toward this problem is appearing among all. * * * Your message has created enthusiasm to go forward in a finer, firmer, and more sacrificial spirit."

TRADE BOARD BANQUET, TRUELL HALL, IN MARCH

President H. W. Marshall of the Board of Trade today appointed Edmund Rushmore, Alexander Milne, Morris C. Van Arsdale, Eugene M. Laing and Allen B. Laing as a committee to arrange for the annual banquet of the board. The time for holding the affair will be announced within a short time. It is not believed that it will be set for a date earlier than March, for the board does not wish to conflict with the banquet of the Merchants' Association to be held in January.

It is proposed to hold the dinner at Truell Hall, as before, and the committee promises a list of prominent speakers for exceeding anything before attempted by this body. The committee will hold a meeting this week and at once begin the plans of preparation for the affair.

CITY TO BUY TOOTH BRUSHES FOR PUPILS

The Board of Education at a brief meeting last night heard the reports of the medical examiners, dental examiners, tax collector and custodians which were read and approved. Bills submitted for the month of November were ordered paid.

The medical inspectors' report showed that 928 pupils had been examined during the month. A resolution was introduced authorizing the board to pay for tooth brushes in such cases as the examining dentists deem it necessary. An appropriation of $100 was also voted to apply for lectures to be given at the High School in co-operation with the North Plainfield High School.

The Tax Collector reported having received $6,216.76 during the month of November and the custodians reported a balance on hand of $19,-949.07.

DEATH OF J. ANDREW CLARK AT KINGSTON, JAMACIA.

J. Andrew Clark, formerly a resident of this city, whose home was at 117 West Second street, died yesterday in Kingston, Jamaica, wh re he had gone in search of health. Mr. Clark had not been well for some time past and it is supposed that the sea voyage to the tropics at this season of the year was too severe for him.

Mr. Clark's body will be brought back to this city for burial beside his wife who died about months ago. Cornelius Compton, an employee of the United States Express Co., is the only surviving relative and will inherit the property which is estimated to be worth $11,000. Mr. Clark had been a resident of this city for upwards of thirty years. Mr. Clark's father, Jacob Clark, was a well known resident of Elizabeth, employed by I. B. Budd and Brokaw's mills on East Grand street.

NEW SILK MFG. PLANT IN MARSHALL BUILDING.

The local branch of the Somerset Mills, the new silk manufacturing company, which was organized at Paterson, has located its plant in the Marshall building, corner East Fourth street and Watchung avenue. The Paterson branch will manufacture the silk and silk petticoate will be the product of the local company.

About a dozen hands are now at work but by January 1, the company expects to give employment to 100 to 125 hands. The officers of the company are L. Schwabach, president, and E. Schultze, secretary and treasurer, the latter being of this city.

Rev. Gilbert Lovell Ill.

In a letter recently received here by friends, it was learned that Rev. Gilbert Lovell, formerly of this city, but now a missionary in China, has been suffering from typhoid fever, and his son, Leander, has also been ill. The fact that no news has been received since leads friends to believe that both have recovered.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL REPORTS

Important Matters Come Before Committee of State Association.

CONVENTION DATE IS SET.

The Next Annual Meeting Will Be Held at Atlantic City November 15 to 17, 1910.

Many important matters relating to the advanced Sunday-school work in the State of New Jersey were discussed at the December meeting of the State Executive Committee, of the New Jersey Sunday School Association, which was held in Trenton yesterday. One of 60 members of the committee, 40 men and women were present, and these workers represented every part of the State and every department of the Sunday-school work in the State.

Walter M. Irving, of Westfield, chairman of the Executive Committee, presided at the meeting, and Rev. Samuel D. Price, of Camden, recording secretary of the association, acted in the capacity of secretary of the meeting. The large attendance of the members of the committee was due to the interest that is being taken in this great movement all over the State. A new general secretary to take the place of Rev. E. Morris Ferguson, who resigned December 1, is being sought for, and it was expected that some name would be presented at the committee meeting yesterday. The Central Committee, of the Executive Committee, to whom all maters of this character are referred, was not ready to present a name for general secretary, and the members of the Executive Committee moved to continue the work of the Central Committee, and asked Rev. Mr. Price to assume charge of the work at the central office, in Newark, until such a time as the new general secretary should be elected. It was the general opinion among the members that the selection of the new secretary should not be hurried. Mr. Price will arrange for the county conventions for 1910, will see that supplies for the counties are distributed, and act in conjunction with the elementary department in planning for the field workers' institutes during the early part of 1910.

The Finance Committee, of which Edward W. Barnes is chairman, presented the following budget for 1910:

General secretary, $1,500; expenses of the general secretary, $150; State office expenses, $1,700; secretary of the elementary department, $1,200; expenses, $300; International Sunday School Association, $750; year book, $225; recording secretary, $150; teachers' training, $400; summer school, $200; convention expenses, $225; Adult Bible Class work, $100; home department work, $50; evangelistic department, $50; financial, $100; temperance, $25; field work, $300; Intermediate department, $50; missionary, $25. This makes a total of $7,600 as a budget for 1910, and it was heartily approved by the members of the committee as providing ways and means for this advanced work. It was reported that the counties had pledged at the last convention at East Orange, the amount of $7,735 for the State work.

The invitation to Atlantic City for the convention of 1910 was accepted, and November 15 to November 17 were the dates set for the program days.

Like June Weather in Jersey.

Harry Campbell, of this city, who is associated with C. B. Clifton, in fruit growing at Crescent City, Fla., in writing to friends here, says that the weather at Crescent City is like June in New Jersey; that there are plenty of oranges, tangerines and grape fruit and the the peaches are beginning to bloom. Mr. Campbell says that from all indications there will be a prosperous season.

Miss Margaret Smith, of Newark, has returned after a visit with friends here.

BANKRUPTCY PETITION IS FILED BY "THE FAIR"

"The Fair," a corporation operating dry goods stores in this city and Elizabeth, is in financial difficulties. A judgment secured in the District Court by William F. Groves, of Elizabeth, closed the local establishment and representatives of New York creditors have taken possession of the Elizabeth store, which has been closed for several days.

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed by the company, J. Bayard Kirkpatrick has been appointed receiver. It could not be learned what the assets and liabilities of the concern are, but it is rumored that its stockholders have been seeking a settlement of the trouble on a fifty cents on the dollar basis.

Harvey J. Cohn and L. Gainsburg, New York attorneys, represent some of the creditors, while Charles A. Trimble is also concerned in the closing of the store. It is claimed by the New Yorkers that D. Danziger, who is said to control the company, failed to keep his agreement to settle claims at fifty cents on the dollar. The local store is located in West Front street. About three years ago the Fair was in similar trouble.

DUNELLEN BOROUGH MAKES AN APOLOGY

By making a public apology to John Logan, the Dunellen Council probably saved itself the expense of a legal fight for damages. Logan was recently accused of appropriating dirt that belonged to the borough, but after an investigation, its was shown that Logan had taken dirt that belonged to him, and on which the borough had no claim.

Over zealousness on the part of Councilman George Huff, chairman of the street committee, was responsible for the misunderstanding. Huff saw Logan taking away the dirt and reported the matter to the Council and this action was followed by that body instructing Borough Clerk Abner Cordell, Jr., to write a letter to Logan in relation to the matter.

The action of the Council aroused the wrath of Logan, who threatened to sue the borough for damages unless that body exonerated him of all wrong doing. Logan's threat took root in the feelings of the councilmen and resulted in a public apology for the hasty action taken in the matter. Logan is now fully satisfied.

ACTING GOVERNOR NOW OVER THE SEAS AND AWAY

Joseph Sherman Frelinghuysen Temorary Executive of the State.

CONGRATULATED BY FRIENDS.

Senate Slate is Frelinghuysen for President and Ackerman for the Majority Leader.

Acting Governor Joseph S. Frelinghuysen was sworn into office yesterday at Trenton by Theodore Backes, an assistant in the atorney general's office, and is in effect the Governor of New Jersey until Governor John Franklin Fort returns to duty next week from a gunning trip in the South. There was little for the acting Governor to do except see his friends. All day long there was a steady stream of visitors to welcome him to office, and outside of attaching his name to some official papers, acting Governor Frelinghuysen had nothing to do.

There was little or no politics. It is certain that nothing will happen to break the slate of Ward, of Bergen, for speaker, and Edge, of Atlantic, for leader of the Republican majority in the House. Neither of them were present during the day.

The Senate slate of Frelinghuysen for president and Ackerman for leader of the Republican majority is also certain to go through. The House caucus will be held Tuesday. No date for the Senate caucus has been set, but it will be held at Trenton at the Republican Club some evening, probably during the week of December 20.

Senator Wilson, of Atlantic county, was in the State House saying that Atlantic county would demand open Sundays, and that he would work for them. When it was stated to him that as leader of the House majority an open Sunday bill might embarrass Colonel Walter Edge, the Atlantic Assemblyman, Senator Wilson said that he had an understanding with Edge, and that he might have to fight this thing himself through the House, as Edge would probably refuse to give the aid which such a bill must have to be at all effective.

Acting Governor Frelinghuysen was yesterday beseiged by reporters for interviews. He refused to talk politics, but did say that the school investigation was proceeding well. The committee had sent out blank forms to all county superintendents and others, asking them detailed information as to bond and courses of study. He said that the main idea was economical. There had been a charge that the schools were not economically managed, and that was what the committee was trying to find out, he said.

NO CIVIL SERVICE ACT DECISION BEFORE JAN. 6

Because of the absence of Chancellor Pitney in the south shooting with Governor Fort, coupled with the fact that the November term of the court of errors and appeals closes tomorrow morning, when all cases are disposed of, there is likely to be no decision on either the civil service measure or the Vredenbergh military retirement act until January 6, which date is the first one for the conferences of the court to get rid of the work of the present term.

Nothing was learned yesterday at the State house at Trenton as to either of these coming opinions, but rumors had it that there was no change in either one of them and that the opinions would show the same result of unconstitutionality in parts as already outlined.

The work of the court of errors this term has been expedited by lawyers putting in their cases on brief, instead of making the usual long oral arguments.

Sewage Matter Progressing.

Members of the Borough Council and North Plainfield township held a conference in relation to the proposed sewerage ssytem in the borough Council chambers last night. Mayor Townsend announced this morning that everything is harmonious and that the matter is progressing. It is expected that a definite arrangement will be consumated within the next few weeks.

Blowout Too Much for Bimble.

Lewis Bimble, Sr., attended a meeting of the Lathers' Union in this city last night. At a "blowout" after the meeting Bimble partook too strenuously of the refreshments, and as a result he was unable to find the way to his home in the borough. Bimble was taken in custody by Marshall Keller and this morning Recorder Dolliver fined him three dollars for his indiscretion.

OVER THE SEAS AND AWAY

Mr. Parvin Repeats Again an Interesting Tale of the "Lure of Foreign Lands."

LIFE ON A MODERN LINER.

Education the Primary Good in Traveling in Foreign Countries Says the Speaker.

Owing to the rain the attendance at the lecture given by Emerson E. Parvin, at the Men's club of the Congregational church last night was not large, but those who attended were well repaid for braving the elements. Mr. Parvin's lecture on "The Lure of Foreign Lands" had much of genuine interest for those who listened to him and who have never been abroad.

Mr. Parvin is an interesting talker and his lecture was well received, being frequently interrupted with applause.

Mr. Parvin took his audience to the big shipyards and showed views of many large vessels in course of construction, including the "Olympic" and "Titanic," which, when completed, will be the largest trans-Atlantic liners afloat, being 840 feet long, with small coal consumption and speed of 21 knots and having accommodations for about 5,000 people, a number equal to the population of a small town.

As an idea of their size, it would require about forty-five city houses twenty feet wide to fill the space. Having conducted his audience through the shipyards the speaker explained the details of building, the preparations necessary for an ingle trip across the big pond, telling of the commissary department, giving an adequate idea of quality and quantity of supplies needed for the trip.

The speaker explained in full the life on shipboard, views being shown of state rooms, smoking rooms, the salon and dining room, the culinary department, the crew and officers and the passengers busy and interested in games on the trip.

In describing the journey, Mr. Parvin said:

"We can conceive of one who has no interest in the land of his ancestors, who does not care to take the trouble to view the scenes made familiar by the pen of the historian, the story-teller, or the poet; who has no desire to enjoy the art treasures of the old world, but such cases are rare indeed.

"To be sure, travel for its own sake is beneficial, as all wise men have agreed from time immemorial. Home-keeping youth have ever homely wits, and though travel will not make a ge mof a pebble, nothing else will so quickly cut the face of a diamond mind.

"It is far from useless to journey through a foreign land with no other idea than to enjoy its scenery, but the buildings and its art, to observe the customs of its people and to live for awhile as they live. Yet there is greater satisfaction in returning with the belief that you have done something, little it may be towards mastering some one branch of knowledge.

"The purposeless traveler may come home conscious that he is a wider, broader, more cultured man than when he went away, but he should not be satisfied if he cannot say to himself, 'I can tell what a handsome church it is, and why it is a handsome church. I know several kinds of architecture.' As a business man he can observe men in similar trades display their goods, and how they otherwise advertise them, and in countless ways the man with a purpose can come home amply rewarded by a trip to a foreign country."

Dr. William Callan to Lecture.

Dr. William Callan, of New York, will give the second of his series of lectures at Mt. St. Mary's College, tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock on "Psychology," and judging by the interest shown in these lectures a large attendance is expected. The convent stage will meet trolley cars at Terrill road between the hours of 3 and 3:30 o'clock, to convey people to the college. The succeeding lecture in January will be on "Hamlet."

"Municipal Taxation."

"Municipal Taxation," was the subject of an address before the League of American Municipalities, at Montreal, by A. C. Fleydell, of North Plainfield. This, together with extracts of other addresses by men prominent in municipal affairs, has been printed in pamphlet form and circulated by the New York Tax Reform Association, of which Mr. Fleydell is the secretary.

Mrs. Eva C. Laing, of Washington, returned home today after a pleasant visit with relatives and friends in Plainfield, Newark and Morristown, who thoroughly enjoyed her only too short stay.

HOLY CROSS BABY SHOW

Women's Guild of Parish will Manage Exhibition in January.

TWO PLAYS ARE ANNOUNCED.

Bible Classes as Thespians to Entertain the Parishoners on Saturday Night.

The Women's Guild of the Holy Cross church, at its meeting yesterday afternoon in the parish house, announced that a baby show will be held Saturday afternoon, January 8, in the parish house, the proceeds to go for parish purposes. The show is to be a neighborhood affair and babies from the ages of birth to four years will be admitted. It was arranged to hold the show on Saturday afternoon so that the men of the parish will have an opportunity to see the babies, and as one prominent member expresed it, "there will be at least fifty-seven varieties."

Rev. George A. Warner, rector, presided at the meeting, directing the business. The guild adopted resolutions expressing its deep loss in the death of Mrs. George Dupee and Mrs. Susan Clapp, both of whom were charter members of the organization. During the business session, there was prepared a missionary box to be sent to a missionary in Kentucky. The church periodical committee reported having received letters of appreciation from missionaries in response to six boxes sent out.

It was announced that the church appropriation would be apportioned for the Christmas tree festival, Christmas church decorations, the missionary apportionment, and the fund for the new piano. In speaking of the piano fund, the rector said that the young people of the parish are assuming the greater part of the money for the purchase of the Knabe Grand, to be placed in the choir room for Sunday school and social purposes.

The first effort on the part of the young people in this direction will be in the presentation of two plays at the parish house Saturday night, "The Teeth of the Gift Horse," by Margaret Cameron, and John Kendrick Bangs' farce, "The Real Thing." The plays will be given by the members of the two Bible class es of the Sunday school.

Rector Warner referred to many improvements made in the parish, and the freedom from some of the debt duing the past four years for which the women were largely responsible. Plans for the Christmas celebration were outlined and one new member was received.

MISS M'CUTCHEN TALKS ON MISSIONS IN FRANCE

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, whose study for the season is "The Gospel in Latin Lands," listened to an admirable paper by Miss Margaret W. McCutchen on "Mission Work in France" at their meeting held yesterday afternoon in the lecture room of the church. Miss McCutchen's winter in France last year, while it did not afford opportunities for mission study, gave her the setting for the work she described and her knowledge of the country and people gave a color to the incidents of her paper, not possible to be gained from hearsay.

Miss McCutchen told of the superstition and dogmas of the middle-ages that characterized the teaching in the Romish church and had caused that church to lose its hold in France, and the world had taken its place. She described France as a godless country, without faith in God or each other. The low moral tone of the country she attributed to the lack of religious training in schools, the prevalence of free thinking, alcoholism, immoral literature and immoral drama. An important ally of mission work was, she said, this disunion of the church.

Miss McCutchen told of the work of the Protestant churches, among which are twenty-seven of the Baptist denomination. The work of Christian associations and the Salvation Army, closing with an interesting account of the McCall mission with fifty-three stations, and which is a type of the best mission work done in France, bringing to the people, reverence, purpose and hope.

The paper was preceded by a devotional service led by Mrs. William Hillman.

Musical Service Tonight.

"The Vision of St. John," a musical service, will be repeated by the quartet choir and chorus at the First Presbyterian church tonight. Clifford A. Braider, organist and choirmaster, will have the direction of the service. The public is invited.

MAYBE HAMMOND OWNED A PAIR OF REVOLVERS

Willard Hammond, colored, an employe of the Hotel Belmont, was fined ten dollars by City Judge Runyon this morning for threatening Mary Ford and flourishing a revolver in her face. The fine was paid by Hammond's wife who has recently come from the South to join her husband.

The two women nearly came to blows after the decision and were prevented from inflicting bodily harm on each other by Chief Kiely who noticed the brewing storm.

It was thought probable by the judge that Hammond possessed two revolvers, although he first denied having any. The revolver exhibited in the court room was found in the buffet of the Belmont after a long search by Detective Flynn. James Alexander and William Boyd, two other employes of the hotel, declared that the revolver in question had been taken away from Hammond early in the evening of the alleged threats.

Judge Runyon said he believed the woman's story and imposed the fine. J. Henry Crane appeared for Hammond.

PNEUMONIA FATAL TO MRS. SUSAN L. CLAPP

The sad news of the death in Boston yesterday of Mrs. Susan Loyd Clapp came to Plainfield this morning. Mrs. Clapp was in her seventy-fourth year and died suddenly of pneumonia.

Mrs. Clapp was the daughter of Isaac F. Loyd, of Philadelphia, and widow of John Platt, of New York city. The funeral services will be held from her late residence, 84 Mercer avenue, North Plainfield, on Friday, December 10, at 2:30 in the afternoon. Carriages will meet the trains leaving New York at 1 and 1:20.

Mrs. Clapp is survived by three sisters and two brothers and two grandchildren. She was a lifelong resident of Plainfield and had been a member of the Church of the Holy Cross for thirty years. She was a member of the Women's Guild, Daughters of the King Circle, the Wednesday Afternoon Club and other social bodies in Plainfield and North Plainfield. She was widely known for her high character and charitable work both here and in Philadelphia and will be missed by a very large circle of friends.

MR. CUTTER TESTIFIES IN THE PHENIX PROBE

Frederick S. Cutter, of Sandford avenue, who is employed by Carter, Wilder & Co., the brokerage firm of Wall street, New York, was one of four men who appeared before the Grand Jury in New York, yesterday, in connection with the disclosures made by State Superintendent of Insurance William H. Hotchkiss in reference to the Phenix Company.

It was through the brokerage firm of Carter, Wilder & Co., that the former superintendent of the insurance company, George P. Sheldon, was accustomed to transact business. The charge which the District Attorney's office was examining yesterday concerned only Mr. Sheldon, the deposed president of the company. It related to the alleged pocketing by Sheldon of $50,000 profit on a transaction in which the company's credit had been used. Carter, Wilder & Co., is the brokerage firm with which Sheldon carried his speculative accounts and the teller of the Chatham National Bank was called apparently to testify in regard to the depositing of the profits.

Mr Cutter has been with the firm of Carter, Wilder & Co., for sometime and is considered as one of the firm's most valued employes. His presence before the Grand Jury yesterday was simply for the purpose of telling of the firm's transactions with Sheldon.

COUNTY JUDGESHIP TALK

Report Has it That I. P. Runyon May Succeed Lewis Schenck.

IS A MADE-TO-ORDER SLATE.

Some Somerset Politicians See a Great Change Booked for the Near Future, 'Tis Said.

Concerning the appointment of a county judge in Somerset to succeed Louis H. Schenck, whose term expires January 1, it is reported that District Court Judge Isaac P. Runyon, of North Plainfield, is slated for the place. Some weeks ago Irving Hoagland, of Franklin Park, and Hugh M. Gaston, of Somerville, were talked of as likely candidates. Hoagland passed up his claim to the place and when the regular organization men learned that Senator Frelinghuysen was considering Mr. Gaston, they raised the cry that he is a Democrat. They pointed out too, that by his appointment the Republican organization would be losing one office.

Judge Isaac P. Runyon was proposed by a degate from North Plainfield, it is said, whose claim to the place was strengthened by indorsements from other small communities. The slate, according to the political wise acres, is that Runyon will be made county judge; Frederick A. Pope or James L. Griggs, district court judge, and that Clarence Case, the law partner of Alvah A. Clark, will be made prosecutor, to succeed John F. Rieger, whose term also expires the first of the year.

CALLAHAN PROMISED TO TAKE PLEDGE FOR A YEAR.

Mrs. Charles Callahan was a complainant against her husband in the city court this morning. She charged him with being continually drunk and keeping the home in an uproar and failing to properly support his family.

The couple have six children and it is too hard work for the mother to take care of them and have a drunken husband to deal with. Callahan was arrested three weeks ago in North Plainfield on a charge of drunkenness and was fined two dollars on his promise to mend his ways. Judge Runyon suspended sentence on the man this morning giving him the opportunity to take the pledge for a year, which he promised to do.

COMPLAINT AGAINST STITES DISMISSED BY JUDGE RUNYON.

Amos B. Stites, a Somerset street pool-room keeper was tried in the city court this morning a charge of assault on complaint of George Gates, a rival in the business on the same street.

Both men were represented by counsel, Harry C. Runyon appearing for Stites and Robert Newton Crane for Gates. The evidence brought out the fact that gambling is one of the pastimes in the poolroom conducted by Stites and perhaps in other places, but this had no bearing on the result of the case. It was shown that Gates provoked the row and was apparently looking for trouble. Judge Runyon dismissed the complaint.

Rich Furs and Fur Coats for Xmas Wear

In purchasing furs every woman prefers to select them where assortments are most comprehensive; where qualities are dependable and prices most reasonable—conditions ever present in this store's showing.

Discriminating shoppers of this city, and for miles around, know this and also of the matchless values we offer, and in consequence—notwithstanding the mild weather—our fur business thus far is much in excess of any we have yet recorded.

We again admonish those who favor Black Furs, that the best time for buying—for Xmas needs—is NOW, while perfect choice and lowest prices are available.

New Model $25 "Bee Hive" Sewing Machine

FOR 10.90 WOULD MAKE A FINE CHRISTMAS GIFT; SPECIAL HOLIDAY OFFER;

Ending Saturday, December 11th.

We consider this the best sewing machine value that has been offered in many a long day. Imagine for one moment buying a fully guaranteed, easy running, perfect sewing machine for the small sum of 10.90. It's hardly credible—and yet it is a fact that can neither be disputed nor denied.

WHY SUCH A SMALL PRICE AND HOW POSSIBLE?

Some time ago we arranged with the maker of our regular "Bee Hive" machines—one of the largest and best known—to turn out a new model that would appeal to our patrons particularly. In order that we might introduce it at a special price, he was to make between-order-times just to keep his factory busy—and we were to take them when he could deliver.

Every machine a veritable triumph in machine making. Not only a fine new model, but not having been made in a rush, has had as much attention as machines at four and five times the price, and will wear as well. Come and see this machine run. You will wonder that so fine a machine can be made for anywhere near the price. New model of sort exclusive dealers sell at $25 for $10.90.

Heavy oak finish frame, drawer each side and one centre; encased drop head, protects machine when not in use; handsome as well as useful. Newest up-to-date machine parts; reciprocating cylindrical, self-threading shuttle, feeding operated on new principle, sews lockstitch.

SOLD FOR CASH, OR FAIREST PART PAYMENTS.

HAHNE & CO.

The Only Metropolitan Establishment in Newark

OPEN EVENINGS, BEGINNING DEC 16—For the accommodation of the thousands who find it inconvenient to shop thru the day, and especially for our vast suburban trade.

No Store In This Country Is Better Able or Better Prepared to Handle Enormous Crowds Than This One

The construction and arrangement of the building is the chief contributing factor. The wide, roomy aisles, the high ceilings, the perfect ventilation, the floods of daylight, the broad, easy stairways, the safe and rapid elevators, the retiring rooms, the resting rooms—all contribute to the health and energy and cheerfulness of our force of workers and to the comfort of our patrons while shopping.

Few stores anywhere are so well fortified against the elements that tend to tire and enervate the workers and shoppers within them.

No matter how many thousands of people may throng this store at one time, there is always a noticeable absence of that stuffy feeling and that foul, stifling atmosphere that is present in smaller, crowded stores lacking our facilities.

Our salesforce, much larger now than usual, can handle an enormous business without any of them being overworked. They expect to work, were employed to work, and the best of them enjoy being busy—so don't hesitate to shop these busy days for fear of overworking anybody. Get as much of your buying done early as you can; be patient in the busiest hours; step lively in and out of elevators, and in the crowded aisles; use transfer cards; avoid C. O. D.'s; take little packages with you—help all you can to make the wheels run smoothly and you will help make Christmas merry for our people as well as for yourself.

Remember we will open the store six extra evenings before Christmas, beginning Thursday, December 16, to afford you ample opportunity to shop early and when it is most convenient to you.

GOLF.

Although the cottage colony at Spring Lake has lost its old nine-hole golf course it will not be long ere it will be able to play over a new eighteen-hole circuit. Some 125 acres, comprising what was known as the Thompson farm, have been acquired by a syndicate, and work has already been started on the new links. Trees are plentiful. In fact, some of the fairways will have to be literally cut through woods. The country, besides being rolling and heavily wooded, has two small streams running through it, and is well adapted for golf. There is talk of using the heavy timber for the clubhouse, which may be of the typical log cabin variety.

10,000 OLD CARS ARE SOLD BY RAILROADS

The railroads of the United States have during the last four weeks sold to outside interests 10,000 old cars which were badly in need of repair, and which will means according to well known railroad authorities, large expenditures during the next few months to replace this reduction in rolling stock. It is estimated that in addition to the replacement of the cars which have been discarded the railroads have in their shops an equal number of cars for immediate repairs.

Most of the cars which have been sold of late were disposed of to large companies that make a specialty of repairing broken-down railroad equipment and selling it again to mining corporations, plantations in South America and the West Indies, or disposing of it for use on the systems of "wayside roads."

The selling of old material during the last four weeks, it is said, exceeds the entire sales of the previous months of the year, and it should be added that a large order for new cars which was recently placed by an eastern railroad had been in contemplation for the previous eleven months. This is taken as an indication that the railroad companies are becoming encouraged with the general situation. A number of preliminary inquiries are already in the machinery market for shop equipment for four eastern railroads, and one eastern road is now preparing a list of needed machinery which will aggregate an expenditure of $100,000, while another road will call for $50,000 worth of machinery before long.

FIRE DRILL SAVES PANIC IN ASYLUM.

Fifty inmates of the Elizabeth Orphan Asylum at Cherry and Murray streets marched out in perfect order Monday while an alarm of fire was sent in for a blaze in the basement. For years the children have been drilled in preparation for such an event as that of last night.

Miss Clara J. Reed, the matron, had charge of the children, and to her is due the credit of marshalling and guiding them to a house across the street, where they remained until the fire was extinguished. The fire was a slight one and was caused by soot on top of the furnace.

The alarm was turned in just before 7 o'clock, when some of the younger children were retiring. In view of the fact that some of them had been partially undressed, the task of the matron and her assistants was not an easy one. Some of the children are crippled and had to be carried out.

TEN DAYS TO REMEMBER.

Prisoner Didn't Know Why He Was Arrested.

James Moon will have ten days in the county jail to think over why he was arrested. This was decided upon by Judge Mahon at Elizabeth Monday. Moon went to sleep in a hallway at 74 Broad street. He was found by Policeman Fretz and taken to police headquarters.

"What have you got to say?" asked Judge Mahon.

"Don't know anything about it," replied Moon.

"Do you know what you were doing?"

"Don't remember."

"Do you know why you were arrested?"

"Don't remember that."

"Oh, lock him up for ten days," said Judge Mahon. "He may remember something then."

DR. MOTT REFUSED.

Presbytery Votes Not to Reinstate Elizabeth Pastor.

The petition for reinstatement of the Rev. Henry Elliott Mott, formerly of the Westminster Presbyterian church, Elizabeth, was denied Monday at an adjourned meeting of the presbytery held in Roselle. The Rev. Dr. Mott was suspended from the ministry over a year ago and since then has been urging his reinstatement.

At a previous meeting the presbytery referred the application to a committee and the members made majority and minority reports. The majority report urged that the application be not granted, and after a long discussion it was adopted.

CLAY WORKERS MAY STRIKE.

Will Quit Work if Wage Reduction Is Made.

Perth Amboy, Dec. 8.—In order to prevent a strike similar to that of last year at Keasbey, when five companies of the State militia were called out, the Central Labor Union, of this city, has appointed a committee to confer with the officials of the Great Eastern Clay Company, in South River, to try to persuade them not to reduce the wages of their employees 25 cents a day, which the concern has threatened to do on December 15.

Employees of the concern are aroused over the proposed reduction and threaten to strike as soon as the decrease is announced.

Miss Jessica D. Harrison, of Roseville, who has been the guest of Miss Harriet Messersmith, of East Fifth street, has returned home.

LOWER WAGES FOR STREET LABORERS.

Laborers in the Elizabeth street department are awaiting with interest the decision of the street committee in regard to the proposed cut in wages. The men are receiving $12 a week, but an effort to cut the wage to $9, a figure which they assert is unreasonable and would make it impossible for them to support their families. They work from 7 a. m. until 5 p. m., and feel that $12 a week is not too much for their work.

The men were much disgruntled Saturday when told of the decision of the street committee, but were told the matter would be reconsidered. Just what decision has been reached has not been announced. Patrick J. McGurn, chairman of the street committee, has the matter in charge.

The change in wages was decided on because of the objection raised as to the way the streets of the city were kept. The street commissioner announced that it was impossible to improve conditions because the appropriation for the purpose is only $40,000.

ADOPTS CIVIL SERVICE.

Probable Decision of Court Does Not Deter Rahway.

Rahway, Dec. 8.—The Common Council passed an ordinance last night putting the city under the civil service law. It is understood that the purpose of the passage of the act is to retain the present Democrat officials, forestalling their removal by the incoming Republican Council in January. It is thought that Mayor Holmes will veto the ordinance, and if he does it will probably be passed over his veto.

A general increase of salaries was made by the Council to all the city officers. The city treasurer, tax receiver and city clerk's pay is raised $500 and the street commissioner receives an increase of $460.

STATE TAKES OVER BONDS.

Rahway's Issue of $75,000 is Formally Accepted.

Rahway, Dec. 8.—Yesterday the State of New Jersey accepted the $75,000 issue of Rahway school bonds, State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees turning over to the custodian of school money, Charles A. Angelman, the money in exchange for the bonds. Chairman of the finance committee, Reuben Tharp, through whose efforts the bonds were disposed of, is being congratulated for the placing of them with the State under such favorable conditions.

The bonds run for fifty years at 4 per cent.

The home of Michael Monohan, in Chestnut street, Roselle, just over the city limits, was visited by a burglar early Monday, who got away with considerable wearing apparel. Thinking it one of the workmen he paid no further attention to the matter until several hours later, when he discovered his home had been robbed.

APPROVES PLANS FOR UNION CO. ROAD WORK

One of the highways for which the survey was authorized leads from Two Bridges in Fanwood township past Goodman's station on the Lehigh Valley railroad into the city of Rahway. The stretch covers five miles and when improved will furnish a macadam roadbed by the shortest route between Plainfield and Rahway.

SUNDAY AT PAVILION.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Sunday, as every one west of storm-swept Chicago knows, was an ideal day, not at all characteristic of December weather. The sun shone lovingly on the pretty little pavilion of the Tuberculosis Society and its inmates, sitting and reclining on extension chairs, were getting the full benefit of the disease curing and life giving rays. Miss Mary L. Leahy, the visiting nurse of the society, is temporarily acting as day-nurse, and she reported that the patients were happy and that they all take kindly to the open-air treatment, even sleeping at night with the awning or curtain which is the only way of closing the front of the rooms, rolled up to the top.

At present there are seven patients including the night nurse, Miss Buggart, who were quietly and soundly sleeping in one of the rooms Sunday and the cook, who at the time of our reporter's visit was preparing the dinner on the gas stove, and the joint which she was basting certainly sent forth a most delicious and attractive odor. Both the night nurse and the cook are taking the treatment, but are able to render the required services. Besides them there are four children (two colored) and one adult. They all seemed to be enjoying the rest and quiet which are of such great importance in the treatment of tuberculosis. Doctor Hughes is very enthusiastic with regard to the benefits to be derived from this practical beginning of the work, and gives his time freely. Visitors are at all times welcome, and we feel sure that all who go will be much interested in the equipment of the pavilion, and the preparations made for the comfort of its inmates. The society hopes that this is but the first step towards a realization of its plans for a great extension of its activities. The need for enlarged effort is shown in the fact that sixteen applications for admission have been received, while the pavilion can care for but eight. The eighth has been accepted and is expected tomorrow.

According to the reports made to the Plainfield Board of Health there are now forty-four cases in the city, and it is estimated by those in a position to know that there are upwards of one hundred and fifty cases, not all by any means being reported to the health authorities because of the disinclination of tuberculosis sufferers to have the fact made matter of record, and because while the law requires physicians to report all cases, no penalty is attached to a failure to do so. Thus it will be seen how urgent is the need for money, with a full competent of patients it will require from $250 to $300 a month to meet expenses, and to obtain this the society must look to the people of Plainfield and North Plainfield for assistance, since its beneficiaries are drawn from a class unable to pay for the care given.

Contributions may be sent to J. P. Murray, treasurer of the society, 737 Watchung avenue. The payment of one dollar a year will constitute one a member of the society, and it is desirable that the membership shall be as large as possible, not only because of the money it will bring in, but of the increased interest which one becoming a member will take in all phases of the society's work.

ARMY ASKS MAYOR FOR AN INTERVIEW.

The Salvation Army Corps in Elizabeth, which has been prohibited from holding open-air meetings in Broad street by order of Mayor Victor Mravalag, is seeking an amicable adjustment of the matter. The army, however, will insist upon its right to hold open-airs and to have music at them.

An intimation that an amicable settlement is desired was made known yesterday when Colonel MacIntyre, divisional officer, through the Salvation Army counsel, William F. Groves, asked the Mayor to grant him an interview. If an amicable settlement cannot be reached, it is probable that a compromise will be made.

Mayor Mravlag stated that he is willing to see Colonel MacIntyre at any time.

WOMAN SUES FOR DRESS.

Daughter of Dr. Crapsey Asks $150 Damages.

New Brunswick, Dec. 8.—Mrs. Clark, the wife of Arthur M. Clark, a local lawyer, and the daughter of the Rev. Dr. Crapsey, of Rochester, whose trial for heresy attracted much attention a few years ago, was plaintiff in the District Court here Monday afternoon against Harry Friedman, of Peace street. Mrs. Clark claimed that while she was in Friedman's store her dress was burned by a small gas stove. She valued the dress at $150, and had dressmakers present to substantiate her claim.

B. Kornbluth, M. Frankel and Samuel Spitz, tailors, testified that the injured dress was worth from $35 to $50 and that it had only been partly destroyed, and that it had been cut as well as burned. The case was not concluded.

Lehigh Builds Spur.

Bayonne, Dec. 8.—In order to take care of the increased traffic the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company is building another spur to Constable Hook. The new line begins at Thirty-seventh street. The company has found it necessary to do much filling in along the shore front.

Train Mangles Laborer.

Michael Alfonce and Antonio Groskegy, laborers employed by J. C. Park, a Cranford contractor, while walking on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks, near Cranford Junction, on their way to work Monday morning were struck by a train. Groskegy was instantly killed. Alfonce was badly injured and was removed to the Elizabeth Hospital.

Mrs. Harold Serrell, of Myrtle avenue, who recently fell and dislocated her shoulder, is now able to be around the house, and is improving rapidly.

His Own Business First

When you select an INDIVIDUAL to act as Executor or Trustee, does it ever occur to you that the very qualities which caused you to select him may later work out TO THE DISADVANTAGE OF YOUR ESTATE.

If he has been selected because of his eminent business abilities, he is probably intensely occupied with the cares and duties of his own business.

Later, when your estate is in his hands, and his OWN BUSINESS, TOO, which will have his FIRST ATTENTION? HIS OWN BUSINESS, OF COURSE—IT WOULD HAVE TO BE SO—no matter how conscientious he might be.

IT IS THE BUSINESS OF

to take care of Trust Estates, and consequently FIDELITY IS IN A BETTER POSITION TO DO THIS THAN ANY INDIVIDUAL COULD POSSIBLY BE.

GOOD WORK.

Done Daily in Plainfield; Many Citizens Tell of It.

Nearly every reader has heard of Doan's Kidney Pills. Their good work in Plainfield still continues, and our citizens are constantly adding endorsement by public testimony. No better proof of merit can be had than the experience of friends and neighbors. Read this case:

Mrs. W. W. Mills, 304 W. Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "A dull, heavy, bearing-down pain in my back bothered me a great deal, especially when I caught cold. I also had frequent headaches and was at times so dizzy that I could scarcely see. If I did much stoping or lifting, my back became very lame and though I used plasters, I was relieved only for the time being. Finally on the advice of a friend, I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's Pharmacy and began their use. They acted in every way as represented and in a short time rid me of all symptoms of kidney trouble. I am pleased to recommend a remedy of such undoubted merit."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

The Chorus Lady

By JAMES FORBES

Novelized From Forbes' Play of the Same Name by JOHN W. HARDING

Copyright, 1908, by G. W. Dillingham Company.

Crawford was of that kind very common in great cities who affect to believe that all is fair in love, as they conceive it. To do him justice, however, he had not thought of his little companion save in an entirely disinterested way. He had considered her as a beautiful child, as a "wild rose," but the idea that the rose might be plucked had not even entered his mind, and when he had told her that he agreed with her sister that home was the best place for her he had really meant it. But the turn the conversation had taken had quickened his imagination, diverted his ideas into another channel and opened his eyes to possibilities. Here was a girl shapely and unusually pretty, whose charms were enhanced by an innocence that was childlike as it was captivating, not to be found in any girl, however good, who had been brought into contact with the experience of the city school or workshop.

"You might not like it," he said, rising to help her fold the tablecloth.

"Not like New York!" she ejaculated, astonished at the notion. "The idea! Why, even Patsy, who loves the country, says New York's the one best bet."

"It's a pretty good little town," he agreed, folding her hands in the cloth and gazing straight into her eyes. "Yet I haven't enjoyed myself so much in a long while as I have this morning."

The girl averted her gaze and blushed, and he relaxed his clasp.

"Did you see all the horses?" she asked, not comprehending the meaning he had essayed to put into the words. "Which one did you like most?"

"They are a fine string, but I think Lady Belle hit my eye."

"Isn't she a beauty? I love her!" she exclaimed enthusiastically. "But," she added, suddenly recollecting her trouble over the mare and becoming resentful, "she doesn't get any sugar from me this morning."

"No? Why not?"

"Because she lost me $5 to the Shrimp."

"The Shrimp?"

"Yes; he's one of the stable boys."

"Oh! So you bet, then?"

"I love to, but I shouldn't have told you that."

"Why not?"

"It might hurt father in your eyes."

"How so?"

"He thinks it dishonorable for any of us, he being a trainer, to put money on a horse. I don't know what he'd do if he found I'd disobeyed him again."

"I won't tell him," he laughed.

"But the Shrimp will if I don't pay him. I don't know what I'm going to do," she said ruefully.

"Let me lend it to you," he murmured.

Nora turned away in great embarrassment.

"Oh, Mr. Crawford, I wasn't hinting! I couldn't think of taking money from you. What would father say if he found it out?"

"He needn't know. Why should he?" he insisted.

"But you're a stranger," she objected.

"A stranger! Don't say that. Why, I feel as though I had known you all my life! Besides, as I am to be Mallory's partner, I am going to be a friend of the family, you know."

The girl reflected.

"Yes, of course, I suppose so. You're not quite a stranger," she said doubtfully. "You're sure it would be all right for a girl to borrow money from a gentleman?"

"Most certainly," he assured her.

Nora still hesitated, but she wanted to take the money.

"Of course I could pay you back—some time," she faltered.

"That's all right," he said genially. "There's no hurry about it. I shan't need it for ever so long."

And, going to his overcoat on the door, he drew from the inside pocket a roll of bills.

As he did so Mrs. O'Brien came downstairs.

Crawford thrust the money back into his pocket and pretended to be taking down his coat.

"Nora," said her mother, "I want ye to come upstairs an' dust"—

She broke off short, seeing Crawford putting on his coat.

"Sure, Ol'm not meanin' to drive yez away, sor," she said, "it's proud Ol'd be to introduce ye to Patsy."

"Thank you," he responded cordially. "I shall be delighted. I'll be back in a little while."

Nora, following her mother upstairs, turned to look at him, and he cast a swift, meaning glance at her as he went out.

CHAPTER IV.

"I USETER think I was the big screech in this family, but it looks like I'm the false alarm!"

Patricia O'Brien gazed around the deserted kitchen with mingled ire and disappointment as she delivered herself of this sentiment and deposited a suit case and an umbrella on the floor.

"Wouldn't this frost you, though," she muttered, "me havin' to beat it all the way from the deepo an' there's not a soul to offer me the welcome mitt?"

She went to the foot of the stairs and lifted up her voice in a strident "Ooo-ho—ooo-ho!" Then she returned and seated herself wearily on a chair.

Little excited cries in the regions above and a sound of hurrying feet followed this call.

"'Tis Patsy! 'Tis Patsy! Hurry, Nora!" shrieked Mrs. O'Brien.

"Me darlin', me Patsy, 'tis glad Ol am to see yez. Ye're lookin' beautiful, choild," cried the old woman, hugging her to her and receiving in return a hug so strenuous in its expression of long pent up and hungry affection that it made her gasp.

The first effusions of the joy of meeting again having moderated, Patsy once more became aggrieved.

"Some one might 'a' met me," she complained, with tears in her voice. "It ain't no joke hot footin' it all this way with a heavy grip. Where's pop?"

"Phwat! Wasn't there anny wan at the train? Didn't yez see Danny?" queried her mother, much surprised.

"Don't speak his name!" requested the girl as she divested herself of her short tan jacket and revealed her tall, slender figure clad in a white blouse shirt waist and black taffeta skirt, beneath which as she raised it slightly the flounce of a green petticoat was visible. "Didn't you get my wire sayin' I'd be here on the 7:06?"

"Yes, but it wasn't delivered here until half past 7," said Nora as she took her sister's hat, a fearful and wonderful creation in black chiffon.

"An' Danny rushed roight away with the rig for the train," added her mother.

"Half past 7! Wouldn't that scald you? I'm sorry I was so grouchy, but I'm so temperamental."

Patricia emphasized the last word with a very superior air as she adjusted her pompadour before the mirror and smoothed out her crumpled shirt waist with her fingers. Her notion as to what it meant was extremely hazy, but she had heard it in a play, and it sounded well.

Her mother was much impressed by it.

"Is that so?" she said sympathetically. "Poor dear! But Ol doan't wonder at ye feelin' upset. Sure 'twas a cold welcome yez had from yir loved waus."

"I had it all framed up," Patsy went on, "me descendin' from the caboose an' fallin' on everybody's neck. An' when I gets off the train the only neck in sight belongs to that village cutup that propels the hack. The worst of it was I'd been handin' it out all season to that bunch of frills in the company about my fiance that owns a racin' stable and had told 'em I'd wired him to meet me. An' when that rabbit faced hackman comes up an' hands out his mitt to me— Well, never to me dyin' day will I forget the way that burlesque crowd hands me the merry ha, ha!

"But it's good to be home again," sighed Patsy contentedly, dismissing from her thoughts the contretemps that could not be placed to anybody's fault and giving her mother another affectionate hug. "An' how is things? How's Danny gettin' along?"

"He ain't gettin' along as well as he moight," answered the old woman uneasily. "He's had a hard toime av it ever since the foire, though Lor' knows he'd wurruked hard enough, an' he's had to git a partner."

"A partner?"

"Yes. We didn't wroite to bother yez about it. It wouldn't 'a' helped matters an' would 'a' set ye worryin', an' ye sure have enough to put up with."

"You oughter 'a' let me know about it, all the same. Who is he—this partner, I mean?"

"A Mister Crawford from New York. He came here this very mornin' to look the place over. Yir father says it's little Danny 'll get out av the stable now except his board an' keep."

"Ain't that punk luck!" commented Patsy. "Well, an' how's pop? I didn't have much money, an' I came away too quick to buy anything for you, but I brought some tobacco I got at the deepo at Washington."

Before her mother could reply O'Brien himself came in, his face beaming a welcome. Tears of tender joy moistened his eyes as he took the returned wanderer in his arms.

"Ah, Patsy, but we've missed ye, me girl," he said. "It makes loife worth livin' to see yez once in a whoile. Phwat happened to yir show that ye were able to come to us?"

"The angel, the financial party as was back of the 'Moonlight Maids,' got chilblains," she explained.

"Poor creature! Where did he catch them?" asked her mother, with much interest.

LOCAL ELKS DEFEHT NEW BRUNSWICK CHAMPS

Plainfield Elks made an auspicious start in the Elks League last night on Campbell's alleys when they took the odd game in a redhot series with the New Brunswick champions. With the exception of the first contest, pinning of the tiptop brand prevailed. In the opener both teams warmed up for bigger doings in the second and third contests.

High scores were numerous. Hart, of New Brunswick, annexed the individual honors of the series with an average of 204 pins, with marks of 188, 234 and 190 to his credit. Blatz with a high mark of 226 excelled for the locals with an average of 196.2.

While the scoring was tame in the first contest the battle provided plenty of keen excitement as when the pins were totalled the locals were only six pins to the good, the score being 841 to 835.

Burton and Hart's superb rolling in the second helped the visitors along to victory by the score of 983 to 941. Burton, in this game registered 232, the highest mark of the series.

Plainfield captured the honors in the "rubber" game by a margin of 19 pins, the score being 938 to 919. In this game Blatz's 226 and Stout's 193 scores helped the local cause. The scores:

WATCHUNG BOWLERS ARE UP AGAINST IT

The Watchung bowling five struck a snag in the New Jersey National tourney games on the Texedo alleys in Newark, last night when they dropped games to the Mineralites and Colonials. The local pin knights failed to bowl up to their usual standard while the Newarkers did fair work.

The Watchungs made their best showing in the final game which they lost to the Colonials by a margin of four pins, the score being 858 to 854. Schaub and Campbell were high men in this game with respective scores of 194 and 192, while Erler topped the Colonial list, with a mark of 224.

In the first clash the Watchungs were snowed under by the Mineralites by the score of 929 to 831, or a margin of 98 pins. In this contest the locals never had a "look in." The scores:

NURSES OF NEW JERSEY MEET IN JERSEY CITY

Many nurses, members of the New Jersey State Nurses' Association, attended yesterday's session in the hall of the Free Public Library in Jersey City, when a fine program was enjoyed. The day was divided into sessions, the members being guests of the nurses of Christ Hospital for luncheon, which was served at the Young Women's Christian Association at 1 o'clock.

About forty of the active members were present, and fully half that number were at luncheon. The by-laws were revised to facilitate the working of the organization, and reports were heard from delegates of the society to the recent conventions of larger bodies with which the nurses are associated. Mrs. D'Arcy Stephens having attended the International Council in London.

Miss Annie Damar, of the Board of Examiners for Nurses in New York, was the speaker for the afternoon. Her subject was, "Why New Jersey Needs Registration." The nurses of New Jersey have for some time been endeavoring to have a bill passed by the Legislature requiring all nurses in the State to register, and also to have some legal supervision over training schools. This has been brought to the attention of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, with which the State Nurses' Association is affiliated.

The association has for its president Mrs. Bertha J. Gardner, who presided yesterday. Other speakers wewre Miss Bamber, of Newark, who told of the public health laws of New Jersey. A paper was read by Miss Ascenbach, of Newark. The spring meeting, with the annual election, will take place in Passaic in April.

GRANGERS ASSEMBLE FOR YEARLY MEETING

About six hundred New Jersey Grangers are holding a State convention in the Beach Casino, Asbury Park. The sessions were opened yesterday and will continue until tomorrow afternoon. The Grangers were formally received last night by Mayor T. Frank Appleby. Yesterday afternoon Senator George W. Gaunt, of Gloucester county, and Master of the Grange, delivered the annual address, in which he advocated the repeal of the act authorizing county boards for the equalization of taxes on the ground that these bodies are a useless cog in the machinery of New Jersey government.

Senator Gaunt outlined in detail the system of taxation approved by the Grange, which presents several radical changes from the existing methods in New Jersey. Reviewing the condition of the Grange, Senator Gaunt said that its growth had been greater the last year than for thirty-five years. More than four hundred and thirty-seven new Granges have been organized and fifty-nine had been reorganized. The influence of the Grange in public affairs, he said, had been far more noticeable than at any other time in its history. The membership in New Jersey is 110,000.

Senator Gaunt in his address indorsed the farm census to be taken in 1910, indorsed the movement to create a national health bureau, praised the improved road policy of New Jersey and predicted a great future for the Grangers throughout the country.

Most of the meetings of the Grange will be secret. The meeting will decide the policy to be pursued in reference to the meeting of the National Grange at Atlantic City.

MILK TALK.

Mr. Christian to Speak on Dry Milk.

Much interest is aroused over the lecture to be given in the assembly rooms of the Plainfield Business College tomorrow night. Mr. Christian, of this city, will speak on the subject of "Dry Milk and Its By-Products."

Mr. Christian is an entertaining speaker and he has made an exhaustive study of the subject. The present agitation over the increased cost of this commodity makes this an appropriate topic. The average citizen will realize how little he really knew about "Milk" when Mr. Christian has completed his lecture and a most cordial invitation is extended to the general public to attend the affair.

AGED RECLUSE AGAIN IN DANGER OF ATTACK

George Elwyn, the aged recluse of Watchung, who was the victim of a murderous assault in his hut a long time ago, and who lay between life and death in Muhlenberg Hospital for several months, narrowly escaped another attack Sunday night. Two strange men approached the door to his cabin, threatening his life if he did not let them in and give them money for food.

Elwyn went to the door with a revolver in one hand and a lantern in the other, and as he opened the door, the men made an attempt to strike him. Elwyn discharged his revolver. This aroused the neighborhood and frightened the strangers away.

Two unknown men were seen loitering about Watchung during Sunday afternoon, but no one seemed to know their mission. Toward night they were noticed sitting on the bridge and a little later they disappeared. It is believed that they are the two who attempted to assault Elwyn at his home.

ALLEGED BOGUS BARON WATCHED BY POLICE.

Since the exposure of the "past" of the alleged Baron von Koenitz, who married Miss Louisa Ewen, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heaslip, of Westfield, has been overrun with reporters and police. Von Koenitz is under the surveillance of the police who are taking a deep interest in his past. It is said that he is a convict and the elopement and marriage between the couple has caused a family entanglement which requires the special intervention of a well known firm of lawyers in New York city to straighten out.

It is said that von Koenitz secured $45,000 from his wife who was something over fifty years old. The family owns some valuable real estate in New York, part of which van Koenitz persuaded his bride to mortgage. Mrs. von Koenitz has promised her sisters that she will not leave the country with her husband until the inquiry as to his antecedents is concluded.

NO NEW CHURCH EDIFICE

Trinity Reformed Congregation Abandons Plans to Select a New Site.

COMMITTEE MAKES REPORT.

Six Suggested Locations But the Flock Decides to Indefinitely Postpone Any Action.

For the present at least, Trinity Reformed's flock has abandoned the ideas of choosing a new location and erecting a more modern house of worship. That decision was arrived at when the report of the special committee considering such plans was presented at last night's congregational meeting, called for the purpose. No recommendations were made by the committee but it was the consensus of opinion among those who spoke on the subject that the time was not ripe for such a move.

Frederick S. Cutter, as chairman of the meeting read the report prepared by H. C. VanEmburgh, chairman; H. W. Marshall and B. Frank Coriell. Edgar F. Sheppard acted as clerk. These properties were considered by the committee as suitable sites:

Estate of Clawson, corner East Front street and Sandford avenue, 188x240 feet, more or less. Woodhull & Martin, corner East Front and Church street, 111.7x165 feet, more or less. Brooks property, corner East Sixth street and Watchung avenue; 200x250 feet, more or less. Green property, corner West Eighth street and Central avenue, 160x200 feet, more or less. Spencer Estate, corner Park avenue and Seventh street, 152x276 feet, more or less, adjoining corner of Park avenue, 100x276 feet, more or less. Campbell property, Craig place, between Duer and Somerset streets, 63x180 feet, more or less.

The committee further stated:

"We have not found any lot, location and price considered, that we feel justified in recommending, knowing the present financial condition of the church. The committee is unanimous in the opinion that the Brooks property on Watchung avenue and Sixth street, would make an ideal home for our church, but the property at the present time is not in the market for sale.

"Your committee feel that the matter of procuring a lot is of great importance and that it should not be done without due consideration, and we would therefore recommend that the matter be referred to the Consistory and at any time that they could unite on a location that in their judgment would be for the best interest of our church, they could then call a meeting of the members of the same and take action.

"The committee would ask to be discharged from further consideration of the subject."

After Mr. Marshall and others had spoken, it was decided to indefinitely postpone any action. The report was filed with the Consistory and the committee discharged with thanks.

During the course of his explanatory remarks, Mr. Marshall suggested that better returns be obtained on a mortgage for $5,000 held by the church. He also recommended that the interest money be allowed to accumulate. The interest rate on this mortgage is now but four per cent.

Westfield is Dry.

The Plainfield-Union Water Company shut off the water in Elm street, Lawrence, Mountain and Highland avenues and in Orchard and Walnut streets and Kimball avenue in Westfield this morning, in order to install water gates so that pipes may be extended to the fast developing sections in the north and west sections of Westfield in the spring. The water company hopes to complete the putting in of the gates this afternoon and intends to turn the water on again at the earliest possible moment.

N. P. H. S. HUMILIATED BY WESTFIELD'S FIVE

The North Plainfield High School five were beaten in a fast game of basketball last night by the Westfield H. S. five, the score being 25 to 21, in two twenty minute halves. There was a noticeable lack of team work on the part of the borough lads, but this is due entirely to lack of practice. Another thing that helped to defeat the borough boys was that the floor was so slippery and one of the baskets so high, that they could not accustom themselves to conditions.

Conroy and Stein, forwards; C. Smith, centre; P. Dunning and P. Bailey, guards. H. Smith played guard during the last half.

"VISION OF ST. JOHN" RENDERED BY CHOIR

"The Vision of St. John," a musical cantata by J. Whitney Coombs, was given by the quartet choir, assisted by a chorus at the First Presbyterian church, last night, under the direction of Clifford A. Brader, organist and choirmaster. There was a large and appreciative audience present. The music was enjoyed greatly and the quartet and chorus sang in good voice. All of the solo parts were taken by members of the regular quartet.

The assisting chorus comprised the following: Mrs. S. H. Tugwell and Mrs. Charles E. Herring, contraltos; Mrs. Thomas MacDonald and Mrs. E. D. Young, sopranos; Willard Miner and William Tallamy, tenors and Thomas MacDonald, bass. During the evening an offering was received for the benefit of the Men's Club.

JUDGMENT AGAINST WALL STREET BROKER

Milton R. Giles, a butcher, of West Second street, recovered a judgment against Henry V. Boyer, for $54.67 in the District court this morning before Judge William Newcorn.

The suit was brought on a protested note given by Boyer to cover a bill for meats furnished by Mr. Giles and which was in settlement of an account. Mr. Boyer, who is a Wall street broker, and reputed to be wealthy, moved from this city to Westfield shortly after giving the note and Mr. Giles has been unable to collect the amount due him.

THEY PLAN TO INCREASE THE LEGAL SCHOOL AGE

The Board of Education of Elizabeth, at its meeting last night took up a resolution that will, if it passes, make it mandatory for every teacher in the public schools to sign an agreement to live up to the State school laws and to manual of the School Board. Just why this resolution was introduced could not be learned, and none of the trustees would give the slightest intimation as to its intent.

There was a lengthy discussion as to the age children should be admitted to the schools. Some of the trustees claimed that the present age, 5, should be increased to 7 years. They pointed out that a child's brain was not developed, nor can it be satisfactorily developed before it reaches the age of 7. Before then, the trustees said, a child should be in the open air.

No action was taken on the matter.

LEADERS' CONFERENCE WILL BEGIN TOMORROW

In his special field of Bible study for men and boys, his ability has been shown by the authorship of widely used Bible study courses, by his effective leadership of Bible study conferences in the principal cities of America and England and by the extension, under his direction, in many cities, of Bible classes into homes, shops, car-barns and other places where men and boys naturally gather.

"The Show Girl" Booked.

B. C. Whitney's famous Broadway success, "The Show Girl," is one of the latest bookings Proctor & Sanderson have secured for the Plainfield theatre for Saturday matinee and night. This musical tomfoolery, as it is called, has been given an entire new production this season.

HARMONY TRUE IN NATURE

The Key to Beauty Because it is Consistent, Says Mr. Bailey.

IN LECTURE AT HIGH SCHOOL.

A Flaming Red Necktie No Evidence of Good Taste in Dress—Nor a Shirtwaist a Gown.

"There is beauty in all things if you can only discover it," said Henry Turner Bailey, Editor of "School Arts," a Boston, Mass., publication, who lectured before the teachers of the Plainfield and North Plainfield schools in the Plainfield High School auditorium yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Bailey's lecture was on the topic "Beauty in Common Things," and he drew some very valuable lessons from a few tufts of grass and some leaves picked at random from the city Park. Mr. Bailey is on expert artist and made plain illustrations of his arguments for beauty on a blackboard.

"Consistency is the key to beauty," Mr. Bailey said, "and if we would find the harmony which nature presents to our perception we must look to the consistency of the things as they present themselves to our vision. Beauty should always be consistent. If you enter a room and emerge with the exclamation, 'isn't that a beautiful rug,' the room is not beautifully furnished because the rug was conspicuously handsome. If you discern in another room a mantelpiece which calls forth the same exclamation, that room is not altogether beautiful. It is the harmony of beauty which should be the object of the furnisher.

"Again, when you see a man coming toward you with a flaming red necktie, which in itself may be a thing of beauty, it does not necessarily follow that the man is well dressed. On the contrary he is like the woman whose shirt waist is her most conspicuous adornment. Nature does not do things that way. Her ways of blending her colors cannot be imitated exactly, but with a strict adhesion to the rules of natural beauty some idea may be inculcated into the mind of those whom you teach.

"I am reminded of the old New England school commissioner who said he didn't like beauty in nothin,' but who attended the session with dyed whiskers. It was too funny to be overlooked. He evidently was a beauty seeker but could not see that he was an amiable prevaricator.

Mr. Baily likened nature to the rythm of music, taking the march time and waltz time as examples of the way in which nature always works out the problems of consistency. The swallow and man represent the one, two, three movement of the waltz, while the twigs of trees showed the consistency of her work in another direction by the march time, a long twig and a short one, all the way up through the tree.

The circle is used for strength while the spiral represents beauty, as the latter is always striving to arrive at a point which is never reached while the circle in architecture and other arts shows its definite end. Mr. Bailey told the teachers that they were training their pupils for life. Culture, business society usage and practical things which are to be the foundations of the structures which are to be reared for future generations, and the more beauty that could be infused into these young lives the better the structures would be.

The lecture lasted for about and hour and a half and was intensely interesting and as one of those present observed, would have interest all of them indefinitely. Mr. Bailey made many colored chalk illustrations which convinced his hearers of the real beauty to be found everywhere.

PROTECTORS WANTED FOR THE DRUNKARDS

Rev. George Gardner, pastor of the New Market Baptist church, petitioned the Piscataway Township Committee, yesterday, to appoint a board of protectors to prohibit the selling of intoxicating liquors to minors and habitual drunkards, in accordance with the law. The minister said that his attention had been directed to the alleged increase in the number of cases of intoxication and that he was anxious to have the protectors appointed.

The committeemen promised to consider the petition carefully and said that they would decide the matter within a short time. This is the first instance in this vicinity where an application has been made to secure such a board of protectors and there is unusual interest in the movement. This was the only important business considered by the committee yesterday.

The boy was sent back to school for a day or two or until his father can be found.

It is believed that a lack of discipline in the home has much to do with his naughtiness, besides he wants to go to work. He claims he will be fifteen years old next January and believes he is entitled to earn his own living since he has been abandoned by his father. Steps are being taken to locate Edward Vail, the father of the boy.

CUSTOMER CAUSES SALESMAN'S ARREST

Boies, who claims to be a salesman for the clothing firm of Wanamaker and Brown, of Philadelphia, was arranged before City Judge Runyon this morning on complaint of Daniel Chiafaro, a barber, of 157 East Fourth street, on a charge of fraud in an overcoat transaction. Judge Newcorn Reserves Decision Ordering Respective Counsel to Submit Briefs.

The suit of George Williams, of Westfield, against Charles Doersch, of Broad street, Westfield, for damages for a broken leg sustained by Williams while in the act of delivering a bag of potatoes at Doersch's residence, was not concluded this morning. Judge William Newcorn, before whom the case was tried, ordered the lawyers of both litigants to submit briefs, reserving decision.

Williams complained that while descending the stairs of the cellarway of the Doersch residence in the dark he stepped into an open drain and the succeeding fall caused the sack of potatoes, weighing between 180 and 190 pounds to fall upon him breaking the fibula of the left leg. He was laid up for thirteen weeks during which time he received an income from an accident association of Philadelphia, besides five dollars a week from the Order of Foresters, of which he is a member.

His suit is based on permanent injury for which he claims that Mr. Doersch is responsible. Mr. Doersch exhibited photographs of the cellar steps and the immediate interior of the cellar where the accident occurred. Dr. George S. Laird, of Westfield, testified as to the nature of the injury and he was corroborated by Charles R. Jones, a colored man, who assisted Williams to a delivery wagon, of which Williams was the driver. William Frazer, also of Westfield identified the steps by the photographs and said the drain into which Williams' foot slipped was similar to other drains in Westfield.

Mrs. Doersch, when put on the stand said that she admitted Williams to the house and told him she would open the cellar door. She did so holding a candle in her hand so that Williams could see where he was going. Williams claimed that Mrs. Doersch was standing in the center of the cellar and the light of the candle was not sufficient to light his way clearly.

After the complainant's testimony was all in former Judge William A. Coddington, counsel for Mr. Doersch, moved non-suit giving reasons for the request. Judge Newcorn denied the motion. Carl Bauman, a photographer, said he took photographs of the steps and cellar way, and identified the exhibits offered in evidence. Francis J. Blatz appeared for Williams.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

Ban B. Johnson, president of the American League of Baseball Clubs, said last night that the American League owners would be a unit at the annual meeting in New York next week for a shorter schedule and shorter games. He explained his position as follows:

"We shall try to do away with the custom of letting the pitcher throw four practice balls to the catcher, unless the pitcher has just been at bat; and I am in favor of making the schedule of games as short as possible. Last year seven of the American League owners were in favor of 140 games, while the eighth wanted 154 games. The American League was really set for 140 games; but for harmony's sake and to save muddling up the schedule with the National League, we compromised on 154 games. In the coming year we want a shorter schedule."

VARIOUS SPORTS.

W. F. Kaynor, the new captain of the Yale cross-country team, finished thirteenth in the intercollegiate race. He was one second behind Willetts, of Michigan, also just that far from a varsity letter, which twelfth place would have given him.

Penn State wants to enter the Intercollegiate Wrestling League now. Apparently all is excitement at State because Lee Talbot is there.

Dr. Williams chose a one year contract with Minnesota at $3,500, rather than a two year agreement at $3,000 a year.

Baltimore City College's crew will be coached by Harry Vail, who has charge of the Ariel B. C. of Baltimore too. Baltimore City College took up rowing last year for the first time.

"Aggregations which are refusing to train according to the ethical standards which has been raised in the West," is the way a Wisconsin man characterizes some Eastern football teams.

It is the Philadelphia idea that in Saxe, Hough and McNichol Pennsylvania has the best three scorers in intercollegiate basketball

John Schommer, the captain of the Chicago basketball team of 1908, is coaching the Maroon five now. Schommer was a great high jumper and played football and baseball at Chicago too, getting four distinct varsity letters!

"A well known professional coach," according to a mysterious announcement from Georgetown, will have charge of the oarsmen there beginning with the first of the year. Can it be that Courtney has left Cornell?

The conference colleges are holding open places on the football schedules for next fall, in hope that Michigan will be back in the conference!

Penn is to play Dartmouth at football next season, it is reported, dropping the Indians to make a place on the Red and Blue list for the purpose.

To reform football: Eliminate running with the ball, or passing it, or kicking it. That will end all danger.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

B. G. Whitney's famous Broadway success, "The Show Girl," will be seen at the Plainfield theatre Saturday matinee and night. This extravaganza is a beautiful production and contains a cast of well known singers and abounds in refined specialties. The music is by H. L. Heartz, co-author of "The Tenderfoot," and abounds in light, airy numbers and contains melodies to suit all tastes, from delightful, dreamy waltzes to catchy coon songs. There are twenty new musical numbers which have been written for this production and among the hits are: "That's the Way of A Sailor," "I Don't Want to be a Lady," "I'm the Manager," "Psyche," "Champagne and Terrapin," "Reggie's Family Tree," and "One That He Loves Best."

Last season when "The Old Homestead" company was playing its annual engagement in New York city, a gentleman requested an interview with Mr. Frank Thompson, the manager of the company, which was cordially granted. He said he had not seen the play since he was a boy of sixteen years. He had grown to manhood since he had seen "The Old Homestead," and on the evening in question he had brought his wife and children to see the drama which had given him so much pleasure in his boyhood days. He requested Mr. Thompson to thank his father, Denman Thompson, in behalf of himself and family, for the pleasure the evening had afforded him. We have no doubt this incident might be multiplied a thousandfold. Men and women who saw the grand old play in their youth are now bringing their children to see it. Mr. Thompson's delightful play will be here shortly and no doubt the success of the past twenty-two years will be duplicated. All the important scenic effects and the same excellent cast, including the famous double quartet, are promised. The show will be seen here on Monday night.

ELIZABETH IS STILL SNUFFING THAT ODOR.

Five physicians of Elizabeth, one of them the Mayor of the city, Dr. Victor Mravlag, and another a member of the Health Board, Dr. Thomas E. Dolan, discussed an odor at a meeting Monday night. Months ago this odor was discussed before the Health Board. Complaint after complaint was made against the Standard Oil Company, accussed as the scource. Then no one whiffed it, and everything went along serenely and beautifully until the smell once again began to creep into Elizabeth in the dead of night.

One of the complainants before the board, William Park, of 113 Broadway, testified that he not only whiffed the odor, but he actually saw it on more than one occasion about dusk in the evening.

"Yes, sir," he declared, "I've been after this odor from the first day of last June," and to back this up he pulled from his pocket a pad, on which he had tabulated every visit the odor made to this city since June.

Charles G. Black, superintendent of the Standard Oil Company's plant in Linden Township, was present. His company was doing everything possible, he said, to keep the odor of sludge acid from the works from sneaking into Elizabeth under cover of darkness. He made inquiries, and every person he asked had never noticed it. "One evening I did detect an odor," Mr. Black said, "but on that particular evening our plant was closed down. That night I called up the plant and ordered several men out to run it down, and they did. It came from Carteret."

Mr. Black stated that his company had already spent $15,000 in building a deodorizer to keep the odor from coming into Elizabeth.

Sidney Williams, health commissioner, insisted that the passenger trains on the Long Branch division of the New Jersey Central Railroad, brought the odor with them and scattered it on either side of the railroad in passing through.

OWL HALTS WORK ON NATION'S WARSHIPS.

Work on big United States warships and other vessels was temporarily suspended for a short time yesterday at the New York shipbuilding plant in Camden while several hundred workmen chased a big white owl which some of them claimed was twenty inches high. The owl appeared in the machine shop and announced its presence by screeching lustily. It was chased from one place to another until it finally landed in the rafters.

Many workmen started after the owl, but were compelled to let it alone by the foreman of the shop, who decided that it would be dangerous to try to capture. It was still in the rafters at last accounts.

FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS IN BAYONNE SECTION.

The Board of Health, of Bayonne, has begun a fight against tuberculosis in the Centreville section and better sanitary conditions are now probable.

The Centreville section is the most congested part of the city and the conditions in some cases are said to be very bad. More cases of tuberculosis have been reported in the last couple of weeks than in several months past.

Health Commissioner Lisk says that the exposure for sale on stands of fish, fruit and vegetables, which accumulate quantities of germs that later enter the homes and systems of the consumers, is largely responsible for the state of affairs.

"Perhaps the worst cause of all," said Mr. Lisk, "is the common house fly. The Centreville section is filled with stables and manure heaps, where the flies breed. They swarm into the adjacent tenements by the thousands and infect the food, which is afterward eaten by some unfortunate person, who subsequently falls a victim to consumption.

"I have a remedial plan in mind which I will suggest to the Board of Health, and that is to secure two scows, one to be kept at the First street dock and the other at the Twenty-fifth street dock. I would compel the dumping of all refuse and garbage in these vessels and prohibit the future use of any of the present dumps.

"For the past ten years I have been suggesting to the Council the necessity of an adequate appropriation for the extermination of the house fly, and every time I have gotten the laugh from the councilmen.

"The Council could afford to appropriate $10,000 in behalf of such a cause. A human life is too valuable to be disregarded and placed in jeopardy for the mere matter of a few dollars and cents."

RUTGERS COLLEGE NOTES.

There will be twenty-six dances, with no extras. An orchestra from Brooklyn will furnish the music. E. B. Van Ness is chairman of the committee, and those associated with him are G. Gladding, R. A. Smith, Mrs. R. C. de Regt, Mrs. D. D. Williamson, Mrs. A. V. N. Baldwin, Mrs. T. R. Palpon, Mrs. F. A. Neilson, Mrs. C. T. Cowenhoven, Jr., and Mrs. W. A. Kirk.

The State Board of Agriculture, in conjunction with the Union Transportation Company and the Pennsylvania Railroad, will conduct a farmers' institute at New Egypt December 10 and 11. The transportation and entertainment of those attending the meetings will be furnished free of charge.

John P. Wall has offered a fine silver cup to teh author of the best story written for The Argo, the "prep" school paper, this year.

W. K. Crater has offered a sweater to the student who is the best all-round athlete at the "prep" school this year. Scholarship and conduct on the team will count for much.

Plainfield in .... The Olden Days.

Re-printed from The Weekly Constitutionalist

March 23, 1871.

St. Mary's church (Catholic) was filled to overflowing on Monday evening last to hear the Panegyric of St. Patrick, by Rev. P. Cody, of Elizabeth. His remarks were listened to with rapt attention by the large audience.

Wm. Biter, machinist, who now has his place of business under Dunn & Van Winkle's stationery store, is having erected for his use a shop "over the brook" at the Somerset street bridge.

Messrs. P. Rickert & Co., have formed a co-partnership for the purpose of carrying on the express business in this city, to be called the "Accommodation Express Company." Their office will be at the Boot and Shoe Store of Solomon Flaig's, corner of Front and Cherry streets. Their wagon is a model of good workmanship and was built by Mr. John B. Brown, of Somerset street.

We are pleased to note the fact that Alfred Berry, Esq., has commenced the work of lowering the sidewalk in front of his building, corner of Front and Cherry streets, to the proper grade consequent upon the lowering of the above streets. We hope that others on the same street will speedily follow his example and lower their walks.

We were welcomed on Tuesday last by a hearty shake of hands from our old friend C. N. Andrews, who is at present engaged in business in New York city. Charley looked hale and hearty, and we hope soon to see him engaged in business in our beautiful city.

Mr. W. F. Gale, for fifteen years employed by the Central Railroad as station agent in Elizabeth city, has resigned his position, to take effect on the first of April. Conductor Joseph Haines will succeed. Mr. Gale intends to open a hotel at Lebanon Springs, N. Y.

At a parish meeting of the First Presbyterian church of this city, held on Tuesday, March 21, a call, with few dissenting votes, was made for Rev. H. P. Ketcham, D. D., to become their pastor.

The application of Wm. and Henry Hand for a patent for an improved dumping cart, was examined in the patent office at Washington, March 17 and allowed. Letters patent will be issued immediately.

Erie Drawbridge Balked.

The drawbridge of the Erie Railroad over the Passaic River near Montclair, balked yesterday morning and would not move, threatening a serious tieup of the Greenwood Lake division of the railroad. Commuters were told of the cranky condition of the drawbridge, and some of them quickly started over other routes to New York. After ten or fifteen minutes, however, the mechanism of the drawbridge was adjusted, and the Erie trains proceeded almost on schedule.

SUCCEEDS BRIGGS AS A BANKING OFFICIAL.

John W. Cornell was Tuesday sworn in as a director of the Broad Street National Bank, Trenton, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of United States Senator Frank O. Briggs, who, owing to his duties in Washington, is unable to serve longer in that capacity.

Mr. Cornell is one of the original stockholders of the bank and has been interested in it since it started twenty-two years ago. He recently retired from the office of surrogate after having held it twenty-five years.

Outbreak of Scarlet Fever Alarms Peapack Trustees.

The fund raised from the sale of tags for the purpose of making improvements to the public school building in Peapack has been increased to $422.65. The work will be completed while the school is closed on account of the many cases of scarlet fever in Peapack and Gladstone.

Two new cases were reported yesterday. The Bedminster Township Board of Health ordered the school closed until Tuesday, January 4.

DATES FOR MURDER TRIALS.

Two men charged with murder in Monmouth county were arraigned before Justice Willard P. Voorhees at Freehold yesterday, and dates were set for their trial. John Catilonia, through his counsel, Thomas P. Fay, pleaded not guilty of the murder of Thomas Lavidotta at Long Branch, November 17. January 4 was fixed as the date for the trial of this case.

The Laing Family

Article No. 3.

By Oliver B. Leonard

In former articles mention has been made of the two sons of the original John Laing who settled near Plainfield in 1685. The present sketch will consider his two daughters, Isabel Laing and Christiana Laing. Their marriages were with the largest and most influential families of Middlesex county.

Isabel Laing, in the year 1760, became the wife of Joseph Fitz Randolph, son of Nathaniel, the oldest child of ten children of Edward and Elizabeth Blossom Fitz Randolph, the original progenitors of this line in America from 1630. Joseph and Isabel Laing Fitz Randolph had but one son who lived to transmit the name to posterity. The other two sons died unmarried and one daughter, Margaret, married Thomas Hedden and had a large family. The one son of Isabel, who lived to marry, was Joseph Fitz Randolph, born 1701, married Abigail Shotwell, whose two sons, Nathaniel and Jeremiah, became very prominent and useful members of society. His father, born 1667, owned the Blazing Star Ferry on Staten Island Sound.

Nathaniel Fitz Randolph (son of Joseph and Abigail) was born 1739 and married 1759 Ursula Stuart (daughter of David Stuart, M. D.). Their son, Joseph, born 1753, married Sarah Edgar, whose daughter, Mary, for her second husband married 1824 Rev. Joseph F. Randolph, pastor of the First Baptist church, Plainfield. The other son of Nathaniel and Ursula, who became quite prominent, was Captain Asher F. Randolph, born 1755, whose granddaughter, Elizabeth, married William L. Laing, and granddaughter, Catharine, was the wife of Edgar Harriet. Captain Asher Fitz Randolph (a great-grandson of Isabel Laing) was an officer in the Revolutionary war and served with distinction in the State miltia.

The other son of Joseph and Abigail Fitz Randolph was Jeremiah, born 1731, married twice, Janet Edgar and Rachel Ford. Their daughter, Janet F. Randolph, became the wife of Col. John Taylor of patriotic fighting blood, whose two sons rose to distinction in the medical profession, viz: Augustus F. R. Taylor, M. D., and John Taylor, M. D.

Christiana Laing, the other daughter of the old Scotch pioneers, John and Margaret Laing of 1685, was married January 23, 1699, to James Manning (son of Jeffrey and Hepsibah). He was born March 15, 1674, and became a thrifty and influential freeholder in both Essex and Middlesex counties. His brothers were John, Joseph and Benjamin Manning. James and Christiana Laing Manning were parents of five children, James, Isaac, Nathaniel, Margaret and Ebenezer.

James, the oldest, was born 1700. May 23, and married Grace Fitz Randolph (daughter of Joseph and Rebecca). Their five sons and one daughter were John, President James, Deacon Joseph, Captain Jeremiah, Enoch and Christiana, who was the wife of Joseph Tingley. James was the founder of present Brown University at Providence, R. I. Joseph was the ancestor of a judge of the Supreme Court of Alabama and of two physicians of some distinction. One of his daughters married Noah Parse, the grandfather of the late Carman Parse, cashier of First National Bank, Plainfield. Captain Jeremiah became one of the most active public citizens of Middlesex county, was an officer of N. J. regiment during the Revolution. Enoch had three daughters, one of whom was the grandparent of Hon. L. V. F. Randolph.

Isaac (son of James and Christiana Laing Manning), was born 1705 and was the grandfather of Captain Isaac and greatgrandfather of the late Manning Stelle and Jacob Manning.

Nathaniel was the youngest son of James and Christiana and was a captain in the Colonial war. He was the father by his first wife, Prudence Fitz Randolph, of Lieutenant James Manning, whose son Phineas rose to the position of Colonel in the Revolutionary War. His son, Nathaniel, was a noted physician and his son William was distinguished also as captain in the Revolution. Benjamin, the youngest son, was born 1744 and made an honorable record in civil, religious and legislative life.

Margaret, born 1701, daughter of James and Christiana, married 1724 Jonathan Fitz Randolph, who were the grandparents of the noted Captain Barzilla, father of Simeon, the miller.

For bravery and practical patriotism no family can show a cleaner record of loyalty. Each generation produced noticeable examples in this respect. None of the name have been known to be tories or sympathizers in the least with even the better class of Loyalists. Though a large percentage of the Laings were of the Quaker persuasion, who were conspicuously opposed to the arbitrament of the sword to settle national disputes, they never refused assistance to the patriots in distress. They were ever on the alert to proffer protection to the volunteer defenders of our liberties, and served faithfully on committees of observation and safety, and some even affirmed their allegiance by actual service in the Continental army.

The names of both John, Jr., and William Laing, sons of the old Scotch pioneer, are found in 1715 among the Piscataway citizens on the muster roll of the Colonial troops. In the Revolutionary war Benjamin Laing from our own locality, was doing duty as captain in the First Regiment of Essex county, and several of the lineal descendants by other surnames attested to their patriotism in active service.

MR. SHATTLE WORRIED.

City, Dec. 7, 1909.

Dear Sirs:

Will you kindly inform me and the public the reason you have not published the fact that the saloon business of the late John Rafferty has been purchased by John Mortimer, of this city, when it is common talk with the citizens, or is it suppressed news.

Yours truly,
F. J. SHATTLE.

(To enlighten Mr. Shattle be it said that a newspaper is not warranted in giving publicity to mere rumor, or idle talk, that one hears on the street. The function of a newspaper is to publish truth, not gossip. There is no truth in the "common talk" which seems so important to our friend's peace of mind. That Mr. Mortimer has purchased the saloon business mentioned was denied days ago and is denied today by William N. Runyon, the counsel for the Rafferty estate, and also by Mr. Mortimer.—Editor.)

SETS FIRE TO OIL GEYSER.

The Standard Oil Company's pipe passing through Menlo Park sprung a leak yesterday afternoon. The oil that escaped was run into a meadow by the employees and there set on fire in order to prevent further damage.

The great cloud of black smoke was visible in distant towns and it was thought that a big fire was in progress.

TRANSFER OF SCIENCE LABORATORY NEAR END

The moving of the departments of biology and geology from Nassau Hall to Guyot Hall, Princeton, the new natural science laboratory, has been almost entirely accomplished. The building, which has been constructed at a cost of about $425,000, is practically the result of a wave of scientific development in the university, begun a few years ago in the physical sciences and now spreading to natural sciences.

Professor E. G. Conklin, for many years prominently connected with the University of Pennsylvania, who is the head of the department of biology here, had a great deal to do with the planning of Guyot Hall. He is an authority in biology, and this department has received a new impetus in recent years.

Furnishing for the new laboratory are being rapidly secured and it is expected that by the middle of next spring the building will be complete in almost every respect. It is understood that funds for new equipment are forthcoming, and when completed, the laboratory will be one of the finest of its kind in existence.

One of the features of the building is the large white-walled museum on the first floor. It has a net floor space of about 16,500 square feet. In this museum are being installed the largec ollections of the geological and biological departments. To the former have recently been added several acquisitions which make it unique among museum collections the world over.

One of the most valuable of the additions was presented by the University of California, and consists of the skull of a saber-toothed tiger and remains of an ancient representative of the dog family from asphaltum deposits in South California. These specimens are supplemented by a valuable collection of photographs.

John C. Beam, '09, of Philadelphia, who has been traveling in the West, has sent from Mt. Stephen, at Filed, British Columbia, about fifty specimens of trilobites, or crab-like specimens were obtained from the preciptious face of the mountain about two thousand five hundred feet above the railroad, and are a clear indication that the sea was once at that level. According to the best means of reckoning known to geologists, the fossils are something over one hundred and fifty million years of age.

As the result of a week spent in Pennsylvania, Professor Gilbert Van Ingen, of the geology department, has secured some valuable specimens. Daniel Moreau Barringer, '79, has given the department some meteoric irons and other material of interest.

Professor Henry F. Osborn, '77, president of the American Museum of Natural History, has donated a series of casts and restorations illustrating the evolution of the elephant and the horse. There is also a cast of one of the dinosauri of Western America during the Mesozoic period.

PATERSON MAN GONE; "BLACK HAND" BLAMED.

Albert Fierio, recently acquitted on a charge of murdering his stepfather, Emmanuel Goiglio, has disappeared mysteriously from his home at Paterson, and relatives believe he has been either frightened or lured away by members of the "Black Hand."

Fierio shot and killed Goiglio in self-defence. At the trial it developed that Goiglio was a member of the "Black Hand' in Italy, and that he had killed two men there. Fierio received an ovation from his neighbors and friends when he left jail. A man in the gathering handed him a letter containing a threat from the "Black Hand."

"You killed one of our men and we are going to kill you," the letter read. Later he received several letters all threatening his life. When Fierio left home Sunday he said nothing to his mother or to Sarah Marion, to whom he was engaged. Both believed he was lured away and perhaps murdered. They have asked the police to search for him. Fierio was employed as a baker and had saved his money.

At Proctor's.

Necromancy, black art and magic are combined in the Great Barretti pantomime musical comedy at Proctor's theatre today, and is a big surprise for all, and all lovers of a fine show are urged not to miss it. In La Solita, the famous Spanish dancer, who is a past master in the art, there is an attraction far above the ordinary. She is a great favorite. Sheff & Sheffer will administer the laughs in their black face sketch, while Charles Don, the canny Scotch High Ball comedian, in telling funny stories, will locate your funny spot in a jiffy. The interesting and educational and laugh-producing films d'art are changed daily.

Starts Slot Machine War.

By direction of the Board of Excise at Rahway, the police have been ordered to confiscate slot machines, which during the past few weeks have been resurrected from back rooms and dark corners and put in active operation in saloons and cigar stores. All machines found by the police will be confiscated.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 12, 1909.

Topic.—"Pilgrim's Progress" series.—XII. Crossing the river.—I Cor. xv, 21-35; Heb. ii, 14-18. Comment by Rev. Sherman H. Doyte, D. D.

In this subject we see the last of Christian in his pilgrimage toward the Celestial City, for after "crossing the river" he is admitted through the gate into the heavenly city and beholds its glories and abides in it. The great allegory of Bunyan closes, having traced Christian from the City of Destruction step by step until he enters the Celestial City, and in his great work he has in figure described the progressive steps that must be pursued by the sinner today who turns from sin and at the end of life enters into the eternal happiness of heaven. May all who have engaged in or followed these studies be thereby made better able to meet the trials and tribulations of the Christian's life upon earth and to look upon death not as a dreaded enemy, but as a kindly friend that brings us to the gate of heaven, through which we enter by faith in the person and work of our Saviour and Redeemer Jesus Christ.

The last incident in Christian's progress is the crossing of the river. Between him and his companions and the gate "was a river, but there was no bridge to go over; the river was very deep." The pilgrims were stunned at the sight of the river, but those who accompanied them said, "You must go through or you cannot reach the gate." They were told that there was no other way to the gate and that the deep water became shallow by increased faith in Christ. Then they plunged in. Hopeful found the way easy, but Christian began to sink, and it was only by Hopeful's cheering words that he was able to proceed. He passed through awful experiences, but at last his faith strengthened. He saw Christ and was soon upon firm ground again.

The crossing of the river signifies death, the last enemy of mankind. The thought of it causes even Christians at times to fear, and as they approach it they are often, like Christian, much troubled and distressed. But it should not be so. Christ has overcome death. He died and burst the bands of death asunder. Faith in Him will make the deep places shallow and turn the bridgeless river into a fording place easily crossed. By faith He will be with us. "When thou passeth through the waters I will be with thee." "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me." Faith in Him, who has Himself crossed the river, should remove all fear or dread of death. If we must fear, let us fear life rather than death. It is not death, but life, that determines the destiny of eternity. We may well fear lest we fail in our Christian faith and life, but never death, if we have been faithful unto Him unto death. "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life."

But Bunyan in his last words warns us against postponing the salvation of our souls until the last moments of life. He describes such a one crossing the river without fear, but when he reaches the other side instead of entering the gate of the Celestial City he was pushed through a door to hell. Deathbed repentances are poor supports to rest upon. From the gate of heaven lost souls may be cast into the place of outer darkness. "Now is the accepted time." Take advantage of it now and risk not the soul's welfare on the future.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. xxiii, 1-6; Isa. xxxviii, 1-21; xliii, 1-3; Acts vii, 54-60; I Cor. xv, 12-26; II Cor. iv, 16-18; II Tim. iv, 1-8; Rev. ii, 10.

Peacemakers.

One of the most interesting sessions of the British national convention held recently in Nottingham was the International Brotherhood meeting presided over by Mrs. Wareing. She said: "In the foreign office there is a button which may be touched at any time of emergency. It signals 'Mobilize forces instantly.' Hitherto the peace offices have had no button for mobilizing their forces." Mrs. Wareing believes that this will be found in Christian Endeavor societies. She has instituted an International Brotherhood of Christian Endeavor with a simple pledge to work for the advancement of peace and brotherhood.

The world's peace is something worth working for. Every Christian Endeavor society should have a peace committee, just as it has a missionary committee. The work of such a committee would be to provide speakers that would talk peace topics, circulate peace literature, instruct the society in the past history and present doings of the peace movement and in every way hold up the hands of the thousands of men and women that are working for arbitration in place of war and for all the noble ends of international brotherhood. Christian Endeavor must be eager to lead the van in creating a peace sentiment. We have the organization. We encircle the globe. We are already acknowledged brothers, men of every tribe and nation. We are Christians; therefore we favor peace. There is no reason why every member of every society in every country should not pledge himself or herself by saying:

Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength, I will work, as far as I know how, for the furtherance of universal peace, the cessation of all war, the establishment of international arbitration.

Why not? Our King is the Prince of Peace. We are ambitious to earn the title in its broadest sense "the peacemakers." "Blessed are the peacemakers." We want to bring peace in. Let us begin with peace committees.

STEEL BEADS ON JERSEYS.

Gray silk jersey garments are liberally sprinkled with cut steel beads; and, indeed, every variety of trimming in bead and braid form has been tried upon the jersey, to popularize it.

It is a noticeable fact that this very long-waisted jersey, reaching below the hips and fitting closely to the figure, has had an influence upon many of the autumn styles in the ready-to-wear models particularly.

The jersey outline is evident in the very way that jet and steel beads have been put on cloth gowns of the long hips and the Moyen-Age cut.

Something New in Fringe.

Very attractive cotton fringes, to be used for finishing table covers, are shown. The fringe, which has a double gimp, is especially practical, for the unhemmed edge of the cover may be slipped between the two sides of the gimp, and then stitched into place, thus saving many extra stitches.

Handy Asbestos Pads.

Many a housewife would appreciate a set of asbestos pads to put under the doilies and napkins when the polished table is used for luncheon. These pads may be had in various shapes and sizes and have the virtue of lasting many years.

The Chorus Lady

By JAMES FORBES

Novelized From Forbes' Play of the Same Name by JOHN W. HARDING

Copyright, 1908, by G. W. Dillingham Company.

"In the box office," replied Patsy, with a laugh, in which all joined, including her mother, who began to understand.

"Wasn't the play comical?" asked the latter.

"I never noticed any one laff himself to death," said Patsy, shrugging her shoulders. "The comedians was a couple of morgues. The best joke in the show was the star—one of them handmade blonds. She was in the original 'Black Crook' company, an' she had a daughter at school then. Then there was a couple of song an' dance men, a team of acrobats, a troupe of moth eaten dogs an' a chorus that looked like the Chambermaids' union."

"Yep," she admitted, "the scenery was nice, and I made a great personal success. I had three lines in the afterpiece."

"Well, never moind, choild. The 'Moonlight Maids' brought us luck in bringin' ye here," said O'Brien. "An,' now ye're here, we're goin' to keep yez awhile."

"I'd like to stay awful bad, but I'm afraid I can't, pop, dear," she said. "I've got to go back to New York tomorrow."

"But ye can't lave us so soon," protested her mother.

"Mom," she replied, with an air of businesslike importance, "you don't understand. I simply can't keep men like Henry W. Savage and Klaw & Erlanger waitin' to know what I'm goin' to do."

"Will you have a part in a play?" queried Nora.

"That depends on the part. Like as not I'll just go back in the chorus. What's the use of bein' ambitious? It only makes you uncomfortable in your mind. I've thought some of goin' into vaudeville. I've a friend that's close to B. F. Keith's stenographer, an' he thought he could book me some dates. Maybe I'll frame up a sister act."

"Why, honey lamb," said Patsy, with loving, motherly deprecation, "you couldn't do a turn in vaudeville. The stage is no place for you."

Patsy, amazed and pained and anxious to soothe her sister, followed her to the foot of the stairs.

"Why, Nora—honey lamb!" she cried. "Come here, child, I"—

"Honey lamb nothing!" screamed the enraged girl as she slammed the door of her room. "I'll go in the chorus just to spite you."

Patsy, perturbed and distressed, turned back.

"Mom, you haven't been encouragin' her? Pop, you won't let her go?" she questioned.

"Phwat d'ye mean, choild?" demanded her mother.

"I mean," answered Patsy emphatically, "I don't want my little sister in the chorus."

"If it ain't fit for Nora, it ain't fit for you, and it's here ye'll stay," declared O'Brien very quietly and very firmly.

"Me? Oh, I'm different," said the girl. "I'm wise. I can tell the goods from the phoney every time."

"Couldn't ye teach Nora?"

"I'd just as lief she wouldn't learn."

"Ah, Patsy, me darlin', you're forgettin'. It's a lesson women must learn, somehow, somewhere, some day. Better you nor some one else to stand by an' watch she ain't harmed."

Patsy sighed.

"True," she said slowly. "Maybe you're right, mom, after all."

"Whist!" exclaimed O'Brien. "Here's a rig comin'."

"I've a hunch that's Dan. Skidoo, pop," cried Patsy, kissing him hastily and pushing him toward the door. "That goes for you, too, mom. I guess I don't need no chaperony."

Patricia O'Brien's love was of that kind which is a woman's whole existence. Germinating on that day five years before when, a stranger, Mallory had smiled into her eyes, it had grown into a passion that filled every waking hour of her life, a passion that absence had but purified and ennobled.

"Do—you know—you're—takin'—my breath away?" she gasped between the kisses he planted avidly on her lips.

"Am I?" he said, and he kissed her again and again.

"After seventeen weeks touring imitation towns this is certainly peach preserves," she murmured.

"It's heaven! To me you're the one girl in the whole universe," he declared fervently.

"When I think of the men I see other women stacked up against—you win—easy."

"I never saw anything that was in your class, Patsy. You look like a four time winner yourself."

"Honest, Dan?"

"You're prettier than ever."

The girl regarded him quizzically.

"Say, ain't you afraid of gettin' pinched for peddlin' hot air without a license?" she asked.

"It ain't hot air. It's God's truth. Gee, but it's good to look at you. You don't know how I miss you, dear."

"I must hump back to the real puddle tomorrow."

"Tomorrow! Why?"

"To connect. The 'Moonlight Maids' goes into cold storage."

"So I gathered. Seems to be a bad season for shows."

"It's always a bad season for bad shows with bum backin'.

"This everlastin' huntin' a job gets on my nerves," she said dejectedly. "I'm tired of it, tired of missin' you, Dan; tired of seein' you only once in a dog's age."

"So am I, sick to death of missin' you an' longin' for you, an' I won't have you go. Marry me now, Patsy. We'll get along somehow."

He went to her and put his arm around her.

"Say yes," he urged, stroking her hair back from her forehead caressingly. "What's the use of waitin'?"

"An' put a crimp in your prospects?" she exclaimed suddenly, looking up at him. "No, Dan, I ain't such a weak-minded slob as that. I was foolish to let that rave outer me. I'm just tired, that's all."

"It breaks me all up," he said, with a sob in his voice. "I know we could make it a go."

"Not by beginnin' wrong on the money proposition, boy. Just how do we stand? Mom's been hintin'—but let's get down to cases."

"It started at Sheepshead," he began. "I thought I had a string of good ones"—

"An' they turned out skates."

"Yes. I didn't pull off a purse that was more than chicken feed. I had to take in a partner, and it doesn't look like I'll earn more than my keep for the next six months."

"How's this Crawford goin' to boost your game?"

"He's lent me money, an' I've given him a half interest in the stables an' a mortgage on the rest as security for the loan. It was a case of take some one in or get out myself. But we've some promisin' youngsters that ought to bring a good price. Then I'll pay him up or sell out to him. Anyhow, I'm goin' to quit this game. Me for a stock farm."

"Then we'd settle down like a couple of Reubens—us an' the cows," she commented at length, without enthusiasm.

"Not cows—horses," he explained.

"No more playin' dates at Sheepshead or New Orleans?"

"No travel at all; just stayin' home."

"Just stayin' home! Oh, Dan, do you s'pose it would last?"

He looked at her in great surprise.

"Why, sure," he said.

"I dunno," she continued doubtfully, shaking her head. "I've met more than one doll who has thrown a man down hard just to get back to the bright lights. They handed out a lot of junk about love for their art when it was nothin' but a hankerin' for the excitement. Dan, I ain't no better than any one else. I'm kinder afraid."

"You ain't no doll, and you're a million times better than other girls," he said. "I'm not afraid. I know you love me."

"That last part's no idle dream," she responded.

"An' that's what counts," he said reassuringly. "Don't you go gettin' all stewed up."

"It ain't my fault. I'm a little up stage today. I'm upset in me mind."

She rose and paced the room nervously.

"Anything gone wrong?" he interrogated anxiously, rising also.

"Nora's thrown a scare into me."

"Nora?"

"Yes. She's got a stage career all doped out, an' mom an' pop's been lettin' her dream. An' it's all dead wrong."

"What's wrong about it?"

"Every old thing. Say, don't tell me you've encouraged her too!"

"O'Brien asked my advice, an' I didn't see anything to stop her."

"Well, you are a lot of yaps," declared Patsy emphatically. "Can't you see she ain't to be trusted outside the front yard? Not that she ain't good and sweet, but she ain't got any head. I don't know where she gets it, but she's shy on knowin' the difference between right an' wrong."

"But if she went with you, Patsy"—

"I can't stay with her, Dan. How can I? I'm comin' to you."

"She's all right," he said, with conviction, taking her hands.

Patsy stood at the window long after Mallory had disappeared in the direction of the stables giving free rein to her thoughts, and they were not all precisely cheerful in character.

She turned from the window to seek her mother when Nora came into the room. The girl was shamefaced and embarrassed.

"I—I'm awfully sorry, Patsy," she stammered. "I oughtn't to—I didn't mean—indeed"—

"Me, too," she said. "I didn't mean to sit all over you, little one. Forgive me, won't you?"

"And you'll take me with you tomorrow?" questioned Nora, brightening up.

"We'll see," answered Patsy gravely. "We'll have to talk about it all, an maybe then you won't want to go. Where's mom?"

Nora told her that her mother was in the spare room, and when her sister had gone out she set about putting the kitchen in order.

"Maybe I will want to go," she muttered, "and I am going, if not tomorrow, then some other time. I'm going to earn money like you, and I'm going to wear dresses like you."

SUES ORDER OF EAGLES FOR INITIATION INJURIES.

Thomas Lewis, a foreman at the plant of the Standard Steel Car Company, Butler, Pa., alleging that he sustained a broken leg and other injuries while being initiated into Butler Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, has brought suit to recover $5,000 damages.

The grand aerie of the order and the officers of the grand and local organizations are named as defendants.

In his statement he says he was admitted to the hall of the order on the night of January 14, 1908, and that "then and there, by the concerted action, consent and acquiescence of the members and officials, as individuals and as an organized body, he was forced into a catapult seat and hoisted into the air in it, and with a swinging movement forward, the plaintiff was thrown upward and forward on the floor of said hall, and from which fall, in a slightless and helpless condition, he sustained bodily pain and a broken leg."

Lewis says he was incapaciated for work for three months, and is still lame.

The local aerie of Eagles has a large membership, including prominent residents.

A POSTAL BANK BILL. CLUB FOR "UNCLE JOE."

Speaker Cannon and Senator Aldrich are to be routed by means of the postal savings bank bill.

This, at least, is the present plan of the insurgents of the House, and when they meet on Saturday to discuss ways and means of getting the upper hand of "Uncle Joe" and his machine, this will be the club suggested. The insurgents argue that as President Taft and the Republican party platform have both pronounced in favor of postal savings banks, Senator Aldrich and Speaker Cannon are not in tune with their party when they oppose the plan.

If the insurgents can get a postal bank bill before the House in any form this winter, they argue that a big majority of the members will be obliged to vote for it and against Cannon or place themselves on the opposite side of the fence from the President and the Republican platform.

GAVE ALIEN LICENSEES CHANCE TO BE CITIZENS.

The Excise Board of New Brunswick, Tuesday night decided to permit foreigners now holding licenses who were not citizens to continue in business till the annual meeting in June. If they had not become citizens prior to that time their applications for a renewal or transfer would not be considered and their licenses would be revoked. The board will also look into places put in charge of managers by licenses, the board holding that licensees should personally look after their places.

The board adopted a revision of the ordinances, the chief change being in making the clerk's salary $100 a year, instead of payment of fees which exceedd that amount.

DROWNING CHIEF CAUSE OF DEATHS IN THE NAVY.

Drowning was responsible for more deaths during 1908 in the United States Navy and Marine Corps, with an average strength of 52,913 than any other cause, forty-seven men having met their fate in a watery grave out of at total of 305 deaths for the year. The ratio of deaths per 1,000 of strength was 5.76 according to the annual report of Rear-Admiral P. M. Rixey, surgeon-general of the navy. Tuberculosis was responsible for thirty deaths, pneumonia for twenty-four and heart disease for twenty-one.

Grange Listens to Reports.

At yesterday's session of the New Jersey Grange at Asbury Park, John T. Cox, of Reddington, was elected secretary to succeed H. F. Bodine, deceased. The following members of the executive committee were also chosen: Nicodemus Warn, of Warren county; C. C. Hulshart, of Monmouth county, and Henry M. Loveland, of Salem county. Reports submitted by the subordinate granges showed a flattering increase in membership in New Jersey. It is thought that the grange will at today's session declare for local option.

Orange Charity, $25,000.

Preliminary estimates of receipts and expenditures of the recent Cosmovilla, the gigantic charitable enterprise put through successfully by the society people of the Oranges for the benefit of the Orange Memorial Hospital, place the profits at about $25,000. The gross receipts are said to have been $37,000 and the expenses anywhere from $10,000 to $15,000.

TO AID EVANS PLAN.

Mrs. Henry Lang Offers $50,000 for Art Building.

Mrs. Henry Lang, of Montclair, has written a letter to William T. Evans, president of the Municipal Art Commission, of that town, offering the sum of $50,000 to be expended on a building to be erected in memory of her mother, Mrs. Jasper Raymond Rand, and to be used as an art gallery and museum. Mrs. Lang's offer was made as a result of the recent announcement of Mr. Evans that he would give thirty paintings by American artists to the town of Montclair if a suitable building were provided for them. The offer was considered last night at a meeting of the commission.

Mrs. Lang laid down three conditions on the acceptance of which her gift depended. In the first place she asked that before work should begin on the proposed building plans for its future maintenance should be completed. She stipulated that the building should not be an art gallery alone, but a museum as well, and that one room should be set apart as a memorial to her mother and should bear her name. These conditions met with the approval of the commission, and committees were appointed to select a site and perform the other duties necessary to the construction of the building.

LIBEL CASES DISMISSED.

Witnesses Not Present and Judge Throws Matter Out.

Justice Sedam at New Brunswick yesterday afternoon dismissed the charge of criminal libel made by Detective Frank Hoffmann against Jacob H. Whitfield, superintendent of the city water department, and Charles H. Morris, Alfred S. Rastall and Tunis McCauley, employees of the water department. This action was taken after Prosecutor Booraem sent word to the justice that he could not produce witnesses at the hearing demanded by the defendants. The prosecutor had asked to have the hearing set down for today, as several of his witnesses were out of the State and could not be produced yesterday. The justice refused to let the case go over, but set it down for 4 o'clock this afternoon. Prosecutor Booraem did not appear at the hearing, but sent a letter stating that he could not produce his witnesses yesterday, but that he intended to present the evidence against the defendants before the Grand Jury tomorrow.

WOMAN WALKS ACROSS STATE.

Young Wife Tells Police Husband Deserted Her After Long Tramp.

Mrs. Lillie Humphreys, twenty-three years old, complained to the Jersey City police yesterday that she had been deserted by her husband, Simon Humphreys, twenty-nine years old. The woman said her husband was a printer out of employment, and that they started from Waynesburg, Va., on November 18, for New York. Their funds became exhausted, she said, and they walked from Trenton to Jersey City.

Mrs. Humphreys says her husband failed to return to a department store, where he left her to seek aid or employment. She was sent to the headquarters of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. The police are looking for her husband.

Won't Remove State School.

The committee in charge of the institution has blocked a scheme on the part of some of the members of the State Board of Education to remove the State School for Deaf from Trenton. Instead, the board has decided to ask the incoming Legislature for an appropriation of $40,000 for the enlargement of the school at Trenton, which is now overcrowded.

Dr. Hayne Receives Call.

The call was at once telegraphed to him and his acceptance is expected within a week. He is expected to take up his duties here by February 1.

JURY EXCUSES FARMER WHO SLEW CHICKEN-KILLING DOG.

It took three lawyers and a twelve-man jury before Magistrate Aaron E. Burr at Moorestown to decide whether William Garwood, a farmer, should pay $200 for shooting Daniel O'Donnell's English setter dog.

O'Donnell resides in a small house near Green Tree, surrounded by well-to-do neighbors. The testimony developed that the dog was continually killing chickens, and that a secret compact had been formed by the neighbors to end the animal's life.

The lot fell to Garwood. On April 16 last, he says, he caught the animal after it had killed nine chickens in one night. Garwood shot the dog.

Joseph Barton, Joseph Lippincott, Rudolph Helimate and other prominent farmers testified that the dog had killed fowls.

After being out five minutes the jury returned a verdict of "no cause for action."

DEEDS BRING FORTUNE TO AGED WIDOW IN ALMSHOUSE.

Mrs. Ann Sharkey, a widow, inmate at the Morris county almshouse, was surprised the other day when a man came to see her and made her an offer for her dowry right in two tracts of land in Dover. The visitor tendered Mrs. Sharkey $25, but she declined the offer.

Superintendent Nunna heard the conversation and asked the aged woman what it all meant. She told him her husband, John Sharkey, had once owned some property, but she hadn't any recollection of where it was. Sharkey died in the almshouse and was buried in the county cemetery.

He had a trunk which the superintendent had stored away in the garret. This was overhauled yesterday and two deeds were found, which it was learned are yet redeemable. It is thought there is equity in the property of several thousand dollars.

Former Justice Van Syckle Bumped.

Former Justice Bennet Van Syckel is recovering in his home at Trenton after a peculiar automobile accident. He was riding with Congressman Wood and Harry W. Green a few days ago when an obstruction in the road bounced him from his seat. Before he could recover another obstruction was encountered and his head was thrust against the top of the automobile with force enough to render him unconscious.

DESCRIBING THE HIRED GIRL

Character of Mrs. Jones' Cook Varied According to the Listeners Her Mistress Had.

The character of the new cook as reported to various persons by Mrs. Jones:

To Mrs. Smith, whom the cook has left because of too much "company:" "Really, you know, Mrs. Smith, she is a perfect jewel. I can't understand her attitude with you in regard to 'company.' You know we've had extra people to almost every meal since she's been with us, and she has never raised the slightest objection."

To the cook herself: "Really, Mary, I don't want to be a hard taskmistress, but I think that your flat refusal to do the ironing this once, now that my extra woman has disappointed me, is rather unkind. I'm just a little disappointed in you."

To Mr. Jones: "I must say I've had better girls. She gets the work done, but she's awfully slovenly. This morning I found that she's been in the habit of sweeping the dirt from the kitchen, behind the stove, instead of taking it up. She's got a pretty bad temper, and I'm somewhat afraid of her. She talks back something awful."

To her sister-in-law: "You know I have a way with my hired girls, Jane. Mary don't dare say much to me; I won't stand for it."

To her mother: "I'm having an easier time with Mary than with any girl I've had almost since I was married. I hope I can keep her a long time."

To Mrs. Brown, who had inveigled Mary from Mrs. Jones by the promise of higher wages: "My hired girl, Mary, has gotten a new place, and I'm so glad. I was going to discharge her to-morrow, anyway. She can't cook, she's uncleanly, and she has a temper like a termagant. She made life miserable to me while she was in the house. . . . Oh, is it to you she's going? I'm so sorry—I'm so sorry—I didn't know, and I do hope that nothing I've said will make you regret your choice of a new girl."—Puck.

A Crazy Man's Humor.

Some time ago a man at Ypsilanti, Mich., became crazed on the subject of hypnotism, and was sent on a Michigan Central train to an asylum. When the conductor asked for tickets the crazy man began telling of his hypnotic powers.

"I'll hypnotize you," he said.

"Fire away," replied the conductor.

The man made several passes before the conductor's face.

"Now you are hypnotized," he said.

The conductor looked the part as best he could.

"You're a conductor," the hypnotist said.

"That's right," replied the victim.

"You're a good conductor," went on the hypnotist.

"Right again," said the conductor.

"You don't smoke, drink or swear at passengers. You are honest. You turn in all tickets and money you collect from passengers. In fact, you do not steal a cent."

"That's right," asserted the conductor.

The hypnotist eyed him a moment, then said:

Use of Automobiles.

It is certain that with the rapidly expanding use of the automobile there will be a decrease in the number of stables where horses are kept, attended by a decrease in the number of flies and a consequent decrease in the menace of typhoid fever, for the relation between stables, flies and typhoid fever is now well established. From the ratio of cars now in use it is estimated that with an average of five persons to the family, one family in every forty will have an automobile next year—that is to say, there will be an automobile to every 200 of the entire population of the country. Up to 1895 there were 70 automobiles in the United States, valued at $157,500. In 1904, 20,000 cars were built at an average price of $2,200. In 1908, 55,000 cars were built, and the output for this year will be close to 85,000, at an average price of $1,250. The estimates for next year place the number of new machines at 200,000, valued at $240,000,000, or an average of $1,200.

Wanted No Mistake.

Little four-year-old Charlie has new neighbors of whom he has become quite fond—a Dr. Abingdon, wife, and five-year-old daughter who, like an old-time playmate of Charlie's, is named Dorothy.

The other night Charlie made a revision of his prayers, making the addition, "God bless Dr. Abingdon, Mrs. Abingdon, and Dorothy." After making his plea he hopped into his trundle bed and prepared for sleep. His mother, watching him, thought the Sandman had surely come until Charlie suddenly leaped out of bed and fell again on his knees.

"Oh God," he exclaimed, "I want you to bless Dorothy Abingdon, not Dorothy Perkins."

And then he went to sleep satisfied.

Lost Him a Sale.

"He is a cynic," said Senator Tillman of a political antagonist. "He mistrusts all things. He's as bad as the Chicago drummer.

"A Chicago drummer visited a prohibition state. A prohibitionist customer said to him proudly:

"'No, sir; the words beer and whisky are unknown in this town.'

"The drummer nodded and whispered:

"'I see. What does one ask for?'"

DISCOURSES ON EGYPT

Instructive Address by L.V.F. Randolph on Historic and Religious Egypt.

ITALIAN MISSION BENEFIT.

Banker-Poet Heard by a Large Audience at the Local Y. M. C. A. Auditorium.

Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph lectured last evening at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium, for the benefit of the Italian mission. His subject was "Historic and Religious Egypt." He remarked that he contemplated preparing a lecture soon on Economic and Scenic Egypt, and then outlined the history and Religion of Egypt for seven thousand years. In part he said:

"Babylon may be older than Egypt. She may have been the mother of Egypt. It has been surmised that Egypt was peopled, or possibly conquered and ruled, as a result of one of the earliest of westward movements from the original home of man in the vicinity of the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers. But, if such an expression be admissable, Egypt is old enough to be her own mother.

The name Egypt comes from a Greek source; and, if it has a meaning, its significance is unknown. A national name in ancient Egypt does not appear to have existed. The patriotic thought seems to have been a prouder one than even that of the Israelites, who considered themselves a special people, chosen of God, the peculiar people of His care. The children of Abraham, however, rejoiced in the descent and the title which thus came to them from their Bedouin chief and father, and (following the change in Jacob's name to Israel) they were proud of being known as the Children of Israel. But Abraham and Israel were mere human beings. The Egyptians were, in their own traditions and estimates, the wards of the eternal gods. Their Emperor, or King, Pharoah, was descended from Ra, the Sun-god. Amongst themselves they were, as they expressed it, 'Romet,' Men, or People, par excellence. Other nations were simply 'tribes,' such as the Libyans, Cushites and Hittites.

"Prior to the conquest of Egypt by the Persians under Arta Xerxes the Third, a succession of thirty dynasties of kings had ruled Egypt from the time of Mena, of the first known dynasty; but even during his reign Egyptian government and society were well organized, and discoveries at Abydos and elsewhere indicate a much earlier career of this ancient people.

Mena ruled, according to Prof. Lepsius, nearly 3,900 years before Christ, but according to Prof. Mariette, 5,004 years before Christ, or nearly 7,000 years ago. Some Egyptologists have named a still earlier date for this so-called First Dynasty. The remains of Mena and of his immediate successors have been discovered at Abydos, but it is with the Fourth Dynasty, which according to Prof. Mariette, flourished upwards of 4000 B. C., or about 6,000 years ago, that we find some of the more important royal monuments and remains. This Fourth Dynasty includes Kheops and Khephren, builders of great pyramids, which still stand to amaze and instruct the modern traveler.

"It has been my privilege to stand near and to observe in various lights of day and evening these great monuments, as well as that smaller, but even stranger monument, mis-named 'The Sphinx,' which remains half-swallowed in desert sand near the great pyramid of Khephren. These pyramids, and the still older one known as the Step Pyramid of Sakkara, possess a never ending fascination. They were not merely tombs, or monuments of the ancient kings, but the lessons which have been gathered from them are alike the delight of the architect, the philosopher, and the poet. I confess, however, to have been more fascinated by certain monuments which I found in the Cairo museum, than even by these magnificent and imposing pyramids. In this museum, for example, is a diorite statue of King Khephren, in excellent preservation, and furnishing a marvelous example of the most ancient art. It is wonderful to see a statue of clear lines and vigorous aspect, carved from the hardest of substances, and still today in its condition and appearance, approaching at least the perfect condition in which it left the artist's hands well night 6,000 years ago. Near it is a monument almost as old, and nearly as interesting, and in one respect even more extraordinary because it is of wood. I went again and again to view this famous wooden figure, known as the Sheikh el Beled, 'The Chief of the Village.' It was found not many years ago in a tomb at Sakkara. It is almost

CURRENT HISTORY TALK OF ABSORBING INTEREST

Miss Jeanette Richards, of Washington, D. C., entertained about one hundred women in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon with a talk on current history. Miss Richards pointed out the enviable position occupied by the United States among the six great powers of the world and gave a lucid and explicit explanation of the English budget, which has the Houses of Lords and Commons so wrought up and has caused such a stir in the nation.

Miss Richards made quite clear the relations existing between the two houses of parliament and kept her audience's undivided attention throughout her address, which lasted for upwards of an hour. For the past eight seasons Miss Richards has talked to women in the parlors of Delmonico's, in New York, and now, owing to her splendid knowledge and her ability to speak with understanding on her chosen subject there are no more season tickets to be had.

At the end of her speech yesterday afternon Miss Richards touched upon the Nicaraguan revolution which just now is claiming the attention of the world, but she did not go very deeply into the subject reserving it for a special lecture to be given in the Hartridge School auditorium early in February. Due notice will be given of this lecture and all women who are interested will be cordially welcomed.

TRINITY CONSISTORY EULOGIZES PASTOR

At the regular monthly meeting of the Consistory of Trinity Reformed church last night considerable routine business was transacted, including the passage of resolutions eulogistic of the pastor's work and the annual election. The pastor, Rev. John Y. Broek, appointed his committees for the ensuing year. They are all re-appointments. The present efficient clerk of the church, Edgar F. Sheppard, and Treasurer H. E. Gayle and Assistant Treasurer P. A. Vroom, were re-elected and given a hearty vote of thanks for their gratuitous services for the past year. Deacon M. F. Gano was elected treasurer of the Benevolent Fuads of the church including the fund for the support of Dr. Paul W. Harrison, the chuch missionary.

At the November meeting of the consistory a committee was appointed to draft suitable resolutions in recognition of the first anniversary of Rev. Mr. Broek's pastorate and at last night's meeting the following was presented for the approval of the members of the consistory:

Whereas, our pastor, Rev. John Y. Broek, has just completed his first year's work as pastor of this church, and

Whereas, this year has been marked by many evidences of renewed activities in our church life; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this Consistory recognizes with extreme gratitude the Divine guidance which led to the issuing of a call to Rev. John Y. Broek to become the pastor of this church, and his acceptance of the call, and be it also

Resolved, That this Consistory desires to record its appreciation of the zeal, untiring energy and unflagging interest of our Pastor in this church, which has resulted in renewed activities all through our church work, and especially in the accession of over 60 new members, the establishment of a new branch of our denomination at Netherwood through his efforts, and the adoption by this Congregation of its own missionary to the foreign field, Mr. Paul W. Harrison, who is so soon to start for Arabia, and be it further

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread in full upon the minutes of this Consistory.

A. L. FORCE.
H. J. MARTIN.
E. E. SMITH.
Committee.

Mr. Broek responded feelingly to these words of cheerful approval and thanked the members for their confidence and love. He said that he had found the work with Trinity's flock a work of joy and an inspiration which was truly what would support spiritually any pastor. He believed that the various departments of the church had been wonderfully successful, but only because of the hearty co-operation of his fellow members. In concluding Mr. Broek said that he hoped for a still greater blessing and believed that it would come.

LECTURE ON PSYCHOLOGY

Dr. William Callan Delivers the Second in His Series of Talks.

AT MT. ST. MARY COLLEGE.

Points Out the Benefits of Having a Knowledge of the Mind of Man —Many Women Hear Him.

Before a large audience of women from Plainfield, Westfield, Elizabeth and Rahway, Dr. William Callan, of New York, delivered an interesting lecture at the College of Mt. St. Mary, yesterday afternoon. His topic was "Psychology,' and it was the second in a series of talks to be given this winter. The date of the next lecture on "Hamlet," will be announced later.

Dr. Callan began by stating that psychology is a branch of philosophy that has for its object the study of the human mind. It is a most important study for language cannot be understood, literature appreciated, art profoundly understood or even the import of the natural sciences grasped, unless one has a knowledge of the mind of man.

Continuing Dr. Callan said: "All knowledge comes through the senses to a mind endowed with certain natural tendencies or powers. The mind is first acted upon by stimuli resulting in sensations. These sensations, through fusion give percepts; these develop memory and imagination. A fusion of percepts gives the concept; a nexus of concepts gives a judgment; a juxtaposition of judgment gives reasoning. So the knowing faculty, mind being understood as a unit, and faculty being understood, mind's activity has presentative faculties, namely, sensation and perception; presentative faculties, conception (composed of comparison and abstraction) judgment and reasoning.

"The willing faculty gives us volitions and voluntary acts. The feeling faculty gives us emotions, affections and desires. Knowing, willing, feeling are different expressions of the one spiritual substance called soul or mind. It is the mind that sees through the visual calls of the brain, as the brain conditions all mental acts. It is the mind that hears through the gustatory cells."

FIREMEN EXTINGUISH TWO CHIMNEY BLAZES.

Two schimney fires engaged the attention of Chief Doane and his men between 7 o'clock last night and this morning. The first was a most entertaining fire for the hose wielders, because the location of the blaze and its cause were difficult to ascertain. Mrs. Huse-Fraser telephoned at 7 o'clock last night that there was something wrong with the chimney in Cedarcroft school.

Upon his arrival Chief Doane was put to it to tell just where the trouble was. To avoid any chance for a mistake he telephoned for the wagon, which brought enough extinguishers to put out two ordinary chimney fires, but this one required no less than seven of the chemical bottles and some pails of water to beat out.

The other blaze was in a chimney at 217 West Fourth street and was a simple one to handle. It was extinguished with little trouble. The damage at Cedarcroft school may amount to $100.

Misuse of Commutation Tickets.

Last summer, the Central Railroad found that several persons in Plainfield were hiring and loaning commutation and fifty trip tickets and obtained an injunction from the Court of Chancery restraining such persons from continuing the practice. Judgment for the costs of suit was recovered and paid by the parties who were proceeded against. The injunction obtained applies not only to the persons named in that suit, but to all other persons in the State of New Jersey indulging in similar practice.

The Central Railroad has given notice that all persons disobeying this injunction will be proceeded against according to law. ***

Hedges, of New York, as its principal speaker for the annual banquet to be held Thursday night, January 20. John N. Beach, a director of one of the big life insurance companies, will be another speaker. For toastmaster, the association has been able to secure former Mayor William L. Saunders, who enjoys a wide reputation as a capital presiding officers for such functions.

The tickets, $4, will be placed on sale tomorrow at the local newspaper offices and may be obtained from the committee, composed of Theodore Shirley, Herman Schwed, Morris C. Van Arsdale, F. A. Dottenhoefer, George O. Stevens, Al. Lohrman and H. Barnard.

PLAINFIELD MINISTERS COMMEND ITALIAN MISSION

The Italian Mission work, which is now supported by the various young people's societies of the local churches, was discussed at the meeting of the Plainfield Ministers' Association at the First Baptist church, yesterday afternoon. It was considered at a previous meeting and a report was made yesterday by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, who was appointed to investigate the matter. It was the sentiment that the work should be commended to the generosity of the public for continued support, until other arrangements are made.

Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, district superintendent of the Newark conference, has the matter of the mission work under advisement for the Methodist church, it being possible that that denomination may assume the support of it. However, nothing definite has been decided.

After the short business meeting, the ministers listened to an interesting talk by Rev. C. L. Goodrich, on "The Cathedrals of England," which was supplemented with remarks by Rev. A. C. Nickerson, of All Souls' church, and Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, who also spent sometime abroad last summer. Mr. Goodrich also exhibited a number of views which he secured while in England. The meeting closed with a social period during which tea was served by women of the church.

'JAPANESE GIRL' SCORES

The Cup Bearers' Circle Triumphs in a Charming Operetta.

FORTY-TWO COMPRISE CAST.

To Careful and Competent Coaching of S. Frederick Smith Is Due Its Success.

Before an audience that completely filled the Hartridge School auditorium, the young women members of the Cup Bearers' Circle of the King's Daughters gave the operetta, "A Japanese Girl," last night and scored a triumph rarely equalled in amateur circles. Forty two young women took part. A feature of the operetta was the dancing. Mlle Legere, impersonated by Miss Helen Stevens, made the hit of the evening in her magnificent portrayal of a French Dancer. Her pirouetting and graceful maneuvres were considered to have been equal to any profession dancer seen here in many a day.

A duet dance executed by the Misses Marian Hall and Helen Moodey was a strikingly beautiful piece of work, while Miss Frances VanDeventer wrought the Geisha dance to perfection. Miss Elsie Goddard, who had the leading role covered herself with glory and honor both by her singing and the histronic ability she displayed.

The operetta was prettily staged and was in two acts, with but one scene—a quaint Japanese garden. One of the choruses is of a patriotic character and brings to the surface a feeling of cordiality which is supposed to exist between the United States and Japan. At the conclusion of this chorus is sung two stanzas of "The Star Spangled Banner," which brought the audience to its feet and ended in loud cheers for the singers and an encore.

A "Patter" song rendered by Chaya, (Miss Verna McCutcheon), was the quaintest and most fascinating solo of the evening. Miss McCutcheon displayed a pretty bit of acting as well as a sweet voice and earned round after round of applause. Taken as a whole the operetta was splendidly rendered and deserved the hearty applause which it received. S. Frederick Smith, organist of Grace P. E. church, was the director assisted by Miss Alice Titus, stage manager; Miss Margaret Goddard, assistant stage manager and Miss Margaret Florence, who directed the dances.

One of the features which drew prolonged applause from the audience was the impersonation of the "governess," given by Miss Louise Saunders. She was inimitably funny as well as the personification of astute correctness as a guardian of her two pupils, the "Twins."

At the matinee in the afternoon as well as in the evening performance, Miss Alice Titus assumed the part of Peep-Bo, which was originally assigned to Miss Helen Moody and acquitted hers lf admirably. 'Other substitutes at the matinee were Miss Louise Andrews, as Chaya and Miss Verna McCutcheon, who took part of Verna McCutcheon who took the part of O. Hanu San, the Japanese girl. These changes were made necessary by the indisposition of those originally cast for the parts.

CHARITY ORGANIZATION STATES ITS POSITION.

The Charity Organization Society wishes to announce to its Christmas contributors that as the function of the society is primarily to relieve distress, Christmas celebrations in any large way will be discontinued; but any one wishing for the name and address of a poor family as a beneficiary may obtain it from the agent of the society, Miss Holly, 544 West Front street, telephone number 103.

Anyone wishing to make donations of second-hand toys or candy, may be confident of their being forwarded to appreciative recipients and it is requested that such donations be left at the rooms, 544 West Front street, as early as possible.

THOUGHT HE WAS FAMOUS PREACHER, BUT WAS DRUNK.

Henry Lewis, of West Third street, got so drunk yesterday afternoon on West Front street that he thought he was another Booker T. Washington, and after the manner of Mr. Washington, he exhorted a quickly gathered crowd to repent and turn from their wicked ways, alternating his exhortation with prayer and wild gesticulations.

Patrolman Tobias Nolan endeavored to have the would-be preacher to go home, but he would not be persuaded. He was given the choice of paying a fine of $5 or going to the county jail for twenty days by City Judge William Runyon this morning. He went to jail.

IRA F. RANDOLPH HAS GONE TO HIS REWARD

After undergoing two operations in Muhlenberg Hospital and suffering intensely for the past few days, Ira F. Randolph died at 7 o'clock last night at the home of Mrs. James C. Manning, 1130 Dunellen avenue, aged seventy-five years. He is survived by a niece, Mrs. Mary Moore, of New York city, who is the only blood relative. The funeral will be private.

Mr. Randolph was a brother of George W. F. Randolph, who died some years ago. For a long time he was connected with the Illinois Central Railroad as chief of the telegraph department. During his service with this railroad in the West Mr. Randolph acquired an interest in a large tract of land in Oklahoma, which was recently sold for a goodly sum. He also had a half interest in the property on which the Plainfield Trust Company's building now stands. The other half was owned by his brother's widow. Though not having any direct church connections Mr. Randolph was much interested in the Society of Friends, although with this society he was not a regular member. He was known as a historian of remarkable ability, having had personal acquaintance with those who at one time or another had been familiars of George Washington, and whose history he loved to recount. In local matters of family history he was looked upon as being one of the best informed men.

MRS. JOSEPHINE MANTZ, DEAD IN HER 86TH YEAR

Mrs. Josephine Mantz, widow of Martin Mantz, for the past four years a resident of this city, died this morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Isaac Lederer, on West Front street, of pneumonia. She had been ill about a week. Mrs. Mantz was born in Switzerland eighty-five years ago, and came to this county when a young girl. She with her husband located at Martinsville, where they lived for many years. Mr. Mantz has been dead several years.

Mrs. Mantz removed to the home of her daughter four years ago. She was a woman of rare Christian qualities and while living at Martinsville was a faithful attendant at the M. E. church. Her sweet Christian character and helpful influence were felt by all with whom she came in contact.

Mrs. Mantz is survived by six sons, Martin, Andrew, Simon, John, Theodore and George Mantz; also two daughters, Mrs. Isaac Lederer and Mrs. Peter Neuman, all of whom were present at the bedside when their mother passed away. Funeral services will be held from the home of Mrs. Lederer, Monday at 12 o'clock and at the Coontown Reformed church at 2 o'clock.

WILLIAM R. TOWNSEND IS THEIR COMMANDER.

PLAYGROUNDS AGITATED

Howard Bradstreet and Chas. J. Fisk Advocate Idea for Plainfield.

REQUEST COMMISSION TO ACT.

Parent-Teacher Association of Franklin and Stillman Schools Have Largely Attended Meeting.

At a meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Franklin and Stillman Public Schools, held at the Franklin School, last night, a motion was adopted unanimously that the playgrounds' Commission be requested to equip the two school grounds for playground purposes in accordance with plans as outlined. There was a large attendance of parents and teachers of this association and all were much enthused over the proposition as presented.

Mrs. Stephen H. Voorhees, who is president of the association, called the meeting to order and after explaining its objects, presented Mayor Charles J. Fisk, who presided and incidently introduced the speaker of the evening, Howard Bradstreet, secretary of the Playground's Commission of New York city.

"In the words of the President, I am for playgrounds," began Mayor Fisk. "For several years I have been studying everything that would be of interest and a benefit to Plainfield, and I am only sorry that I did not think of the playground proposition sooner. A playground is nothing more nor less than a place where children can gather and play under well directed supervision, instead of resorting to the streets, where they are quite apt to make a raid on shrubbery and flowers to be found in various yards.

"There are over 4,000 children within the school age in Plainfield. We have proper building equipment and competent teachers for all branches of study, including manual training, and now we want playgrounds, which are similar to the kindergartens in our schools. I believe this to be a move in the right direction.

"In this connection I want to say I have heard it on all sides that this is only another of Charley Fisk's extravagant ideas, and I am glad some people think so. I do not, however, and I think those same people will change their ideas and conclude that it is an economical plan After the last meeting of the association, we went to Orange and investigated the playgrounds there. We then sent a communication to the Common Council, and that body passed a resolution favoring the project and approved of the appointmen, of a playground commission. It is now up to the Common Council to make an appropriation for the work.

"In appointing a commission I selected H. W. Marshall because it was he was was the originator of the idea; Joseph W. Gavett, because of his long connection with the Y. M. C. A., and the faet that he was once a well-known athlete, and George P. Mellick, because of his strong interest, as well as that of Mrs. Mellick in the proposition.

"Through the Board of Education we secured permission to use the grounds about the Bryant School as a playground. There is a vacant lot at Plainfield avenue and West Third street, owned by the city, which would make an ideal playground for that section of the town and the Common Council will be asked to donate that ground for the purpose. Another site near the Franklin School is being considered. It is well not to be too energetic or too conservative, but it should be the aim to place the playgrounds where the children are and not compell them to walk too far for their play.

"As for the older children, an athletic field is needed. It is an absolute necessity to have such a field where training can be conducted under proper instructors. There is something now at work and I hope to be able to announce soon a definite plan, providing for a field where baseball, football, tennis, as well as the privileges of a running track can be enjoyed. The Y. M. C. A. has such a field, but have no money with which to equip it. I now take pleasure in presenting Mr. Bradstreet."

Mr. Bradstreet said that in view of all that he had heard and seen during his brief stay in the city, he failed to understand why he was invited to come here and speak, except for the pleasure of the visit. He felt convinced that conditions here were ideal and that excellent progress was being made. As an excuse for making an address, Mr. Bradstreet took for his topic, "Social Near-Sightedness, or Social Blindness Regarding the Playground Movement." The speaker said that this is quite prevalent among people today.

"Assuming that the above is true here I will say a few things to you

Outfielder McIntyre and Catcher Beckendorf yesterday signed with the Detroit American League baseball club for another season.

Roy Thomas, of the Boston Nationals, has been secured to coach the University of Pennsylvania nine for three years. This is considered a master move by Pennsylvania. Thomas is a Pennsylvania graduate.

Charley Doolin, the Philadelphia National League catcher, wants an increase in salary for next season.

Victor Schlitzer, of the pitching staff of the Boston American League baseball team and formerly of the Philadelphia Athletics, started in to work yesterday in the office of the Seabord Steel Casting Company, the general superintendent of which is S. Everett Sproul, manager of the Seabord baseball club. Schlitzer will do clerical work at the Seabord until called to join his team in the spring.

Lew Hall, the star pitcher of last season's Cape May team, has signed with Manager Clymer, of the Wilkesbarre club, of the New York State League. Hall was one of the best hitters on the Cape May team.

WOMEN IN PANIC AS BOAT RAMS SLIP.

Passengers on the New Jersey Central ferryboat Elizabeth were panic stricken yesterday when it crashed into its slip at Communipaw and did considerable damage to the ferryhouse. A score of women fainted and had to be carried from the boat to the station, where they were revived.

There was a strong current when the boat left its slip at the foot of Liberty street, New York, and this, it is thought, caused something to go wrong with the steering gear. The big boat ploughed into the slip full force, knocking over large timbers and tearing timbers away from the bridge of the slip and sending them crashing into the ferryhouse.

At the time of the crash there were many horses on the boat, and it was with great difficulty they were kept from trampling passengers.

New Phase Added in Mutual B. and L. Case.

Camden, Dec. 10.—Before Vice-Chancellor Learning next Monday there will be an argument on a rule to show cause why there should not be a rehearing in the proposition of the Assets Realization Company to take over the holdings of the State Mutual Building and Loan Association. It was on the application of the receivers that the rule was granted.

It seems apparent that there will be a thrashing out of the entire muddle once more, especially with reference to taking over of the assets by the company. The latter has sent a letter to the shareholders to give some expression to their views concerning the new phase. Part of this communication brings to light the receivers want $45,000 for their work.

SCHWAB'S BIG PURCHASE.

Dealers Say He Has Bought Terra Cotta Plant.

Perth Amboy, Dec. 10.—Several Woodbridge real estate dealers stated yesterday afternoon that Charles M. Schwab, the steel magnate, has arranged to purchase the plant of the Staten Island Terra Cotta Lumber Company, better known as the Anderson & Lyle plant. From what could be learned yesterday, representatives of the magnate visited the plant several days ago and stated that the site had been considered suitable for a steel plant. There are at present two steel plants in Perth Amboy.

The land is owned by the Powers Realty and Construction Company, a concern formed by Philadelphia capitalists. The plot in question is bounded by Woodbridge Creek, the Pennsylvania and Central railroads.

on the subject," continued Mr. Bradstreet. "I am not interested in playgrounds simply as such. If that is all it means to you little will be accomplished. It is the interest in human nature that counts and so many things have entered into the proposition to increase the interest in the subject, namely, the warfare against tuberculosis, the juvenile court, probation institutions and the Y. M. C. A."

Mr. Bradstreet then devoted a considerable part of his talk to conditions in New York, which were not of distinct local interest only as showing what has been accomplished there under trying conditions. He believed the conditions in Plainfield to be ideal. The children under ten years of age must be considered and the sand and water, swings and seesaws are indispensable, but they will not do for the boy or girl of seventeen years. For them a gymnasium is needed. It is not sufficient to have a large lot, but there must be an equipment to attract the children.

Mr. Bradstreet took exception to the belief that such an improvement costs too much and where this idea prevails there is something wrong. "You have open spaces here," said the speaker, "but how long will they be there. The city is predestined to grow. You have a most attractive city here which I believe is more due to a kind Providence than man's foresight and is everything is in readiness for the introduction of the playground."

At the conclusion of his talk, an opportunity was given those in the audience to ask questions of both Mr. Bradstreet and the Mayor. This brought out the fact that it would require about $500 to equip a playground about the Franklin and Stillman schools. When the motion was offered by W. H. P. Veysey requesting action on the part of the Playground Commission, Mr. Marshall said that he would not oppose it provided everyone present would use their influence with the Common Council and have that body make the necessary appropriation. Before the meeting adjourned, a vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Bradstreet.

TOLD ALL ABOUT MILK

George Christian Talked Interestingly at a Business College Entertainment.

HIS LECTURE WAS ILLUSTRATED

"Dry Milk and Its By-Products" the Subject—How to Get Rid of the Germs.

"Dry Milk and Its By-Products," was the subject of an interesting illustrated lecture given at the Plainfield Business College, last night, by George Christian, of this city. The speaker illustrated his subject by showing milk enlarged through a miscropic method, 10,000 times, and he also showed samples of dry milk and casein, which he considered to be two of the greatest discoveries for manufacturing purposes.

In showing how necessary the old cow is, Mr. Christian stated that from casein is manufactured paper, burlap, silk, lace, curtain material, toilet articles, cigarettes, paste, paint, milk chocolate, confectionery and ice cream. He gave a plain talk on the sanitary and unsanitary handling of milk and dairies, and told of the percentage of bacteria in milk of various grades.

Mr. Christian also told how to purify milk and lessen the danger of tuberculosis and typhoid fever germs, through pasturization of the fluid. He explained how this can be done in the home at little expense and how to detect impure milk.

Speaking of sugar milk, the speaker told of its value and uses, and related interesting facts relative to the feeding of children, and invalids. Mr. Christian will repeat this talk at the Y. M. C. A. hall, the North Plainfield High School and several churches in the city. He is connected with one of the largest companies outside of the milk trust, and those who have heard his talk are much impressed with the value of them from a health point of view.

Over four hundred pupils, graduates and friends attended the lecture and entertainment. The college colors, red and white, banners and flags were arranged about the hall. A fine musical program and dramatic readings by pupils of the college were features of the evening.

Prof. A. S. Herr was in charge of the program and he made a few remarks in opening the entertainment, referring to the public graduation exercises for the senior class to be held in January at the Plainfield theatre. The first part of the program comprised piano selections by Joseph Denny; tenor solos by Elwood Stryker, accompanied by Miss Ethel Neuman. Miss Mabelle D. Stanton recited "For the Honor of His Family," and as an encore recited "That Old Sweetheart of Mine." Mr. Denny gave a violin solo, accompanied by Irving Martin on the piano.

Theodore A. Kurzhals, of 18 Lincoln place, is not able to attend business, being ill at home with heart trouble.

John C. Van Dyke, of East Fifth street, who was recently severely injured by a fall at his home, is now under treatment at the hospital, where he is improving slowly.

perfect in its preservation; and the air and mien of the village chief, as he stands before you, are so full of conscious content and satisfaction that he almost seems to greet on even terms the prosperity of the twentieth century. In no other country or climate could this wooden statue have been preserved. Some Egyptologists have though; it older even than the Diorite Statue of King Khephren."

The lecturer proceeded from the review of the Ancient Empire to that of the Middle Empire and of the New Empire including the 12th to the 18th Egyptian dynasties, the last of which flourished about 3,400 years ago, and included three kings who bore the name of Amenophis (from the god Ammon or Amen), and two who were named Rameses—the last of these being the persecuting Pharoah of the Old Testament.

He said, "One of my most impressive moments in Egypt was when I stood in the valley of Biban el Muluk, near Thebes and opposite Luxor on the Nile, at the tomb of Amenophis the 2nd. Passing down steep flights of steps and corridors, we had descended to a shaft, and, crossing a bridge, had entered a narrow chamber and gone forward down a further staircase to a room upborne by vast columns. In the rear of this we found a crypt, in which rests the sandstone sarcophagus of Amenophis, and in it lies, within a mummy shaped coffin, the body of the king, wrapped in his shroud, and still adorned with garlands. The appearance is not only strikingly natural and real, but it is calm and even beautiful in its perfect repose. The king reclines as one who has wrapped the drapery of his couch about him and has lain down to pleasant dreams.' In that deep crypt in these modern days an electric point has been lighted above this sweetly reposeful figure, and the thought borne in upon the visitor is that three thousand years ago, and more, the kings of the earth, as well as their subjects, could not only lie down and die in peace, but we of today in contemplating their state could enter into a kindred feeling of trust and peace.

Egyptologists have found more than a passing interest in what might be spoken of as the early genesis of Christian truth. The religious ideas which they entertained appear to have passed (possibly by way of the Phoenicians) to the Greeks, and to have taken root in Grecian Mythology, which in due course either paved the way for, or re-acted upon, the early doctrines of the Christian faith. The beetle, which was supposed to be immortal, or self perpetuating, was the emblem of eternal life to the soul; and images in stone of beetles or "Scarabs" were deposited with the mummy in the tomb of the prince.

This doctrine of the immortality of the human soul, or at least of the possibility of attaining immortality, is from the most ancient times of the Egyptians. The chief deity of the ancient Egyptians was Ra. He was the Great Light and Warmth of the Universe, and the Maker of all things. Various other gods, Horis, Atmu, &c., were forms of him, or were formed from him. He was self-begotten. He begot Osiris, who was his only son. Set was the prince of darkness and hated Osiris and slew him and mutilated his body, but Osiris rose from the dead, and upon his resurrection and everlasting life the Egyptians based their hopes of rising from the dead, and of a life beyond the grave."

Following the thirty Pagan Dynasties of the Egyptians, came the great Persian Invasion, and, soon afterwards, the conquest of the great Alexander overspread the land of the Nile. Since then, no native prince has occupied the throne of Egypt. The lecturer described the city of the conqueror, the magnificent Alexandria, once the second city of the world. He referred to the rule of the Ptolemies, who followed Alexander and dwelt briefly on the career of the last of the Ptolemies, Queen Cleopatra, who, when the Roman armies came to Egypt, had but a single alternative. She must fascinate or fight the Caesars. She fascinated the great Julius, and, after him, his friend Marc Antony. About that time Christianity was introduced. St. Mark preached in Egypt, and Coptic Christianity has continued there for nineteen centuries. The lecturer adverted to the Mahommedian conquests of the seventh century and gave some account of modern Turkish rule, afterward showing many fine magic lantern pictures.

Fiery Evangelist Coming.

There will be special services at the Salvation Army tomorrow and Sunday evenings conducted by Captain and Mrs. Hess, of Bayonne. The Captain is known as the fiery evangelist. He and his wife are two of the twelve members of the Army who were marched to the police station recently in Elizabeth for preaching on the streets of that city.

CONKLIN IS ACCUSED OF SERIOUS OFFENSE.

Fred Conklin, a boroughite, got in the toils yesterday for being drunk and disordely and will probably have other charges to answer tomorrow morning when he will be arraigned again before Borough Recorder Dolliver. He was arraigned this morning, but was remanded until tomorrow so that the charges against him may be thoroughly investigated.

Conklin is accused of having given whiskey to some boys in the borough besides having broken into a poolroom. He was arrested by Marshal Keller.

STATE SUES HOUSE OWNER.

Through C. E. Sharp, acting for Attorney-General Edmund D. Wilson, suit has been brought against Charles A. Bockoven, of Dover, to recover the sum of $100 as a penalty for the violation of the State tenement law.

The suit was instituted before Justice P. J. Howard, of Morristown, and is returnable next Wednesday.

Bockoven is the owner of a three-story tenement which accommodates eight families. The structure is frame, and, it is said, is without fire escapes.

At Proctor's.

La Solita is making good in her songs and dances. The act is a distinct novelty here. Barnetti's big pantomime musical comedy sketch and illusions is a puzzler to the audience. Shffer & Sheffer, in a black face comedy sketch, is the limit of pure fun. Have you seen their baby? Charlie Don in his imitations of Harry Lauder is exceptionally good.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Jennings, of Sickleville, celebrated their sixty-third wedding anniversary with a family reunion of children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren.

Seized with a choking spell after supper last night, Alonzo Boggs, sixty-four years old, of 622 Cherry street, Camden, died before medical aid could be summoned. Coroner Litchfield gave a certificate of death from hemorrhage.

Frank S. Devereaux, worthy president of Camden Aerie of Eagles, has been selected by the grand worthy president as deputy grand president for New Jersey, with jurisdiction from Mercer county down.

Stricken with convulsions on Kaighn avenue, Camden, Wednesday night, William Cowans, twenty-eight years old, who lost his left leg in an effort to board a train about sixteen months ago, was taken to Cooper Hospital. His condition is serious.

Accidentally struck on the head by a falling piece of water pipe while at work at Haddonfield Wednesday, Pasquale De Pauqual, thirty-four years old, sustained a fracture of the skull and was in a serious condition at Cooper Hospital, Camden, last night.

Jolted from the top of a freight car at East Burlington Wednesday, Charles W. Middleton, a brakeman, twenty-six years old, of 620 Linwood street, Camden, was believed to have been seriously injured, but at Cooper Hospital it was found that he had sustained no fractured bones and was able to leave for his home.

Atlantic City police are looking up the antecedents of Miss Edith Mason, who was arrested Wednesday while trying to cash a check for $75, which officers of the Chelsea National Bank declare to be forged. There was a pathetic scene in Cooper Hospital, Camden, Wednesday, when Mrs. Daniel S. Garwood was told of the death of her husband, who passed away Sunday from injuries sustained in an automobile accident Saturday, when Mrs. Garwood and two others were injured. Because of her condition Mrs. Garwood did not appear at first to realize the import of her great bereavement, but as moments passed the injured woman showed signs of collapse. Physicians have hope for her recovery.

GIVEN FAME AS THE CHAMPION LIAR.

Trenton, Dec. 10.—George McCullic, of Hamilton Township, was declared Wednesday by Prosecutor Crossley to be the greatest liar in Mercer county. The prosecutor then announced that the charges against William Lauderback and William H. Breese would be dismissed. McCullic accused the two defendants of stealing his wagon and harness, and the grand jury found indictments. Later the prosecutor learned that McCullic had sold the property he said had been stolen, and, after close questioning, he admitted that he had lied about the men whose arrest he caused.

McCullic resides in "Miserytown," a colony of small houses beyond the fair grounds. Residents of the section are often in court because of family rows that are usually more noisy than serious. Lauderback recently pleaded not guilty to a charge of poisoning chickens, and Breese pleaded guilty of having kicked in a door.

Jury Believed Love Letters Genuine.

Love Letters alleged to have been written by Julius Somogyi Feraczy to Susie Toth were accepted as genuine by a jury in the Quarter Sessions Court at New Brunswick Wednesday. The jury convicted Feraczy of obtaining money under false pretenses from Miss Toth. She declared he had borrowed $55 from her after promising to marry her. He had given a worthless check as security.

Successful Furnace Fires

PATENTED

The BOYNTON

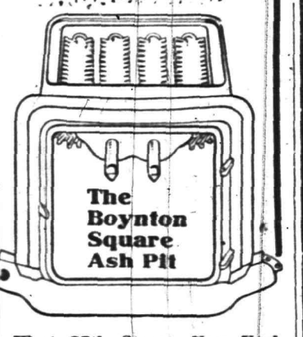
Square Fire Pot

makes tending the furnace easy, but best of all it makes a joyous fire. Round fire pots burn strongly through the center with a rim of half dead clinkers at the edge and when you shake the fire the middle drops out. You've noticed it. Fires built in BOYNTON Square Pots are all live coals. A shake down is an even shake. The whole fire settles. There is no waste. The fuel being equal, a square pot will develop almost twice the heat, or the same heat for about half. The square pot is our patent and can be had only in the BOYNTON furnaces. We have a dealer in your town. He will be glad to show you.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for Steam or Hot Water. Also Ranges.

THE BOYNTON FURNACE COMPANY,



106 West 37th Street, New York.

You Have Possibilities for a Good Figure Under Your Fat

From 30 years onward people grow fatter. So many do so it seems the natural thing. Instead of that, getting fat is a bad sign. From that moment one's tissues are going to get gradually weaker.

It is easy to correct the trouble, however. One teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime of the following pleasant mixture: ½ oz. Marmola, ½ oz. Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 3½ oz. Peppermint Water will put back into your stomach that youthful energy which prevented you getting fat before 30. The old figure is still there under your fat, remember. Dig it out with this harmless receipt. It will take off 12 to 14 ounces a day without any help from exercise or diet.

ADMITS STEALING RIG.

Police Justice Van S. Roosay, of Roselle, Wednesday afternoon committed Fritz Carteis, a German, to the county jail on a charge of stealing a horse and runabout from his employer, Edwin T. Earl, proprietor of a roadhouse in Rahway avenue. He admitted the offense and will be held pending the action of the January grand jury.

Carteis was arrested in Hoboken after he had disposed of the rig there for $20 and had made arrangements to work his way to Germany on a steamer.

The prisoner was employed by Earl as a choreman. He left the Rahway avenue place at 2 o'clock Sunday morning, taking with him the rig and his clothing. He drove away from Roselle in the direction of Rahway and later doubled on his tracks. He sold the rig to a Hoboken saloon-keeper, who in turn sold it to another man at a big profit.

STRANGER AND GOODS GONE.

Whitehouse., Dec. 10.—The authorities here are looking for a man who came to this place a few days ago and entered the employ of Moses King, a farmer, who lives near the Ridge Schoolhouse. The stranger, whose name is not known, said he wanted work, and King employed him on his farm, paying him in full for his services on Monday, and leaving him in charge of the place while he and his family went on a visit.

When they returned home the man was missing. A search through the house showed that an overcoat, other clothing and $10 were also gone.

Mr. King reported the theft to Constable John H. Reed, of Whitehouse Station, yesterday, giving him a description of the miscreant, who told him that his home was in Utica, N. Y.

TWO HELD FOR FIRE.

Police Think Candy Men Guilty of Arson.

Passaic, Dec. 10.—David and Nathan Schwartz, who conduct a candy factory at 277 Passaic street, were arrested after a fire in their place yesterday and held for the grand jury without bail, on a charge of arson. An investigation by Chief Reginald H. Bowker led him to believe that the building had been fired.

All the woodwork in the cellar, the coal bin and a large quantity of excelsior were found saturated with oil.

Princeton "Rubber" Convicted.

Trenton, Dec. 10.—After being out eight hours a Mercer court jury Wednesday evening declared John Dennen guilty of assault and battery. At 5 o'clock a disagreement was reported, but Judge Gilchtel told the jury to go back and try once more to reach a verdict. Dennen is a rubber for the Princeton football team. He was charged with giving Bertzoid Katzenburg, another rubber, a beating on the training grounds, after the latter had walloped him during a bout in the clubhouse. Katzenburg claimed that Dennen came upon him unawares in the field, and after getting him down punched and kicked him in a manner that was far from ethical. Valentine Flood, the university's principal trainer, and John Leggett, one of the trainers of the football team and also of the New York National League baseball team, were witnesses.

Divorce in Nine Minutes.

Paterson, Dec. 10.—Ella Roughgarden, of East Main street, in her suit for divorce against her husband, Clifford Birley, before Vice-Chancellor Eugene Stevenson, sitting in the county courthouse here Wednesday, proved her case and had the decree recommended in less than nine minutes. The suit was brought on statutory grounds. The petitioner was married October 24, 1900, by Rev. Dr. Meeker, of the Market Street M. E. church. Mrs. Birley left her husband two years ago. He is employed by the United States Express Company in this city, and although he put in no defense at the suit, he was in the corridor just outside the courtroom.

Wife Asleep in Blazing Bed.

Trenton, Dec. 10.—Though the bed clothing was ablaze when J. S. Herbert, of Spring and White streets, returned to the bedroom Wednesday morning, after lighting the gas and leaving the room for a moment, Mrs. Herbert was still asleep. When her husband tore away the bedding and dragged her out of bed her feet were burned. Herbert is a milkman. He rose early, and after lighting the gas went to the bathroom. On his return not only the bedding but a lace curtain at the window was blazing. It is supposed that he attempted to throw the match out of the window and ignited the curtain, the flames spreading to the bed.

Church Elects Mayor.

Mayor A. L. Alpers was re-elected treasurer of the Westfield Congregational church at its annual church meeting Wednesday night. Lawyer Frederick S. Taggart was elected clerk; W. E. Reeve and Oliver Richardson, deacons, and Mrs. T. M. K. Mills and Mrs. J. Learned, deaconesses. R. H. Stern, C. B. Kellogg and W. J. Morgan were elected a music committee. During the past year fifty new members have been received, making the total membership 325.

James Smith, who has sold his property on Elmwood place, has removed to Orange, where he will reside with his daughter.

EX-ASSEMBLYMAN DIES.

Lawrence Trimmer Stricken While Talking to Friends.

Califon, Dec. 10.—While accompanying Lemuel Neighbour, of Middle Valley, to this place to keep an appointment with former Postmaster John Neighbour, former Assemblyman Lawrence H. Trimmer was stricken with heart failure. The two men had driven a mile from the Trimmer home when he was taken ill. A telephone message was sent from Lower Valley for medical aid. He died shortly after being taken home.

Mr. Trimmer was born sixty years ago. For several years he was employed in milling and manufacturing peach baskets. He was a shareholder of the Middle Valley Trap Rock Company, a director in the First National Bank of High Bridge, trustee of the Lower Valley Presbyterian church, a member of Hobut Lodge, F. and A. M.; Dover Lodge of Elks and the Knights of Pythias. A widow, three sons and two daughters survive him. Andrew Trimmer and Mrs. Jacob Hann, of Hackettstown, are brother and sister.

He served in the Legislature from 1888 to 1890.

matinee and night, is said to be one of the best musical comedies on the road, and one of the best extravaganzas which has come from the pen of R. A. Barnett, who has written many popular musical successes, which have reaped for him a splendid fortune. It ran for three months at Wallack's theatre, New York city, and a long summer season at Manhattan Beach; also successful engagements in Washington; Baltimore, Philadelphia, Boston, Pittsburg and the other large eastern cities, where it created a sensation. The company includes John Mylie, Helen Stuart, Burt Eaton, Mary Orth, Stella Rinehart, Ellsworth Ellis, Harry Lorder, Clem Johnson and Rodney & Bartelle and a chorus of pretty singing and dancing girls.

It seldom happens in these swift days that a play rises to the dignity of being what may be considered a kind of theatrical institution. There are a few such, however, and in the list of the most substantially founded must be placed Denman Thompson's famous drama of New England country life, "The Old Homestead," which is now in its twenty-fourth year of phenomenal success. The long life of this popular drama, and its constant hold on so large a section of the amusement-loving public are the best possible proofs that in spite of vagaries of taste, the wholesome and the true in the drama are valued at their proper worth. For more than twenty years this grand old play has, season in and season out, been teaching its lesson of brightness, hope, innocent merriment, forgiveness and love the country over. Nobody ever saw it, or possibly can see it, without feeling the better for its natural touches of rural existence, its overflowing humor and its tender pathos. Faith, generosity, wit and piety are active in its heart-appealing story, not taught with the sternness of a moral lesson, but entering the soul with the sunshine of laughter and happiness. The company giving the play this season has been carefully selected by Denman Thompson himself, and embraces many of the old favorites. The famous double quartette of farm hands is presenting a new repertoire of songs. It will be presented at the Plainfield theatre Monday night.

THE FORUM.

HOME DISCIPLINE.

Editor, The Daily Press:

In your issue of last evening's paper there was an article in reference to Bert Vail going before Judge Runyon in which (it must have been on Miss Ball's information furnished) that it was lack of home discipline that caused the boy to be unruly. Most emphatically I, as his sister, deny the allegation. My husband is disciplinarian in our house, and if through his kindness to the boy in all ways and Miss Ball's discipline he does not do right, we can not answer for him. Please insert this in justice to the one who at all times tries to make him do what is right.

MRS. EDWARD JONES.

COURTS AND RAILROADS.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Verily, we in New Jersey do not lack government. The railroads not satisfied with obtaining from the Legislature a statute prohibiting the use by any other person than the one to whom a commutation or trip ticket is issued, and affixing the punishment of fine or imprisonment or both for its violation, have applied to and obtained from the Court of Chancery of the State an injunction restraining and enjoining all persons in the State of New Jersey from selling, hiring or otherwise transferring such tickets; and as any one disobeying an injunction issued out of a court can be punished by such court for a contempt, this amounts to a double punishment for the same offense—one fixed by the State, another fixed by the Court of Chancery. This would look as if the Court of Chancery had assumed quasi legislative powers without constitutional sanction. This is injunction run mad, and far exceeds any exercise of the power by the Federal and State courts so bitterly resented by the labor unions. The railroads only forfeit the sympathy of those who discountenance the abuse of such tickets by such absurd tactics. It cannot be possible that such an injunction is worth the paper it is written on, as there can be no irreparable loss threatened to the railroads, which is the sole cause of issuance of an injunction. The remedy by civil action for damages, and the protection afforded by the penal statute are all sufficient Burke said he did not know how to frame an indictment of a whole people. The Court of Chancery has found out (?) how to frame an injunction addressed to a whole state, which, moreover, shall be operative without personal service. Such ill-considered subservience to corporations brings legal process into disrepute.

COST BERNSTEIN $8 TO EVADE LICENSE.

Benjamin Bernstein, a New York fur dealer, thought to evade paying a license for peddling furs yesterday afternoon by applying to Salvation Army headquarters for old shoes which he said he wanted to buy. But Patrolman Dunlap was too smart to be fooled by any such subterfuge trailed the man to West Fourth street, where he was satisfied that the old shoe dealer was not what he appeared to want to be. This morning Judge Runyon in the city court imposed a fine of $8 with the alternative of spending the next twenty days in jail. He paid. Bernstein has a brother in business on Watchung avenue.

YOUNG WOMEN JOIN A RELIGIOUS SOCIETY.

Several young women were admitted into the Society of the Immaculate Conception at impressive ceremonies held at the College of Mt. St. Mary, Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The ceremony was in charge of Rev. John A. Baldwin, the resident chaplain, and was followed with a delightful musical program arranged for the occasion.

During the day, the Rt Rev. J. A. McFaul, Bishop of the Trenton diocese, and the chancellor, Rev. John A. Power, also of Trenton, were guests at the college and had dinner there. They were unable to remain in the evening for the special services.

COURT ORDERS CULPRITS TO BE WELL SPANKED.

A good spanking is awaiting Frank McCarthy, of 649 East Sixth street, and Leland Todd, of 508 Watchung avenue, two schoolboys who stole some popcorn balls from a street vendor yesterday afternoon. McCarthy is twelve years old while Todd confesses to ten.

Judge Runyon made arrangements this morning to have the boys well spanked and sent back to school, with the warning that they would better quit their petty stealing or a worse fate would be theirs. Both confessed to having stolen candy on several occasions before.

Merry Xmas for Poor.

Beginning tomorrow morning and continuing to Christmas eve the Salvation Army will have its collecting kettles on the street to receive donations for their annual Christmas dinners for the poor. The applications are coming in rapidly and it is hoped that sufficient funds will be obtained so that no worthy applicant will be denied. In addition to the dinners the local corps is to have a Christmas tree for poor children with a suitable entertainment the week following Christmas.

The Chorus Lady

By JAMES FORBES

Novelized From Forbes' Play of the Same Name by JOHN W. HARDING

Copyright, 1908, by G. W. Dillingham Company.

There was a knock at the door, and she went to open it. Crawford, smiling, entered.

"Oh, Mr. Crawford!" said the girl, confused. "You've come to meet Patsy. I'll call her."

"Hold on, don't be in a hurry about it," he said genially. "I want to give you that money first."

"No, thank you, Mr. Crawford," she said, drawing back. "You are very kind, but I've been thinking over it, and it doesn't seem right."

"Has your sister helped you?" he inquired.

"No, I didn't ask her—I didn't dare," she replied.

"Well, then, you still owe the money to—to—the—er—Shrimp?"

She nodded affirmatively.

"Ah!" he ejaculated suddenly, his brow unwrinkling and his face lighting up with his cheery smile. "How about winning it back?"

"Winning it?" she exclaimed wonderingly.

"Yes. Supose you lay another wager, or, rather, suppose you let me lay another wager for you?"

"But I mightn't win, and I'd be worse off than ever."

"Impossible! You couldn't lose. I'll give you a sure thing. I'll put up $5, and I think I can get four to one—yes, I'm sure I can."

"Why, I'd have $20!" cried the girl delightedly. "Are you sure I couldn't lose?"

"Of course—positive. It's understood—it's a go. I will run down here again at the end of the week, and I'll bring a new, crisp twenty dollar bill with me."

"Oh, no; I never could change it!" she objected. "Nobody must know I've got so much money. Couldn't you give it to me in smaller bills?"

"Certainly. You shall have it any way you like," he promised.

"I forgot," she said. "I mightn't be here. Patsy may take me to New York tomorrow."

"Tomorrow!"

He almost started with surprise. He had not imagined that it could possibly be so soon.

"Well, it won't matter," he said, "if she does. Come to my office. Here's my address. Perhaps it would be as well if you didn't let anybody see the card. If you shouldn't come to New York, why, I'll be here."

"It's too bad for you to take all that trouble," she declared gratefully.

"I'd take more trouble than that to see you," he murmured gently, bending toward her.

She looked straight at him, her cheeks suffused with blushes.

"You're awful sweet about it," she said.

A curious burning look came into his eyes as her gaze met his. She appeared very pretty and tempting. Her lips, full and ripe, were parted so that they afforded just a glimpse of her white, even teeth.

"So are you—awfully sweet."

The words came in tones so soft that they were almost a whisper. He bent still lower to kiss her, and, scarcely conscious of what she was doing, she raised her lips to meet his.

Patsy, entering from the passage at this moment, witnessed the kiss and for a second stood petrified, incapable of movement. Then she walked straight in.

Nora quick as a flash backed away from Crawford and with a presence of mind that Patsy never would have credited her with and which was another revelation, turned to her, saying:

"Oh, Patsy, this is Mr. Crawford."

"That so?" she returned. "Nora, go pack your trunk."

Nora, who had been badly frightened by her sister's sudden advent, went out without a word. The order admitted of no retort.

Patsy seated herself on the edge of a chair and, motioning Crawford to another, said icily:

"Won't you sit down?"

CHAPTER V.

THE heavy rain of the night before and the blustering squalls of the early morning had been succeeded by brisk, bright Indian summer weather. In the stable yard the Duke was unsaddling Lady Belle, having brought that famous mare in from her afternoon exercise.

Soon he was interrupted by the arrival of Crawford and Mallory and a command from the latter to leave Lady Belle and hitch up the buggy. Mallory wanted to drive his partner to the station himself, but Crawford would not hear of it. There was no occasion for him to go to so much trouble, he said. Mallory did not need much persuasion to induce him to remain at home. He had little time enough to spend with Patsy. He was very grateful to Crawford, whose thoughtfulness had raised him still higher in his estimation, so when the Duke brought the buggy around he ordered the boy to go along with it. The two partners shook hands with great heartiness, and Mallory watched the departing New Yorker until a turn in the road masked him from sight.

He was more than pleased with the partner he had had the good fortune to interest in the stable. To be sure, the advantage to himself from the financial point of view was not great. For the time being he would, as he had told his fiancee, get little more than his keep as a result of the arrangement, but without the funds that had thus come to him at a time of dire need he would not have been able to continue the business at all. Now he hoped in the more or less near future to be able to make enough to give up the training stable and try his luck with a stock farm, which it seemed to him offered a better chance of success.

Crawford himself was well pleased with his own part of the bargain, which was a good deal more advantageous to him than it was to Mallory. He was by no means a millionaire, but he was well off, and it had been his great desire to ape the wealthier men of his set by obtaining a proprietary interest in a racing stable. It was an unexpected bit of luck that had enabled him to realize his ambition, and he was all the more gratified in that he had at the same time done a good stroke of business, for he was no fool, and the commercial instinct was sufficiently developed within him to lead him to order most of his affairs with an eye to the main chance.

"Are you the Shrimp?" he demanded of the Duke, who was driving, as they emerged on to the highway.

"No, sir, beggin' yer parding, sir; me name's Perkins, William Perkins, but there's some as cawls me the Djuke," replied that personage.

"Oh, you're the Duke," was Crawford's comment, and thereafter he remained silent, wrapped in thought throughout the journey. Uppermost in his mind was his interview with Patsy. He did not like her, and with good reason. With her keen intuition and familiarity with individuals of his stamp she had read him through instantly and sized him up as a bounder. Her conversation with him had been brief and to the point.

"See here," she had said curtly, pointing her finger at him, "My little sister's not for you to monkey with. She's too good an' don't know enough for the likes o' you. Understand? You keep your taitts off, or you'll find your self up against me!"

He would have passed the matter off with a facetious, bantering remark, but she had forestalled his reply and intimated that there was nothing more to be said by rising and leaving the room. He wondered whether she would tell Mallory about it. He did not care whether she did or not. If the subject ever came up again, he would dismiss it as absurd, as a joke and further as a matter not to be reverted to.

Arrived at the station, he threw a five dollar bill to the Duke and dismissed him.

The sudden possession of all this wealth set him to thinking what he could do with it, and instantly his mind was made up. He would settle Nora's bet. This generous impulse was a very natural one with the Duke. Nora was the object of his timid adoration, and if she turned up her pretty nose at it for it has been truly said that love and a cough never can be hid—this did not prevent him from worshiping with all the sweet, foolish ardor of his years everything that breathed of her and recalled her.

The Duke knew, or, at least felt certain, that the Shrimp would carry out his threat and demand his money of Nora's parents, and he dreaded for her the scene that would follow. When he reached the stables he found the Shrimp working in the yard with O'Brien, and his heart went into his mouth at the thought that perhaps he was too late; that his fellow helper might already have betrayed the girl to her father. When the opportunity presented itself, he addressed the Shrimp.

"'Ave yer told 'im?" he demanded anxiously.

"Told him what?" asked the boy.

"Why, abaout Nora's bet."

"I have not," replied the Shrimp shortly.

The Duke was much relieved.

"It's a good job yer didn't," he said, "'cause she arsked me to give yer this 'ere an' to tell yer to mind to shut yer jaw in future."

He handed the bill to him.

The Shrimp looked at it and nearly fell over with astonishment. He quickly recovered his usual composure.

"Here's for luck," he exclaimed, spitting on the paper and putting it in his pocket. "Wonder where'd she git it?"

"Hi dunno, an' it's none o' yer biznis," declared the Duke.

"I believe she had it all de time," asseverated the Shrimp. "Them wimmin is that deceitful! I guess Nora wasn't behind de door when bunko steerin' was given out. She oughter be in de gold brick an' green goods biz-ness, she did."

"Ho, yus, pick on a gal what's done 'onest by yer," grumbled the Duke.

"She done honest 'cause why? 'Cause I raised a howl yer could hear from here to de Bow'ry, else she'd 'a' bin givin' me molasses talk an' fake promises fer a month of Sundays. She ain't the foist goil I've knowed wid a strangle hold on her conscience."

When the boys went into tea Nora was not there to wait on them as usual, but the Duke returned with a light heart to finish up his work in the stable. He was happy in that satisfaction which the consciousness of having done an unusually virtuous action always brings, which is the reward—oftentimes the only reward—of heavy sacrifice made gladly in a good cause. He was elated at the very idea that he had been able to render a service to his idol and save her from the consequences of her own rashness, but it was a tender elation which caused a funny feeling at his heart and led him to sing "Black Eyed Susan" again very softly. The minor key of the air and the sentimental words seemed to accord with his mood.

"St. Elmo," the novel that every woman knows, and every man will accordingly be obliged to take her to see, has been damatized at last, with the ful consent and approval of the anthoress, Mrs. Augusta J. Evans Wilson, and will be the pecial Christmas attraction at the Academy of Music, New York, opening December 13, for two weeks. What makes the event of interest is the fact that Willard Holcomb, who dramatized "St. Elmo" successfully, produced his play in Richmond, Va., the war time home of Mrs. Evans, and received her approval as well as exclusive rights to stage her story. The plot of "St. Elmo" hinges on a duel, in which the offending principal, Murray Hammond, is killed. A young country girl, Edna Earl, by accident witnesses the encounter, and is profoundly impressed with the horrors of the code duello; and while she tacitly connives at the escape of the slayer, she considers him a murderer. Shortly afterwards the death of her grandfather, Aaron Hunt, throws her on her own resources, and she finds a place as companion in the home of Mrs. Murray. To her horror and surprise she recognizes in the son of her protector the very man whom she, not knowing the causes of the encounter, has regarded as a cold blooded man slayer. But while St. Elmo, brooding over this bitter chapter of his past, has become a cycnic and woman hater, he is still a gentleman of culture who attracts the ambitious girl by his intellect and personality, although she cannot fathom him.

THE SULTAN'S CIPHER.

That old grass-hopperlike combination of flourishes, the Toughra or sultan's cipher, which figures on official documents and all public buildings in Turkey, will have to be reengraved with the name of Mohammed V, says the Pall Mall Gazette.

The inscription consists of the name, the purely Turkish title of Khan, and the words "ever victor." But the form is always preserved. It dates from Murad I. That redoubtable warrior could wield a battle-ax to good purpose, but, like a good many other monarchs of his time, he had not mastered the cunning art of the pen, so when he had to sign a treaty with the merchants of Ragusa, he smeared his hand with ink and pressed it on the parchment.

The conventional cipher does not bear much resemblance to the imprint of a human hand. The three upright strokes are said to be the three middle fingers. But, such as it is, it stands for "Murad, his mark."

In the Greek patriarchate at Jerusalem is preserved a document with a similar sign manual, the actual impression of the hand of one of the khalifs.

PROTEST AGAINST TANK

Civic Bodies and Property Owners Strongly Object to Gasolene Storage.

VIEWED AS FIRE MENACE.

The Fire and Building Committee Hears That There Is General Opposition to Installation of Tank.

For the purpose of getting all the information possible on the subject, the fire and building committee of the Common Council, held an open conference last night, after the adjourned meeting, to discuss questions relative to the petition of F. L. C. Martin for permission to install a ten thousand gallon gasolene tank on his premises on Park avenue.

There was a large delegation of business men, including representatives of the Board of Trade, as well as interested property-owners and insurance agents. As chairman of the fire and building committee, Duncan W. Taylor, presided at the conference and invited everyone present to express their opinions on the subject.

In the first place, several letters written to Leifke & Laing, insurance agents, by various insurance companies, represented by the firm, were read. These were in response to inquiries made by Leifke & Laing. The letters were from the Scottish-Union Fire Insurance Company, Firemen's Insurance Company, Fidelity Fire Insurance Company, Germania Fire Insurance Company, and in each instance the company deplored the fact that such a proposition was being considered here and intimated strongly that insurance rates would be raised, if not cancelled, if the installation of the tank is permitted.

There was also a letter from Fire Chief Edward F. Croker, of the New York department, who said that in his opinion the installation of such a tank would be out of the question under any conditions. He felt sure it would be a great hazard. Chief Croker said that in New York 250 gallons are permitted stored in one place.

The Plainfield Protective Association, through R. Henry Depew, communicated with the Common Council, protesting against the granting of the petition. He urged that action be deferred until the Board of Underwriters of the Middle Division be permitted to investigate conditions and report. He called attention to the fact that, in his opinion, Mr. Martin would be able to get gasolene at a less cost and thereby make greater profit. This, he thought, should not be considered as against the safety of the public. He called attention to the fact that it costs the city $36,000 a year to maintain its fire department, which he thought was considerable.

Councilman Buxton referred to the fact that he had received a letter from the Northern Insurance Company, of London, in which it took practically the same position as the others answering Leifke & Laing's inquiry.

In an effort to bring out other opinions, Mr. Taylor invited anyone present to speak. Judge William Newcorn, of counsel for F. L. C. Martin, stated that before presenting his side of the case, was anxious to hear the side of the opposition. In reply Mr. Taylor said that the conference was merely an informal one and a free expression of opinion was invited from all. Mr. Taylor said in his opinion he thought it would be safe to install the tank, but if insurance rates were going to jump, he might be against the proposition.

Mr. Taylor then read from the book or ordinances of several cities, supplied by President H. W. Marshall of the Board of Trade, showing the quantity of gasolene permitted in these cities. They are as follows: Baltimore, 275 gallons; Jersey City, 1,375 gallons; Atlanta, 110 gallons in a building; Knoxville, 110 gallons; New York city, 275 gallons; San Francisco, 300 gallons; Louisville, 250 gallons.

At this time, Judge Newcorn introduced R. Barton Hammond, sales agent for the Hammond Iron Works, of Warren, Pa., which concern proposes to make the gasolene tank for Mr. Martin if his petition is granted. Mr. Hammond's father is the founder of the concern, and he himself has had an experience of fifteen years in the business. Mr. Hammond gave an interesting talk from the viewpoint of an expert, describing in detail the manufacture of gasolene and telling of its dangers and the proper and improper way of handling it. He said that at the company works in Warren, there is a tank with a capacity of 1,250,000 gallons and several similar tanks nearby. These are kept filled with gasolene at all times.

In the opinion of Mr. Hammond gasolene stored properly in a tank underground is absolutely safe. He

HOLTON WILL CONTEST

Somerset Court Denies Motion to Prevent Probate of the Testament.

CAVEATORS STILL FIGHTING.

Judge Louis H. Schenck Dismisses Objections but Claimants Will Continue Their Efforts.

Judge Louis H. Schenck, of the Somerset County Court, yesterday, handed down his decision in the matter of the Mary E. Holton will case, which was argued before him five weeks ago. He denied the motion of the caveators, who sought to prevent the probate of the will. The caveators say that they will make an attmept to show that Miss Holton was mentally incapacitated at the time of making the will.

There are a great many witnesses to be called by counsel for the caveators and the court will fix a time for a continuation of the hearing. William A. Coddington and Alva A. Clark represent the proponents, while there are a number of lawyers representing the ceaveators.

In the matter of the motion to deny the probate of Miss Mary E. Holton's will, made by counsel for the caveators, the court said:

"In the Estate of Mary E. Holton, deceased, at the conclusion of the testimony offered by the proponents, motion was made by the caveators to deny the probate of the will, because of the insufficiency of the evidence offered on the part of the proponents. I have examined into that question, and have decided to deny the motion."

"JAPANESE GIRL" SEEN BY ANOTHER AUDIENCE

The final performance of "A Japanese Girl" was given last night in the Hartridge School auditorium and if anything it was a more finished production than its predecessors. Flowers which took the efforts of a dozen ushers and others were sent to the members of the cast at the conclusion of the finale.

Miss Verna McCutcheon again assumed the title role of O Hanu San, while Miss Louise Saunders became the Chaya for the evening. The only other change in the cast was that of O Tori-Kayo, the singing bird, which was well done by Miss Alice Titus, in place of Miss Anna May Campbell.

The Cup Bearers' Circle of the King's Daughters are to be congratulated upon the successful outcome of the splendidly produced operetta. The labor incident to an undertaking of such magnitude is no inconsiderable matter and the execution of the work which in itself a pretty one has undoubtedly given assurances of the possession of great talent by those who took part.

The sale of candies between the acts must have reached a respectable sum to be added to the treasury of the Circle. The work of the orchestra, presided over by S. Frederick Smith deserves more than passing notice. It was up to the standard in every respect and contributed to a large degree to the success of the entertainment. The dance which followed last night's performance was enjoyed by about a hundred couples.

CHURCH WORKERS CONFER

F. S. Goodman, G. S. Simons J. H. Manning Make Addresses.

A THREE DAYS' SESSION.

Condition of Churches Noted by a Speaker—Meetings Scheduled for This Afternoon and Tomorrow.

A conference for men leaders of men's and boys' work in the churches of Plainfield and vicinity yesterday afternoon at the Young Men's Christian Association with an attendance of thirty laymen and pastors. The conference is under the direction of F. S. Goodman, Bible study secretary of the International committee of Young Men's Christian Associations. The first session opened with a suggestive study, presented by Mr. Goodman, of conditions in men's and boys' work in thirteen local churches. The summaries given showed a total membership in these churches of 5,712, of whom 1,950 are males a total Sunday school enrollment above primary grades of 2,892, of whom 1,162 are males. In these churches there are eighteen men's Bible classes with an enrollment of 365 and fifty-nine boys' classes enrolling 572. The most pronounced weakness in the work, as evidenced in the reports studied, is a lack of provision for teacher training, there being no such classes for male teachers and but two mixed classes. His suggestion of a union training class was received with marked approval.

A forceful address on "Bible Study; the Heart of Effective Religious Work for Men and Boys," given by G. Stuart Simons, followed this presentation. Mr. Simons stated that the central importance of Bible study is dependent upon three things: The teacher's acceptance of the Bible as the word of God; thorough preparation of the lesson and such adaptation to the needs of the class as will promote the ends of teaching, helping to right conduct and winning to Christ.

An interesting and helpful discussion on the work of the men's Bible class, led by Mr. Goodman, brought out many valuable suggestions. Speaking of the methods that hold men, Mr. Goodman said that the teacher and the course that get closest to Jesus Christ interest men most. The slogan of a men's Bible class should not be "Get men out," but "Get men into service."

In the evening, John H. Manning led in the discussion of the topic, "Co-operating in Promoting Bible Study." Following this, Mr. Goodman conducted a discussion on Bible Class extension in the course of which he stated that Bible classes have now been extended into nearly sixty different meeting places outside church and association buildings, including shops, car barns, boarding-houses, offices, theatres, farm-houses, fire and police stations, etc. In one city of 10,000 inhabitants in Pennsylvania, over twenty such classes are maintained. He strongly urged a citywide Bible study campaign.

The program for today and tomorrow follows:

Today—4:00 to 6:30—Third session, James E. Kimball, presiding; devotional exercises, Rev. C. M. Anderson, D. D.; "The Right Kind of a Boys' Bible Class—What it will do for the Boy and the Church," address by William D. Murray; "The Boys' Bible Class, discussion led by Mr. Goodman. 6:30—Supper for conference men. 7:15—"The Teacher—The Fundamental Problem in Promoting Bible Study;" "The World Wide Association at its Best," stereopticon lecture by Mr. Goodman.

Sunday, 4 p. m.—Fourth conference session, J. W. Gavett presiding; "The Revival of Bible Study by Men—What it means to Men and to the Kingdom of God," address by F. S. Goodman.

Eleventh Organ Recital.

The eleventh of the series of Sunday afternoon organ recitals will be given at Grace P. E. church tomorrow at 4 p. m., by S. Frederick Smith, the organist and choirmaster of the church. The program will include: Third Sonata, Guilmant; Andante Cantible, Tschaikowsky; Jerusalem the Golden, arranged by Dr. Spark; Pastorale in E, Lemare.

Sues P. S. C. for $10,000.

Suit was started today in the Circuit Court, at Elizabeth, by Clark W. Mundy, Jr., through his father, C. W. Mundy, Sr., against the Public Service Corporation to recover $10,000 alleged damages suffered as a result of injuries alleged to have been received by the youth coming in contact with a live wire belonging to the corporation which had fallen to the street.

Miss May L. Pierson, of East Sixth street, and Miss Nellie Crook, of South avenue, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Dwight VanDoren, of Westfield avenue, Roselle Park.

YOU MUST PAY MORE IF YOU WANT A DOCTOR

In accordance with the trend of the times and in view of the increased cost of living the members of The Plainfield Medical Association have raised their fees for office and house calls to an amount commensurate with the financial ability of the patient and in keeping, they say, with those obtaining in some other cities of a like population.

At a regular meeting of the association yesterday, resolutions to that end were adopted to take effect January 1, 1910.

LOUIS K. HYDE BUYS A BIG BOND ISSUE

The Common Council, at an adjourned meeting last night, sold its school and sewer bonds at a most advantageous price to Louis K. Hyde, of this city. In all there were $98,000 worth of bonds, $45,000 on account of the proposed new school; $43,000 on account of sewer improvements and $10,000 for school furnishing. They were 4 per cent. bonds and Mr. Hyde secured the entire issue for $98,034.20 and accrued interest. His bid was accepted.

It was stated last night by Mayor C. J. Fisk that Plainfield is the only city in the State, within the past three months, that has been able to sell its bonds at par and interest. He mentioned several cites that had tried it, but failed. This is due to the natural tightness of the money market, persons having money being able to get bigger returns in other ways.

FUNERAL SERVICE OF MRS. SUSAN L. CLAPP.

A large circle of relatives and friends attended the funeral yesterday afternoon at her late home, 84 Mercer avenue, of Mrs. Susan L. Clapp, widow of John Clapp, who died in Boston, Mass., on Wednesday, December 8, from pneumonia, after a short illness. The funeral at her home recalled to most present the generous hospitality and loyal friendship of Mrs. Clapp, whose loss to the community cannot be filled.

The Rev. George A. Warner, rector of Holy Cross Episcopal church, officiated. A quartette sang three selections: "Abide With Me," "Lead Kindly Light," and "Nearer My God to Thee." The floral remembrances were very beautiful, some of which were sent, at the close of the service, to the hospital.

Mrs. Clapp is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Frank D. Bennett, of Boston; one granddaughter, Miss Dorothy Bennett, three sisters, the Misses Loyd, of Washington avenue, and two brothers, Thomas Loyd, of Washington avenue, and Samuel Loyd, of New York. Interment was made at Hillside cemetery.

The evening was spent in dancing, playing games, and listening to a program of vocal and instrumental music, after which refreshments were served.

Those present were the Misses Helen George, Dorothy Randall, Bessie Conroy, Nettie Steiner, Ruth Wean, Lois Dimon, Marjorie Ackor, Ruth Weinberger, Edna Swain, Ruth Day, Marjorie Hart and Henrietta Winn, and Russell Conroy, Frank Webster, Cory Adams, Herbert Stine, Carleton Smith, Harry Smith, Fred Becker, Pierson Bailey, Preston Dunning, Raymond Hart and George Neff.

IS SHE HIS AFFINITY?

Thomas Muldowney Says No, So Does Miss Josephine Meyer.

MUST SUPPORT HIS CHILDREN.

Troubles of Young Married Couple Aired in Police Court This Morning.

If Thomas Muldowney has met his affinity in Josephine Meyer he has also broken the heart of Josephine's mother who has tried her utmost to keep the man away from her daughter. Perhaps Muldowney has lost all sense of honor, but he thinks not. Anyway it looks as though marital ties are so fragile that they may be broken with impunity by those whose moral ethics are not in tune with the best.

Mr. Muldowney was arraigned this morning before City Judge Runyon on a charge of non-support made by his wife, who claims that her husband's attentions to Miss Meyer have kept him away from her and their two children. Judge Runyon ordered Muldowney to pay his wife six dollars each week for the support of the children, but did not demand a bond for the fulfillment of the obligation.

Mrs. Meyer, the mother of the girl who is the cause of the estrangement between Mr. and Mrs. Muldowney, said that she had made efforts to see Muldowney and failing in that had written him a letter telling him to keep away from the girl. Apparently this has had no effect and the two were seen together by a Miss Carlston, a friend of both families. According to Miss Carlston's story Muldowney and Miss Meyer enjoyed a dance at Saengerbund hall last Saturday night and had been seen in another frolic on a previous evening.

Muldowney claimed that his wife had sold his hous hold furniture and had left him without cause. An agreement had been reached between them for the care of the two children, but his wife appeared to be dissatisfied with the amount he was paying and instituted the proceeding of this morning. Francis J. Blatz appeared for Mrs. Muldowney and at his suggestion Judge Runyon ordered the weekly payments of six dollars.

PLEDGE THEIR "UNDYING LOYALTY TO WM. JEFFERY."

The regular meeting of the Society of Our Men was held in the Berkeley Lyceum at Berkeley Heights Thursday evening, when a committee appointed to investigate the schools made its report which was accepted and the committee was directed to continue its work.

The Christmas entertainment committee reported in full regarding the proposed entertainment for December 23, which will be held in the Lyceum when Santa Claus will visit the children of the township. There are no outstanding bills against the society and a sufficient balance of money is in the treasury to cover the entire expenses of the children's Christmas festivities. A dance will be given on Saturday evening, Dec. 18.

On motion of Judge Roland D. V. Parker, who is also a member of the Republican Club, it was resolved that "We pledge our undying loyalty to William Jeffery as our Republican county committeeman-elect and will continue to supoprt him and follow his leadership."

Speeches were made by Judge Parker, Township Committeeman-elect Frank C. Shaffer, Township Committeeman E. B. Oechsner, Truant Officer Joseph Nester, Township Clerk Robert G. Rogers, Veto Delia and Constable Rudolph A. Shaffer. The president, William Jeffery, in his remarks, stated that he deplored the attitude on the part of Willis Fletcher Johnson and Henry S. Fullerton and a few others, but it simply serves to show that these men are poor losers, and are not fit to be in charge of anything and that the Republicans of the township had good cause indeed to rejoice that these men are revealing themselves as sore-heads to the general public. They are hurdles in the way of progress."

Fire at Westfield.

TORTURED DOG; ARRESTED

Thomas Hand Arraigned on Charge of Cruelty, Preferred by Miss Van Hoesen.

CHICKEN KILLING THE CAUSE.

Two Other Dogs Shot by Hand and Van Fleet, Fracturing a City Ordinance.

Miss Van Hoesen, the local Humane Society officer, was one of the complainants aganst Thomas Hand, this morning, of East Seventh street, near Terrill road, for cruelly shooting, but not killing a dog, which he alleged had been killing his chickens. Mr. Hand offered as an excuse that he had been ordered off the premises of James Kiely, of South avenue, while he was in the cat of killing three dogs, which he suspected of killing his chickens.

Mr. Hand said to Judge Runyon in the city court this morning, that his hired man, Van Fleet, had shot the dog in question and had been close enough to have made a complete job of it, but his aim probably was faulty. As a matter of fact the dog received injuries to his throat which drove him to seek refuge under the barn of a neighbor and here the animal stayed for two days and was finally put out of his misery by Detective Sergeant Flynn.

Mr. Hand claimed in defense of his action in shooting the dog that he had lost between twenty and thirty chickens during the past month and believed he was justified in shooting the dogs which killed them. However, he violated a city ordinance when he shot a gun within the city limits and committed another breach of the law when he caused a dumb animal to suffer pain.

Judge Runyon reserved decision in the case until he can interview Mr. Kiely's son, who it is alleged gave Mr. Hand permission to shoot the offending dogs.

HIS DEATH GIVES RISE TO RUMORS OF SUICIDE

Edward Nelson Found Dying in Bed by His Brother Succumbs Before Doctor Arrives.

COUNTY PHYSICIAN SUMMONED.

Well Known Plainfielder's Life Comes to a Sudden End—Was Ticket Agent at North Avenue Station for Many Years.

Edward Nelson, one of the best known residents of Plainfield, died in his apartments, 116 Jackson building, about 12:30 o'clock this morning, and there are indications to show that death was not from natural causes. It is known that of late Mr. Nelson had given unmistakable signs of melancholia. He was worried because of the fact that he was long out of regular employment and had been, in fact, since he was asked to resign his position as ticket agent at the North avenue station.

Mr. Nelson returned to his home at 10:30 o'clock last night, and his sister said that he went to the faucet and drew a glass of water which he drank, according to his usual custom. He and his brother, Joseph Nelson, slept together, and the latter says that about 11:30 o'clock he was awakened by his brother's heavy breathing. When questioned if he was in distress, Mr. Nelson admitted that he was and requested that Dr. M. B. Long be summoned. When the physician arrived the man was dead.

The circumstances surrounding the death were such that Dr. F. W. Westcott, the county physician, was summoned to the house. The post mortem examination showed the body to be in a rigid condition, which would not be indicated in a case of appoplexy and the fact that Mr. Nelson conversed with members of the family after being taken ill would further indicate, so physicians say, that death was due to other causes than appoplexy.

Mr. Nelson a short time ago was a collector for the Prudential Insurance Company.

The glass from which Mr. Nelson drank after returning home, contained a small quantity of liquid, but an examination showed this to be clear water, so that if Mr. Nelson took anything to end his life it must have been in a form that would leave no sediment in the glass.

During the early part of last evening Mr. Nelson was about town and met a number of friends. To them he appeared natural and there was nothing to indicate that he was in any special trouble. The announcement of his death this morning caused a shock to his many friends.

Mr. Nelson, who was about fifty-five years of age, was born in this city and had always lived here. For a great many years he and his sister, Miss Nelson, and brother, Joseph Nelson, resided at West Front and Liberty streets, which was the old homestead. A few years ago the property was sold to John P. Emmons, who has since improved it. After that the Nelsons boarded for a time on Sandford avenue and more recently took apartments in the Jackson building.

It was, perhaps, as ticket agent at the North avenue station, that Mr. Nelson was best known. He held this position for nearly twenty years, giving up the position between six and seven years ago. Mr. Nelson was also prominent as a Mason. He joined Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., April 22, 1873, and for many years was secretary of the lodge. He afterward joined Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, R. A. M., and Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T. In the chapter he also held office. He always evidenced a deep interest in Masonry and was a regular attendant at all the meetings of the three lodges of which he was a member.

Mr. Nelson is survived by two sisters, Miss Nelson and Mrs. Nelson Gardner, and a brother, Joseph Nelson, with whom he lived. The brother has been a partial invalid for many years and seldom goes out. The announcement of the funeral will be made later.

The Loyal Temperance Legion will meet Wednesday afternoon, December 15, at 4 o'clock, for a rehearsal of the Christmas exercises. All children are invited.

POLICE FORCE AT SMITH'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of John Patrick Smith, a former police sergeant, was held in St. Mary's R. C. church, Elizabeth, yesterday. Almost the entire police force attended the services.

The body was escorted from the house to the church by a platoon of twenty-four officers, headed by the Royal Fife and Drum Corps, and commanded by Police Sergeant Henry J. Gerstung. On either side of the hearse marched the six bearers, Sergeants Eugene E. Kirk, John R. Kirkman, William J. Campbell, Joseph R. Reitemeyer, Peter McGurn and John J. Reilly. Following the hearse walked Chief of Police George C. Tenney, Captains John A. Peters and John J. O'Leary and Sergeants Jacob Elmiger and Frank McGrail.

At the church the police opened ranks, through which the casket was carried. A solemn high mass of requiem was sung by the Rev. Francis O'Neill as celebrant, assisted by the Rev. John A. JURY FINDS INDICTMENT IN LETTER LIBEL.

New Brunswick, Dec. 11. The Grand Jury yesterday afternoon handed up an indictment for criminal libel against Jacob H. Whitfield, superintendent of the city water department; Charles H. Morris, an inspector of water meters and former excise commissioner; Alfred P. Rastall, a clerk in the water department, and Tunis McCauley, an employee of the water department. These are the men who were discharged Wednesday afternoon by Justice Sedam because Prosecutor Booraem could not get his witnesses to a hearing demanded by them.

The Grand Jury devoted the whole day to the case. The men are charged with causing to be printed a scandalous letter attacking the character of County Collector H. Raymond Groves just before the recent election. David Stanford, an expert on typewriters, and William J. Kinsley, handwriting expert, were witnesses.

The four men deny the charge.

Bayonne, Dec. 11.—Despondent because her love was not returned, Mabel Cook, of 101 West Thirty-fifth street, yesterday wrote a note in which she told of her intention to commit suicide, and threw it on the floor of a department store. The girl had been purchasing Christmas presents, which she immediately presented to a number of her friends.

The note was picked up by the proprietor, who turned it over to the police. It was addressed "To Whom It May Concern," and told of an unhappy love affair.

She directed the finder to notify her uncle of her intentions. The police were notified to be on the lookout either for the girl or her dead body.

For two hours the search continued and then the police were notified that the girl was in the hospital. At first it was thought she had attempted suicide, but, it is said, she is suffering from hysteria.

DR. PARKER MAKES CLAIM.

Is the First to Resort to Stovaine Operations.

Trenton, Dec. 11.—The furore that is being created in New York medical circles by the stovaine operations of Jonesco, the Rumanian surgeon, recalls to Trenton practioners that Dr. George H. Parker, of the Mercer Hospital staff, of this city, used this anesthic last January, almost a year ago, when he amputated the leg of Charles Hall, a negro, who watched the operation perfectly conscious through it all, although feeling no pain from the knife.

Dr. Parker is believed to have been the first to introduce stovaine in America.

first, because it is a necessity—that is the rule in magazine buying of America's intellectual aristocracy. It is indispensable to the busy business man, who must keep abreast of the times, because it gives him the real news of the day in concise, readable form; it is invaluable to the thinking man, who demands only the truth and then draws his own conclusions, because it gives him just plain, straight facts.

¶ It is helpful to the whole family. In it you will find a monthly picture of men and affairs by Dr. Albert Shaw, in his comprehensive editorial, "Progress of the World;" a clever cartoon history of the month; book reviews; the gist of the best which has appeared in the other magazines and newspapers of the world; pithy character sketches; and interesting articles on the all-important topics of the day. Authoritative, non-partisan, timely and very much to the point, "it's a liberal education," is the way subscribers express it.

of all American magazines is a money-saver. You can't afford to order for next year without first seeing it. If you appreciate superior agency service, and demand maximum magazine value for the fewest dollars, write for it—today. It's free to YOU.

DOING THEIR DUTY.

Scores of Plainfield Readers Are Learning the Duty of the Kidneys.

To filter the blood is the kidney's duty.

When they fail to do this the kidneys are sick.

Backache and many kidney ills follow;

Urinary trouble, diabetes.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure them all.

Plainfield people endorse our claim.

Mrs. O. C. Moore, 57 Manning avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Though I have had no occasion to use Doan's Kidney Pills in the past few years, I value them as highly as ever. My kidneys were weak for years and I suffered severely from backache. I was unable to sleep well and when I arose in the morning, my limbs were so stiff and sore that I could hardly get out of bed. Every cold I caught settled in my kidneys and aggravated my suffering. I doctored but the medicines I used did me no good. At length I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and procuring a supply at Randolph's Pharmacy, I began taking them. They went directly to the seat of my trouble, disposing of the pains and making me feel like a different person."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

The new owners of the Phillies have been in possession little more than a week, yet they have shown indications of executive organization and aggressiveness that have been totally lacking in the two previous regimes.

Not only have the National Leaguers excellent prospects of signing several big league players of known worth, but they are going to spend money to add to the comfort of its patrons next season.

The grandstand will be extended fully 100 feet toward left field, while the left field bleachers will be altered so that they will be nearer the playing area. A big garage and stores on Lehigh avenue are among other improvements.

The park will be enlarged so that it will seat 20,000 persons, and it is expected that there will be standing room for 10,000 more, which ranks with the biggest baseball plants in the country.

With a break in luck there is every reason to believe that President Fogel's expenditure of $50,000 in enlarging the park will be justified. It looks like a big year ahead for the Phillies.

Barney Dreyfuss has fired the opening gun in the great baseball war. He has sent out invitations to a banquet at the Waldorf-Astoria during the National League meeting.

Rather than clear a profit of $150,000 next season John T. Brush, despiser of money, wants war, war, war. The betting at Matteawan is now 20 to 1 that Catasauqua, Pa., will take the place of the Giants in the National League circuit. If Herrmann and Dreyfuss throw the Cubs out of the league, prominent citizens at Chagrin Falls, Ohio, and Terre Haute, Ind., stand ready to take the franchise.

After the Lydite shells have done their work, the circuit of the National League next season will be as follows: East, Glassboro, N. J.; Cohoes, N. Y.; Bristol, Pa., and Marblehead, Mass.; West, Gallipolis, Ohio; Munice, Ind.; Three Forks, Ill., and New Venice, Mo.

Mordecai Brown, of the Cubs, declares that he will not pitch for Murphy next year unless he receives $2,000 a finger. Murphy will agree providing that Brown removes one of his three remaining digits.

Several New York papers call Horace Fogel a joke because it is alleged that he tried to make a first baseman out of Mathewson. Go softly, boys, hasn't McGraw tried to make an outfielder out of McCormick and a catcher out of Myers?

If Charley Ebbets brings his newly patented snow melter to the National League meeting, there shouldn't be such a coldness among the owners. (And the judge said, ten years hard labor.)

It is said that the new Cleveland park will seat 19,200 persons, with standing room for 11,000 more. Wonder if the owners think that they have landed the Jeffries and Johnson fight.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

B. C. Whitney's famous Broadway success, "The Show Girl," which will be seen at the Plainfield theatre today matinee and night, is described as a pursuant concord of exquisite colors, fascinating music, rythmic dancing, brilliant lighting, delightful fun and revelry of all sorts, enveloped and crowned with a wealth of young, bewitching feminine loviliness. It is a production of the most spectacular sort. This attraction abounds with refined and clever specialties among which are Mylie & Orth, Rodney & Bartelle, Stella Ringhart, Helen Stuart, Ellsworth Ellis, Harry Lorder, Clem Johnson, and a large chorus of singing and dancing girls. Twenty new song hits have been especially written for the production; the more prominent among them are: "That's the Way of a Sailor," "I Don't Want to be a Lady," "I'm the Manager," "Psyche," "Champagne and Terrapin," "Reggie's Family Tree," and "One That He Loves Best."

That quaintest and most delightful of home plays, "The Old Homestead" is an early attraction here. All the same features that have marked "The Old Homestead" in the past as a success are promised, including the famous double quartet, which will be heard in some new and effective numbers. Practically the same cast will be seen as for a dozen years past, which is as closely identified with the play as the author himself. At the Plainfield theatre December 13.

"Crossing the River," will be the topic of the Christian Endeavor society meeting at Trinity Reformed church tomorrow night at 6:45 and Russell Doeringer will be the leader.

Rev. S. L. Loomis, of Westfield, will preach at the Congregational church tomorrow morning and in the evening the pastor, Rev. C. L. Goodrich will preach on the topic, "Thunder er Angels?"

Plain Field Notes and Queeries

By Druid

O dear, what can the chatter be?
Dear O, what can this clatter be?
O dear, what can the matter be?
A Poet's come over the sea!
It's true Willy Watson fine jingles can handle,
Yet Gothamite gossipers call him a vandal
Because he brings with him a rich bit of scandal,
To stingo their afternoon tea!

Invited to grace the tea-room of the Premier
By his radiant wife and a daughter, dreamier,
And by high soaring talk make their tipple much creamier,
Their Pet-Poet went, innocentlee;
They regaled him with slurs on the honour of one
(The former Prime Minister, now dead and gone)
Whose speeches and "hits" were writ by 'anon.'"
Said these Ladies of high degree!

So he left, and wrote then a sort of "I'll snubble you;"
"Miladies, On that tale of C. B. let me trouble you,
It's a feminine fib. Solong, W. W."
Then he sailed for this Land of the Free,
Where a man may stand up for his live or dead friend,
Against slanders that spitfires in satin may vend,
And be praised for his pluck—save by weaklings who blend
Toady-venomous tales with their tea.

We used to hear much about the sagacity of horses, but the most striking instance that has reached these ears in many years is that told by a lady of Plainfield who, only the other day, went over to New York to go a-shopping. It was one of the greasy muddy days when the Sixth avenue asphalt offers the pleasures of a free skating rink. Stepping off the curb at a street corner she slipped or slid and found herself on her back, looking at the uplifted hoof of a drayhorse just about to stamp out her life, for so it seemed doomed in that instant stupor which, let us hope, spares most victims the agonies of conscious death in pain. In moments like this one seems to review one's entire life as in a panorama, and is able with marvellous indifference to picture the incidents between the shock and the burial. The writer went through what seemed a wearisome entertainment of this kind during a crazy fall of some twenty feet only. Without actually losing her consciousness or nerve—for she did not even scream—she watched that ominous hoof descend slowly, not on her face, but carefully across to her side and so that truly human horse rolled the prostrate form out of his path. There was no lack of willing hands to pick her up and congratulate her on the remarkable escape. Pity that our phony sciences do not invent an instrument that will carry into a good horse's brain our votes of gratitude for their many kindnesses to us who use them so hard.

* * * *

It has frequently been made known in church statistics that the average income of ministers is short of $1,000 a year. Some declare $700 to be nearer the truth, but we may take it that free gifts make up the balance. On the other hand, look at the prize fighters. A generation ago they ran the risk of arrest and had harder fights than now, yet they were well rewarded with a thousand. From the money standpoint these are hard times for the preachers and golden days for the pugs. Fists fetch thousands when brains drag hard for tens. Here are two laboring men, one black, the other white; by becoming belaboring ringmen they are able to sign articles which guarantee $200,000 to be divided between them as winner and loser. The preacher may take heart; most of the fighting is done by mouth. A year of amusing bounce, brag and bluster, then a couple of hours of hitting with gloves. But this almost Presidential income is not all won by fists and mouth. Perhaps the biggest share comes from the moving picture shows of the fight. Again, perhaps, between now and the 4th of July the whole affair may fizzle, as black men have been known to turn shy and whites have yellow jaundice.

* * * *

The wise men of Gotham seem rather afraid of the weird witch Eusapia Paladino. A band of them, flying the flag of Science, brought her over from Italy, where her "spiritist" performances have long baffled European wits. Here the cradle of spirit rapping as a lucrative profession, it was expected that we would quickly tell whether the mystic matron is a real witch or only a bewitching Barnumess. So far she appears to be left up in the air, neither believers nod sceptics daring to give us their verdict.

* * * *

From all the printed stuff describing her manifestations one gathers nothing but very stale echoes of old experiences. We have had a confidential half hour's chat with Shakespeare in the person of a medium who could not even spell the poet's name when out of the trance. Our common-sense questionings, interruptions and wide-awakeishness always happened to "spoil the conditions" in which alone the mysteries can happen. We have seen probably every one of the fifty-seven varities of dark and light seance performances, and occasionally have charmed the true believers by contributing "manifestations" of our own, with complete success, until avowing the fraud afterwards. Only one curious thing in all those years baffled all guessings.

* * * *

When taking your walks abroad in the sacred groves—now de-graded into common streets—of Plainfield, you see many a queer thing or happening which the poor folk doomed to go on wheels miss. On Shanks' pony the overworked brain—if we carry one—and its spies and serving members have a chance to relax. On an engine the nerves are on the rack, the eyes rivitted on the chances of a spill, and consequently the gentler faculties that are given us to draw from prickly briars the delight of liberated fancy are screwed down and in peril of being completely stifled. Some fine old crank it was who two centuries ago wound up his vagrom tramp and floating thoughts in the lines that just come to mind as a good ending to this rambling scribble:

Better to roam the fields for health unbought
Than fee the doctor for a nauseous draught;
The wise for health on exercise defend;
God never made his work for man to mend.

The Unwritten Law of the Desert.

There exists in the desert country of Arizona and New Mexico an unwritten law that is recognized by all classes of men. This law binds every man to protect his fellow being from the two great dangers so common in that country, thirst and rattlesnakes. Mr. Henry E. Twose, a mining expert, has written a dramatic sketch portraying the working of this law. And Daniel Porter & Company will present the same at Proctor's on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

R. R. EMPLOYEES CLUB OF ATHLETES OPENED

Last night was one that will long be remembered by the employes as well as the officials of the C. R. R. of N. J. as the date marks the opening of the Jersey Central Athletic Association new club rooms in Jersey City terminal building, which had been donated to the association by the company. The event was a gala one, being attended by the several hundred of the employes as well as many of the officials of the company.

Open house was enjoyed from 6 until 11 o'clock and the way the committee catered to the comforts of their guests made the hours glide swiftly by. The early part of the evening was spent in speech making and congratulations. F. T. Dickerson, president of the association and assistant to Vice-President and General Manager Wm. G. Besler, opened the festivities with an address of welcome. Mr. Dickinson spoke of the objects of the association, of the many courtesies extended to it by the company and thanked the company on behalf of the association for furnishing the members with the handsome new and comodious quarters. The support received had done much to encourage the members and make the association the success it was.

Other addresses were made by C. W. Huntington, general superintendent; F. F. Chambers, superintendent of motive power; C. H. Stern, superintendent maintenance of way; H. J. Northrop, chief clerk to superintendent; E. E. Kerwin, H. M. Maynard, agent pier 10, N. Y., and Editor Chapin, of the Railway Employe. The association Glee Club rendered several selections which were much enjoyed. Following the speeches refreshments and cigars were served the inner man being taken care of in royal style by the refreshment committee.

While cigars were being enjoyed the members and their friends spent the time in a social way, playing pool and other games, enjoying music, getting better acquainted with one another. The new rooms presented a very pretty appearance. The flags and palms used in decorating making a pretty effect. The rooms, which overlook the North river, are large, light and comodious, being finished entirely in white, and the new home of the association is appreciated by all.

The association was organized July 26, 1904, its object being the encouragement of physical culture and manly sports and the promotion of good fellowship among the employes. The company gave encouragement to the new organization by setting aside a piece of ground at Communapaw for an athletic ground. Baseball was taken up and a regular league schedule of games is played each year by the teams of the different departments, the prize being the Besler trophy which was donted by Vice-President W. G. Besler. Each winter an entertainment and dance is held, the date this year being Monday night, Dec. 20. This is the winter event in the social life among the employes.

The present officers of the association are: President, F. T. Dickerson; vice-president, Harry J. Northrop; treasurer, Thomas C. Mulligan; secretary, George F. Bellis; chairman committee on constitution and by-laws, Edward Conover. The association has grown from a young and hopeful infant into a strong and flourishing organization. While its success is not due to one man, still too much credit cannot be given to its president, Mr. Dickerson, who has been untiring in his efforts to bring the association up to its present standard.

Enjoying the best of health, Mme. Mary Pelletier, of Riverside, celebrated her eighty-fifth birthday anniversary Thursday.

REV. CHARLES FISKE TO BE BALTIMORE RECTOR

The vestry of St. Michael and All Angels' Protestant Episcopal church, Baltimore, Md., has extended a call to Rev. Charles Fiske, of St. John's church, at Norristown, Pa., to become rector of the Baltimore congregation to succeed Rev. Dr. John Gardner Murray, who was recently elected bishop coadjutor of the Maryland diocese. St. Michael and All Angels' is recognized as one of the largest Protestant Episcopal churches in the country. Dr. Fiske is well known in Plainfield and until a short time ago was a member of the Plainfield clericus.

Rev. Mr. Fiske was born in New Brunswick and is forty years of age. He was graduated with the degree of bachelor of divinity from the General Theological Seminary, New York. He began life as a newspaper writer, and was connected with the New York Sun and later the New York Times and Evening Post. He was for a time private secretary to Lieutenant Governor Stewart L. Woodford, of New York, who afterward became United States Minister to Spain under President McKinley. He studied law under General Woodford, and with his uncle, Haley Fiske, now first vice-president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, who was then General Woodford's partner. He was brought up under Presbyterian influences, but on being confirmed in the Episcopal church in 1890, he gave up law and newspaper work and began preparation for the ministry. He graduated in 1896 from the New York Seminary, was ordained deacon by Bishop Scarborough, of New Jersey, in that year, and the next year was advanced by the same bishop to the priesthood.

Mr. Fiske served as a general missionary in the Diocese of New Jersey under the work of the Trenton Associate Mission. Then he became rector of St. Paul's church, Westfield. He was later rector of the Church of the Transfiguration, Philadelphia, and resigned there in 1902 to go to St. John's church, Somerville.

In addition to parish work, Mr. Fiske held for a time the position of associate editor of The Churchman, in New York. He also contributed to other church papers, notably The Living Church. He has been generally spoken of as the possible bishop coadjutor of New Jersey. He has been rector of St. John's church at Norristown, Pa., only a year, going there from Somerville.

said that there are several tanks of 5,000 capacity in Philadelphia, New York and Brooklyn and they are not considered extra hazardous. He considered a 1,000 tank more hazardous than one of 10,000, owing to the oftentimes careless manner in which the smaller quantity is handled. He said that all gasolene tank cars must be built according to the specifications of the Pennsylvania railroad, and when this is done, the company will not only transport the cars, but insure their delivery. He read from a letter received from a New York concern in which it was stated that in New York during the past eight years two garages had been destroyed by fire and at least twelve churches, showing the garages to be the better risk.

Mr. Hammond was plied with numerous questions by the councilmen and others present, and he appeared to answer all satisfactorily. He said that if such a tank as proposed was installed here, he would be willing to stand by any requirement that the Council might make. He referred to V. L. Boye, of Gilbert, Park & Co., who is considered the greatest expert on gasolene in the country, and said that in his opinion there would be no danger from installing such a tank.

Judge Newcorn then gave additional facts in support of his contention that there would be no danger. He quoted from the Gilbert, Parker Company, to show what it is essential to bury gasolene underground in properly built tanks and in this way, there is no danger, with a vent pipe erected ten feet above the highest surrounding buildings.

Mr. Newcorn said that the whole matter resolved itself into two questions, namely, will the risk or hazard be increased and will the insurance rates go up. Speaking about the possibility of a raise in insurance rates, Judge Newcorn made a bonafide offer to replace all insurance cancelled in first-class companies for a period of from three to ten years and in addition give the insured a ten per cent discount. He said that he would be willing to furnish a bond to guarantee the fulfillment of his offer. This offer would refer to any property-owner affected by the installation of the proposed tank.

"I want to be perfectly fair with you," said Judge Newcorn, "but I want to call your attention to the fact that there is no ordinance or even a State law that would prevent the installation of this tank. It is not necessary for Mr. Martin to come here and ask your permission to do this. However, he is not willing to do anything contrary to the wishes of the people, and will not install the tank unless he has the good will of all."

Other remarks were made by H. W. Marshall, F. A. Dattenhoffer, Mayor Fisk and others, and it was finally agreed that the best plan would be to make a thorough investigation, draft a suitable ordinance covering the matter, one that would be reasonable and fair to the gasolene dealers, as well as the best interests of the city. It developed that the Board of Trade, as well as others who had appeared as objectors, had nothing against Mr. Martin, the only object being to thoroughly protect the city.

Burglars who invaded the home of Walter A. Duffy, of 69 Pennington avenue, Passaic, Wednesday night, overlooked $1,000 worth of jewelry. It is believed that the men were disturbed in their work, for they left behind jewelry which they had set aside.

Sundays in England

No. 2—At Grasmere

By Rev. Charles L. Goodrich

Hawthorne, writing more than fifty years ago, said of the Lake District: "I question whether any part of the world looks so beautiful as England—this part of England, at least—on a fine summer morning. It makes one think the more cheerfully of human life to see such a bright universal verdure; such sweet, rural, peaceful, flower-bordered cottages—not cottages of gentility, but dwellings of the laboring poor." And of Grasmere itself he said: "The little town of Grasmere seems to me as pretty a place as ever I met with in my life. It is quite shut in by hills that rise up immediately around it like a neighborhood of kindly giants. These hills descend steeply to the verge of the level on which the village stands, and there they terminate at once, the whole site of the town being as even as a floor."

A friend of mine remarked, "Is not Grasmere a fascinating place! I felt there as if anything wonderful and pleasing might come round a corner the next moment." I think it was Margaret Sherwood, we were so fortunate as to make her acquaintance at Broadgate Villa, our lodging place, who quoted the remark: "I wonder at anyone arriving here ever going away at all." We arrived there and did go away; but from what has been said one may well imagine that we should be glad to share with others some of the pleasure we had there. Grasmere lake is but a small sheet of water, only a mile long. But a lake does not have to be large to be conspicuous in England. If you have so much of a prevalent American tendency that you can not be impressed with anything unless it is big, you should not go to the Lake District. I will confess that Rydal Water was so disappointing on first sight, that I felt something like pity for the English people that they have to make so much out of so little in the way of lakes.

But no such feeling could remain long with one. When you have been set down from the Ambleside coach in the midst of the queer little town with its dark stone houses over which the vines ramble and great tea roses stray and bloom at will, with its little river Rothay singing through it and its glimpses of the lake; when you have turned the corner by the stationers and got the surprising view up through the pass of Dunmail Raise; when you have turned another corner by the dearest white cottage and the cricket field and got the view which takes in a charming cultivated foreground with massive Helm Crag rising precipitiously strong and glorious, not far away; when you have rowed out onto the lake and caught the whole sweep of the circle of giant hills, your sensations are not those of disappointment but of delight. When you find that from Grasmere one may coach over the Kirkstone Pass to Ullswater counted by some to have the grandest scenery of all the lakes, and by the Keswick road to Derwent Water voted by many to be the loveliest of all and of which Ruskin said: "The view from Friar's Crag is one of the two or three most beautiful in all of Europe," your appreciation will be deepening. And if you leave the head of your household with a book beneath the trees by Easedale Beck, loved of poets, and with the lad strike up past an old Roman road and traces of a Roman encampment for the top of Steel Fell, and when you have arrived yield to the lure of the long ridge leading off around a great gulf encircling Green Beck; and making your way by that lofty route reach the peak of Helm Crag whose rent rocky summit looks like a blown out crater, and from which you look down upon the green and yellow checkering of the farms in which men and women are harvesting and the clustering houses of the village and the sparkling blue lake wearing one green isle like an emerald on its bosom, while all around near and far behind you are tumbled masses of grandeur fit to make any man's heart swell—then you have begun to know why Grasmere is famous. And if you take the ride to Coniston Water and row across the lake to Brantwood, Ruskin's home, and pause at his gate to look back and exclaim, "This must be the finest view in England;" and then return by the Yewdale route, which winds in uninterrupted beauty all the way with two or three vantage points of marvellous vision, and come out in the late afternoon on the brow of the hill above Grasmere, where though your soul has been steeped in beauty for hours, you can but cry out with the combined loveliness and grandeur of the scene that has broken all unexpected upon your sight: Grasmere Water shimmering silver at the foot of green fields below you, the tree-adorned village with its quaint old church on the farther shore, then a tremendous amphitheatre of mountains from near Helm Crag and Nab Scar to distant Seat Sandal and Helvellyn rising close and climbing far and high beyond, the town You are ready to deny your former exclamation and declare: "No, this is the finest view in all England." Then, surely, you will have begun to know why Grasmere is famous. You will know it ought to be.

And if you happen to be so fortunate as to return from that finest of all the drives of the Lake region just as the bells are ringing for the ancient ceremony of the Rush-Bearing, you will then begin to feel a further reason for the fame of the place. For Grasmere has not only the charm and power of natural beauty combining in rare manner the quiet and peaceful, the lovely and cultivated, with that which rises quickly into the rugged and sublime; it has also customs running far back into history and associations of names of men that are known wherever English history and English literature are known. This ceremony of the Rush-Bearing, which is observed now only in two other places in England, is a link with a distant, ancient past, and a link also with a heroic figure of the sixth century, there, Oswald.

Oswald was king of Northumbria in the days when England was not one nation but several. He defeated her enemies and made her strong. More than that, for having learned of Christianity of the Irish monks of Iona, he came to Northumbria not only to conquer its enemies, but also to bring the religion of Christ to that region.

So as successful warrior, as able king, and also as devout and evangelizing Christian who brought the Faith thither, he is reverenced to this day. The church is dedicated in his name, and year after year when his Saint's Day comes round the village people observe the festival of the Rush-Bearing in his honor. All the children of the parish, bearing rushes and flowers in clusters or women into symbols led by a band of music, march through the streets and into the church. The flowers and symbols are placed as decorations around the interior. Some rushes are strewn upon the floor; for the ceremony is commemorative of the old times when, in the fall, rushes were brought in and spread thickly upon the stone floor to take off the chill for there was no furnace or stove in the church in those days. A service follows with some distinguished preacher as the speaker. The festival ever brings to mind, the ancient days and the example of one heroic and saintly figure The meaning of it all is well expressed in the hymn which they sing.

We returned from our drive to Coniston Water just in time to see the children parade the streets. Children I say, but one of them must have been nearly eighty. He had marched in that procession for seventy-five years or more very likely. We followed the children into the church at 5 o'clock that Saturday afternoon. And with that service we may count our Sabbath in Grasmere as beginning. The church is a very old building. It seemed tiny compared with the spacious cathedral in which we had worshipped the Sabbath before. You could hide it all away in one of the transepts or chapels of the cathedral. It is very unusual in its structure. It has a nave—if I may so speak of so small a church—and then an aisle on one side only, the roof being built out over this with a curious one-sided effect. There is a row of arches of roughly cut stone between these two parts of the interior; and the rafters of oak, hewn by hand and dark with age, are open to view above. I have never seen an interior like it. I doubt if any one ever did.

It was crowded that day. Instead of a talk to the children which I had expected, there was an address upon Patriotism. It gave one a singular feeling to listen to an address on patriotism in a foreign land, where patriotism meant loyalty not to one's own country but to another. It did not matter much, however, England seems so much like our own country. The spirit and principle are the same whichever side of the sea you are. I observed that English people are still being exhorted with Nelson's words, "England expects every man to do his duty." The preacher quoted Wordsworth's Happy Warrior, also in the church in which Wordsworth used to worship, with Wordsworth's pew just before him. Wordsworth's tablet on the wall opposite and Wordsworth's grave just outside the church behind him, he could hardly avoid quoting something from that poet. And the words chosen were apt:

"Who is the Happy Warrior? Who is he
That every man in arms should wish to be?
"It is the generous spirit, who, when brought
"Among the tasks of real life, hath wrought
"Upon the plan that pleased his boyish thought;
"Whose high endeavors are an inward light
"That makes the path before him always bright.

"Who if he rise to station of command
"Rises by open means; and there will stand
"On honorable terms, or else retire,
"And in himself possess his own desire;
"Who comprehends his trust, and to the same
"Keeps faithful with a singleness of aim.

"Who whether praise of him must walk the earth
"For ever and to noble deeds give birth,
"Or he must fall to sleep without his fame,
"And leave a dead, unprofitable name.
"Finds comfort in himself and in his cause;
"And while the mortal mist is gathering, draws
"His breath in confidence of Heaven's applause—
"This is the happy Warrior; this is he
"That every man in arms should wish to be.

Not many, perhaps, have thought of the definition of patriotism given there. For English people, patriotism is to cultivate those characteristics for which Englishmen are proud of their nation. There are certain characteristics for which Englishmen are known wherever they go the world around. To study those characteristics and cultivate such of them as have served to make England honored is the part of patriotism for English people, he urged, and this is but a picture of English character.

"Somewhat shy, reserved, slow of speech when readier utterance would often remove suspicion, unsentimental but tender in the heart and reverencing the sanctities of life, loving liberty with its burdens and perils rather than the safer state of subjection, self-respecting, regardful of his own rights and of the rights of others, and always just and honorable."

Those of you know English people will appreciate the portrait. His definition of patriotism is one to set us thinking. Is patriotism for Americans the cultivation of those traits for which Americans are best known? It may well set us asking, what are the characteristics for which an American is best known, wherever he is found? Are these the traits for which we would most desire to be known? What special American traits are there for which we are justly proud of our country's past and to the cultivation of which we may well wish all youth to devote themselves with loyal zeal as a matter of true patriotism? It would be a good theme for a Fourth of July oration.

Sunday morning found us again in the church and the service was also a part of the Rush Bearing ceremonies.

The able speaker of the day addressed himself more directly to the children. He, too, felt that the observance of such an ancient custom should tend to kindle patriotism, to the keeping up of the ancient traditions which had made England famous. He brought his lessons from Oswald, king and saint. Oswald had stood for instruction and for prayer; his teaching had had in it as its main features three R's: "Ruin out of Christ, Redemption through Christ, Regeneration through the Spirit of Christ." The speaker affirmed that it was largely because these three have been taught in the past that Englishmen are known for their honor and righteousness wherever they go. I could but think how much the past means to these men! How their thoughts go out too over all the earth! They do not think of Englishmen as only on the small British Isles. They think of England as world-wide of Englishmen as all over the world; and they have an ideal for the national character built up out of old traditions and established ways, the ways of pious ancestors. We must honor them for it.

Am I spending too long a time inside the church for even the account of a Sunday in Grasmere? Very well, then come outside into the churchyard, take the best worn path it will take you where you most wish to go. In a moment you will stand by the grave of Grasmere's most illustrous dead, William Wordsworth. William Wordsworth, that is all the inscription there is on his stone. That is all he wished to have probably. And there is no stately monument above his dust. There is no room for one. Doubtless he did not wish one as he chose the spot himself. A yew-tree that his own hands planted reaches out its branches over his grave. The little river Rothay flows just on side the rail and is an ever-sounding epitaph, for he made it famous in his verse. The majestic circle of hills and mountains that rise not far away, almost every fell and fall and beck and dale utters his name; for on almost every one he has placed some lines that live and speak of him. The village, thronged at times not only because of the natural beauty but also because of the literary associations and the debt many feel to this man and the whole region, let us say, is a monument that holds him in continual memory. But you do not wish to linger too long in a church yard? Then you may walk down the street a little way and enter the quaintest of stone cottages, rose adorned, of course, and see where he used to live, the room where he used to write, the books that he owned. You may go out into the orchard which he planted and eat of the fruit thereof and drink at the well he dug, hoping to receive some of his poetic inspiration, as we did with results not yet apparent. You may go on further to Rydal Water and the stone seat whereon he used to sit and dream and write, and to Rydal Mount, the more pretentious home of his later years, in which he died. And whether you have read much or little of his poetry, whether you have received much from him hitherto or not, you can but know, that that was a man who hasscast his name and his spirit over this whole fair scene for nearly a century, and has made it a shrine unto which thousands come who feel themselves his debtors. You can but wonder of the influence which one man may exert, and will resolve, I trust that you will know him better. Then you must come back to the church once more and read the tablet upon the wall above the pew in which he used to sit. For there is a secret of it all.

"To the memory of William Wordsworth, a true philosopher and poet, who by the special gift and calling of Almighty God, whether he discoursed of man or nature, failed not to lift up the heart to holy things; tired not of maintaining the cause of the poor and simple, and so in perilous times was raised up to be a chief minister, not only of noblest poesy, but of high and sacred truth."

So is that most charming vale invested with the associations of Oswald, "saintliest of king and kingliest man," and of Wordsworth who ever lifted the heart to holy things.

The Chorus Lady

By JAMES FORBES

Novelized from Forbes' Play of the Same Name by JOHN W. HARDING

Copyright, 1908, by G. W. Dillingham Company.

"Oh, don't you sing nice! I never heard you before."

The compliment came from Nora, who was standing at the door, a lighted lantern in her hand. It sent the blood rushing to the Duke's head.

"Duke," she said insinuatingly, "you're a good sort. You're not like that beastly Shrimp. Will you do me a favor?"

"Do you a fyvor! Why, Miss Nora—I'd—I'd—do anything in the wide world for yer," he assured her fervently.

"Well," she coaxed, "I want you to keep the Shrimp from telling mother about that bet if you can. It won't be for long. I will have plenty of money soon. I'm going away tomorrow."

"Goin' away tomorrow?" He gazed at her in blank dismay. "W-where to?" he stammered.

"To New York. I'm going to be an actress. I'm going on the stage with Patsy."

"On the styge!"

"But I shall be back in a little while," she went on in the same coaxing tone, "and then I'll pay up. Will you keep the Shrimp quiet until then?"

"I'm already pyed," he said.

"What do you mean, already paid?" she asked.

"Yus, Mr. Crawford gyve me a $5 tip for drivin' 'im to the stytion, an' I gyve it to the Shrimp an' told 'im it wus from you."

A load was lifted from her mind. She had nothing further to fear, for she was sure of the Duke. Her manner underwent an entire change.

"Then I owe the money to you instead of to the Shrimp. That'll be all right. You needn't be afraid. I'll pay you back."

"I'm not afraid, Miss Nora," said the Duke sadly. "But I'm sorry you're goin' to leave us—awful sorry. The place won't seem the syme."

"Well, I'm not sorry," she told him. "I'm going to be in the chorus at the theater and wear beautiful gowns. And I won't have to slave and wait on a lot of dirty stable boys there."

CHAPTER VI.

PATRICIA was a girl whose brain worked quickly and enabled her to take in situations and form decisions instantly. When she had surprised Nora and Crawford she had immediately concluded that her sister would be safer under her own supervision and that the sooner she took her with her the better. It was no light responsibility that she had undertaken. She realized this when she had a chance to think of the change in her own life the step would mean. But she was not of the stuff to shirk her duty as she saw it, whatever inconvenience or sacrifice it might entail.

In the first place, it would be highly injudicious at this critical stage of Mallory's affairs to risk jeopardizing his chances of success by causing at the very outset unpleasantness between him and the partner upon whose assistance he counted to get him out of the hole in which he found himself. She knew Dan and her father. Their rugged honesty would brook no liberties with the women folk of "their" family. Therefore she would keep to herself the knowledge of what she had witnessed.

Still she had faith in her own power to keep her from harm by guidance and example aided by the girl's natural goodness and the strictness of her upbringing. Moreover, she argued that, as Nora was determined to earn her living in some way, the stage certainly did offer better opportunities than the department store or workroom. As she had observed to Mallory in talking it over with him:

"There ain't a girl as begun with me at the Casino who ain't ridin' around in her own tiara, but the milliners is still trimmin' hats."

Nora had looked forward apprehensively to the inevitable interview with Patsy. She wondered what the latter would do in regard to the incident of the kiss. Would she tell their parents? And if so what would happen? She had a positive dread of "scenes" and of being lectured. She was immensely relieved when Patsy informed her that she would say nothing about it and why she had reached this decision. Nora passed the matter off lightly and blamed it all on Crawford. "I didn't know that he was going to do it, and I couldn't prevent him," she declared. She treated it all as a joke and laughed about it. She did not, however, mention the wager that was won in advance nor the fact that he had handed her his card.

Two days later found them in New York eager to start in and do. They had arrived just at the right time, for Patsy, who was well known, obtained an engagement to lead the chorus in a new production at one of the Broadway theaters and after putting Nora through her paces, which the novice found to be much harder work than she had had any idea of, procured for her a place in the same chorus. This was something Patsy had hoped, but hardly expected, to be able to do. Decidedly things were coming her way.

In the enchantment of the city in the promisings of the work to be believe in which she played a part, the reason for being of which is the purveying of delight, is it to be marveled at that a young girl such as Nora, a weakling, suddenly transplanted from the cloistral monotony of a home far removed from even the unexciting whirl of a country town, should be dazzled, hypnotized into a gradual disregard of warning and advice?

She did not of herself seek Crawford, but when he secretly sought her she saw no harm in continuing on good terms with him notwithstanding Patsy's preaching. Patsy was old maidish in her views anyhow, she told herself. She liked Crawford, and he had proved his friendship for her by enabling her to win not a little money on the races.

Whatever may be the effect elsewhere of such orders as "Silence" and "Positively No Smoking" printed in bold type and conspicuously displayed, they remain dead letters and objects of jest in the dressing rooms of the chorus ladies of that well known temple of mirth and music, the Long Acre theater, on New York's Great White Way, where Patsy and Nora were playing.

The particular dressing room they shared in common with seven of their fellow singers and dancers was a good sized one under the roof. Around three sides of it, against the whitewashed walls and between the windows, were long dressing tables, in rear of which were mirrors. On the remaining wall, which was pierced by the door, were rows of hooks for hanging hats and clothes. In the center was a marble washstand with six bowls in it. Chairs formed the only other articles of furniture. Stuck above the mirrors and hanging on the brackets of the electric lamps beside them were trophies of the footlights—cards and notes from "Johnnies," some from gilded youths whose names were familiar in the society columns of the newspapers.

The roommates of the O'Brien girls, seven comely blonds and brunettes, were Minnie Sultzer, Inez Blair, Evelyn La Rue, Rita Nichols, Lou Archer, Mai Delaney and Sylvia Simpson, a "show girl."

Seated at her table one evening, Nora paid little attention to the other girls, who were changing from their street costumes into those in which they were soon to appear on the stage. She was thoughtful and wore a worried look as she poured over a sporting daily. Patsy had not yet arrived.

Inez Blair was entertaining her companions with an account of an adventure with a stage door "Johnnie," whose advances she had resented by threatening to call her brother and a policeman, when Mrs. George Adams Coote, who presided over the wardrobe, entered the room.

"Say, Georgie, did you mend that waist?" asked Evelyn La Rue from her toilet table, interrupting the story of the "Johnnie's" discomfiture in order to ascertain.

"I certainly did, Miss La Rue," the woman assured her.

"Well, I hope it stays up. You must 'a' used a redhot needle and burned thread last time, for it fell right off my shoulder," Evelyn declared.

"Most of your clothes seems to get that habit, Miss La Rue," snapped Coote. "You oughter leave somethin' to the 'magination. Rita, seen Miss Simpson tonight?"

"No," replied Rita. "She ain't here. She won't come before the second act. She's bein' bridesmaid to Maizie Jones."

Miss Jones had been a chorus girl for several seasons at the Long Acre. The announcement of her marriage was news to Mrs. Coote.

"For goodness' sake, that man ain't married Maizie!" she exclaimed.

"Looks that way," chimed in Mai Delaney.

"Ain't them saucer eyed blonds wonders, though!" commented the wardrobe woman.

"No; it's mommer that's the wonder," corrected Lou Archer.

Milly was curious to know whether Maizie's husband was wealthy.

"He's from Pittsburg," said Lou laconically, amid general laughter.

"No use cryin' over spilt milk, but I wisht we'd 'a' played Pittsburg when I was with 'Evangeline,'" sighed Mrs. Coote. "I uster make a real cute boy."

"You'd make a dozen now," was Evelyn's disparaging criticism.

"You chorus girls is too fresh," she retorted wrathfully. "I'd hand you a slam in the map if I wasn't a lady."

"Please don't," expostulated Milly plaintively. "Everybody's fightin', Patsy an' Simpson scrap at every performance, an' now you two's beginnin'. My nerves is just gone all to the devil."

That there was no love lost between the show girl and the leader of the chorus was quite true. They were forever engaging in a wordy warfare which invariably ended in the routing of Miss Simpson, for she was no match for Patsy when it came to repartee, and she hated her accordingly. Miss Simpson was the type of figurantes who, although earning $15 or $20 a week, have their gowns made by the most expensive dressmakers and own automobiles. Patsy despised her utterly and made no secret of the fact.

"Half hour! Half hour! Half hour!" came the warning cry of the call boy in the corridor outside.

"Patsy's late as well as Simpson," remarked Coote, sitting down to mend a tear in a dress. "Is she at the weddin' too?"

Milly wondered what Simpson wore at the wedding and hoped she would come straight to the theater from the ceremony.

"She won't lose any chance to make a gallery play to us," Inez assured her.

"Talk about marryin' easy Pittsburgers, she don't have to. She's got money enough to buy a prince," said Evelyn enviously.

"She's awfully aristocratic in her ideas," put in Mai.

"Her mother uster wash for the best families," observed Coote without looking up from her work.

"I don't know about that," said Milly, "but Simpson made her money in Wall street."

A boisterous outburst of hilarity greeted this information.

"Milly, when it comes to a stall you're a tapioca," declared Lou pityingly.

"She did," insisted Milly, "an' she's goin' to give me a tip on stocks as soon as I make a lot of money on the ponies. Girls, don't you wish we knew who'd win tomorrow?"

"I wouldn't mind knowin' the name an' address of a horse that's goin' to win," admitted Inez. "Say, Nora," she added, "you don't happen to know of a 100 to 1 shot that's due to be uncorked tomorrow?"

"No, I wish I did," replied Nora.

"Say, you look all to the bad tonight, kinder worried. Can't you figure out the dope?"

"I'm all right—just tired, that's all."

"Well, brace up! What's the best bet for tomorrow?"

"First race, Sis Lee, straight. Fourth race, Little Wally, to show; the Veiled Lady, straight," read Nora from the paper.

"I don't like none of them names," affirmed Mai.

Milly suggested that Veiled Lady was rather a cunning one. She was going to make further comment, but Inez headed her off by asking for the entry.

"Inez, what d'you mean by entry?" demanded the simple Milly.

"I've told you a million times," said Inez testily. "Go on, Nora."

"'Sis Lee, Sailor Boy, Miladi Love, King Leopold, Bensonhurst, Immortelle.'" read Nora.

"Immortelle! That's a dead un," laughed Lou. "What's the dope on the race?"

Nora went on reading:

"'The opening two-year-old scurry at half a mile shows a well set field of a fair class, with Sis Lee the probable winner, though scarcely the best horse in the race.'"

"How can it win if it ain't the best horse?" inquired Milly.

"Somebody gag her," said Lou savagely.

Nora concluded:

"'Miladi Love beat King Leopold last summer and raced as well as Bensonhurst. It is a hard thing to get anything of consequence in this division so early in the year.'"

"To hear him tell about it there ain't a dog in the race," grumbled Lou.

"That's true," Nora agreed. "The more you read the less you know about it."

"For my part, I'm goin' to take Bensonhurst," announced Milly. "I was there once and had a grand time. I wonder if it's a pretty horse?"

Mai reached for the newspaper.

"I'm going to pick them out the old way," she said. "Where's the programme?"

Nora nodded affirmatively, and Mai, closing her eyes, dabbed her finger at hazard on the list of entries.

"Immortelle," read Nora.

"Oh, Mai, don't take that one. Don't take a creepy horse," advised Milly.

"No," urged Lou. "He wouldn't run one, two, six in a goat race."

Mai closed her eyes again, and this time her groping digit stopped at King Leopold.

Evelyn waxed greatly excited.

"Ain't that the Kink that likes chorus girls?" she demanded.

"Yes, me for the Kink," said Lou.

"Me too," chorused Rita and Evelyn.

The girls all gathered about the table, greatly interested. Coote joined them.

"Ain't any one goin' to make a pool?" she wanted to know. "I'm a little short. I'll go in with some one. Nora, couldn't you trust me for seventy-five cents? I'd like to split it three ways on Sailor Boy. I s'pose it's foolish to be superstitious, but it's a sure hunch. I uster be a real cute sailor boy."

"We know, all trimmed with anchors," said Evelyn. "You may find some on Sailor Boy, at that."

There was a laugh at this sally, and it made Coote furious.

"Nora, put me down for the usual. Sis Lee across the board," instructed Inez.

"What's 'across the board'?" interrogated Milly. "Say, Inez, what's the meaning of 'across the board?'"

"Haven't time to tell you. The race is called for 3 tomorrow," came the answer.

Lou had been reconnoitering at the door.

"Nix with the racin' news! Here comes Patsy," she warned.

The girls gathered around the table immediately scattered to their places, and Nora hastily put the paper away. But it was a false alarm. The new arrival was Sylvia Simpson. The show girl was a tall, handsome, haughty person, most elegantly attired. She walked with an affected stateliness that brought out all the chic of her costume. Simpson certainly knew how to wear clothes. Also she dressed with taste.

"Oh, Simpson, did you have a good time?" demanded Mai eagerly, while all the other girls inspected the bridesmaid with a critical interest that they sought not to make too evident.

"Ciel! Weddings are such a bore!" replied Simpson, turning a languid eye upon her.

"Oh, I think they're lovely," said Nora.

"They're getting frightfully common. Every chorus girl you know is getting married."

"What a love of a coat!" said Nora admiringly, clasping her hands.

"What did Maizie wear?" questioned Inez.

"The tightest princess I ever saw," vouchsafed Simpson.

"What else did she have on?" asked Evelyn, taking up the cross examination, for Miss Simpson was not loquacious. It required questions to get information out of her.

"Not much of anything except jewelry. In that respect she looked like a jeweler's show case."

"Just like our prima donna."

"Yes—quite vulgar."

She lit a cigarette, which she abstracted from a bejeweled case of gold. Then she volunteered her opinion of the bride.

"Maizie did a real mean thing," she said. "She tried to cut me out of my entrance."

"The idea!" exclaimed the hearers, and Lou remarked that crowding other women on was an old trick of the ex-chorus girl.

"I told her that if she thought I blowed in $500 for this dress just to be a bridesmaid she was good and well mistaken," went on Simpson, encouraged by their sympathy. "I was there to be looked at, and you bet I was."

"Did that cost you $500?" asked Nora, with awe.

"It is rather a roast," admitted Simpson, "but it's a good investment. You've got to look well if you want any kind of a salary in this business."

Inez tittered audibly, and the others smiled.

Simpson swept majestically to a chair. There was no answer to the challenge, and the girls one by one dropped out of the room until Nora alone remained with her.

"Got anything good, Nora?" demanded the woman.

"Here's the entry," replied Nora, holding out the paper.

"Don't bother me with the entry. Hasn't that friend of yours tipped you off to anything?"

"No. What friend?"

"Mr. Crawford. I met him today."

Nora gazed at her with anxious surprise.

"You met Mr. Crawford?"

"Yes. Thought I'd surprise you. He's a friend of Mazie's husband. Soon as he found out I was in this company he asked right away if I knew you, and I said we were great friends. He's asked us out to supper some night."

"I couldn't go."

"Why not? You've been out to lunch with him. Say, he doesn't like Patsy a little bit, does he?"

"Patsy met him only once," she said.

Simpson puffed at her cigarette and grew confidential.

"Do you know, that man's a good thing if you work him right," she said.

Nora shrank from her with shocked modesty.

"Why, Miss Simpson, I wouldn't think of such a thing!" she exclaimed.

"You've been working him for tips, haven't you?" continued the woman. "I don't see much difference between tips and diamonds. Maybe he'd be just fool enough to marry you. His family have money. I think they'd settle if you bluffed good and hard."

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

This is the second week of the engagement of Cyril Scott in "The Lottery Man," Rida Johnson Young's new three act comedy, at the Bijou theatre under the management of the Messrs. Shubert. Not since the two Shubert comedy hits of last season, "The Blue Mouse" and "Going Some," has any humorous production made such an instantaneous success on Broadway. The essential fun of this story of a newspaper man who, to boom the circulation of his paper, organizes a marriage lottery with himself as the prize, has been emphasized in every conceivable manner by the minute detail of the staging and the excellence of the acting throughout. In addition to Cyril Scott and Janet Beecher, his leading woman, the cast contains such well-known artists as Louise Galloway, Helen Lowell, Ethel Winthrop, Mary Leslie Mayo, Robert MacKay, Harry S. Hadfield and Wallace Sharpe. "The Lottery Man" was staged under the direction of Edith Ellis.

It is not at all necessary that one should read the book to enjoy "Septimus," which is produced at the Hackett theatre. George Arliss, of "Devil" fame, has the title role. He acts the delightful, lovable, shiftless, noble Septimus to the life and was in high favor from first to last. The other principal part is that of Emmy Oldrieve, played by Miss Emily Stevens, who is a cousin of Mrs. Fiske. Miss Stevens, however, does not need to mention the relationship to prove her ability, for she and Mr. Arliss get along capitally.

Arrangements are already in progress in the Frohman offices for sending out next year two traveling productions: of "The Dollar Princess." The unmistakable manner in which this tuneful musical comedy has established itself in the public's affection makes it safe to plan for it so far ahead. Two traveling companies Mr. Frohman finds are more economically managed than one, for in large productions like "The Dollar Princess" the railway fares are a tremendous item and frequent long hauls are ruinous. By establishing one company with Boston as its headquarters and one which will open in September in Chicago and after Christmas play the West, it is estimated that a great saving in operating expenses can be effected.

BOYS WITH $5 WANT TO OPEN BUSINESS.

Jersey City, Dec. 11.—Two small boys who sought to open a nickelette and expected to make money early in life were picked up by the police yesterday in a store in Newark avenue, this city. They are Leo Danielewski, of 160 Steuben street, and Julian Lutkiewicz, of the same street. The former is 9 years and the latter 10 years old. They tried to purchase a magic lantern and drum for $3.75 and tendered in payment for the same a $5 bill.

The saleswoman in the store questioned them and Lutkiewicz said he found the money under a bed in his home. She had the police at headquarters notified. Detective-Sergeant John Nugent and Policeman Hugh Clark took the boys to headquarters. There they told a story about having a club in Danielewski's cellar.

The parents of the children were sent for and it was discovered that the money was found by the Lutkiewicz boy and had been dropped by a boarder in the house.

Young Man Killed by Train.

Trackwalkers in Jersey City found a body yesterday, which was later identified as that of George Bugler, nineteen years old, of No. 730 Connolly avenue, lying alongside the Susquehanna Railroad tracks at the foot of Bleecker street. The body was badly mangled and had undoubtedly been run over by a train. Apparently the engineer of the train was not aware that he had killed any one, as no report was made and the train was not stopped.

TO DRAFT ORDINANCE FOR GASOLENE TANK

Mayor Charles J. Fisk sent a message to the Common Council at its adjourned meeting, last night, in reference to the application now pending for the installation of a ten thousand gallon gasolene tank at a local garage, in which he recommends that, inasmuch as the city has no ordinance to govern or control such matters, the matter be referred to a committee for investigation with a view to drafting a suitable ordinance covering the subject. The suggestion was well received and it is proposed to have the ordinance drafted at an early date. The Mayor's message follows:

"Referring to an application now pending for the installation of a ten thousand gallon tank for the storage of gasolene, in or near the garage of F. L. C. Martin, I desire to call your attention to certain conditions.

"First—At present there are no rules or regulations for the storage of gasoline in the city of Plainfield.

"Second—The automobile has now come to stay, and the automobilists must have gasoline to run their cars.

"Third—The dealer must have some place to store his gasoline where it is convenient to the garage, and for the filling of the tanks on the automobiles.

"These conditions must be met with reasonable fairness to the dealer, the convenience of his customers, and proper protection to the adjoining property holders.

"I, therefore, recommend that this matter be laid upon the table for the present; that no permits be granted; that the matter be referred to a committee to investigate and to submit to the Council rules and regulations for the storage and sale of gasoline, which rules can be placed in an ordinance and thereafter enforced, due attention being given to make these rules and regulations reasonable and fair, not only to the dealer, but to the citizens owning surrounding property, and for the welfare of the city."

During the regular order of business several petitions were received from property-owners and residents in the vicinity of the F. L. C. Martin auto garage, protesting against the granting of Mr. Martin's petition for permission to erect the tank on his premises. The tenor of these petitions was that the insurance rates might be increased or cancelled owing to the extra hardous risk.

In this connection the message bearing on the topic was received from Mayor Fisk and referred to the fire and building committee. A petition was received from the Spicer Universal Joint Company, of Madison avenue and West Third street, asking for permission to install two five thousand gallon tanks for the storage of fuel oil to be used for manufacturing purposes. This petition was referred to the fire and building committee.

Mr. Gloak called up the ordinance establishing side lines on Sherman avenue, between Plainfield and Grant avenues, and it was adopted on third reading. The Council took an adjournment to Wednesday night, December 22, when the business for the year will be concluded.

SEASON'S GREATEST HIT AT THE THEATRE TONIGHT.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Tearfully protesting that he never had knowingly neglected his family and agreeing that he would properly support them in future, Arthur Wright was released in his own recognizance by Recorder Stackhouse in Camden county Thursday.

Terribly burned in saving their infant daughter when their boathouse was destroyed by fire on October 5, Alfred Beswick and his wife, of Beverly, who have been in the Burlington County Hospital at Mt. Holly, were taken home Thursday. Mrs. Beswick is able to walk, but her husband still is bedfast.

Charles Barsuq, of Passaic, arrested Thursday night for wifebeating, informed the officer who made the arrest that he was only sorry he was not in Russia, where he would have "cut my wife to pieces." Bersuk has been in jail on similar charges on previous occasions. He was committed by Justice of the Peace Engleman.

A house on the Burlington County Farm at New Lisbon, occupied tramps, was badly damaged by fire Wednesday night, which started in a bed occupied by a hobo. The blaze caused alarm among the patients confined in the almshouse, about 100 feet away, but nurses and attendants kept good control of the situation and soon allayed all fear.

As an evidence of prosperity in Greenwich Township, which includes Paulsboro, Gibstown and vicinity, Collector Henry Heseltner has turned over all the taxes for this year to County Collector George E. Pierson. There will be no delinquents this year, and the township is the first to pay up in full. The amount turned in for county and State school tax is $5,677.50.

William Snellbaker, a farmer, near Woodstown, who had been robbed a number of times, marked his ear corn by sticking toothpicks in the pith at the end. His brother, Joel Snellbaker, recently bought some ear corn, noticed toothpicks placed in them, mentioned the fact to a number of neighbors, who told William. There was a consultation and John Pollander was arrested and committed to the lockup for a hearing. That night Pollender escaped, but was recaptured. It is charged he stole the corn from one brother and sold it to another.

Howard Smith, an Atlantic City letter-carrier, was discovered to be a hero Thursday after Edward Hewitt, a newsdealer, had advertised to discover the identity of the man who saved his son, Franklin Hewitt, from drowning in the Thoroughfare, back of the city. The lad fell into the swift-running waterway while playing, and Smith, who was delivering mail, rescued the boy. Smith disappeared during the excitement, but the elder Hewitt insisted on discovering the rescuer of his boy. Smith was identified as the man by eye witnesses. Application will be made to the Carnegie Commission for a medal.

During a week's racing on the new two mile Atlanta Motor Track, the Chalmers Detroit "30's", driven by Matson and Knipper, were never defeated in their class.

Think of going out day after day—the same two stock cars—and winning every race offered—from four to 100 miles.

Here is another remarkable fact: In every race which both "30's" were entered they won second place as well as first. BOTH "30's" defeated every other car of their class. They were always together neck and neck, at the finish.

Neither of them was out of commission at any time. The "30's" also won second place three times racing in the bigger car class—the only three races were entered in this class.

During the whole distance covered in all these races the "30's" averaged 60 miles an hour. A mile a minute for every minute they were running on the track.

There are no other cars in the world at any price with such records for consistency.

Members of the technical committee of the A. A. A. and Editors of the Automobile Trade Journals who keep careful records of automobile contests, both in America and Europe, are authority for the statement that the Chalmers Detroit "30's" hold the world's records for consistent performance.

Their records show that the Chalmers Detroit "30's" has won more events in proportion to the total number entered than any other car in the world.

The Chalmers Detroit "30's" sell for $1,500, and it is thoroughly proven to be the best car in the world for the price.

Our allotment is being sold fast, and we strongly advise you to investigate and place your order early.

DID JANITOR SPANK HIM?

When Arraigned as Incorrigable, Pupil Says He was Punished.

JANITOR MAKES ADMISSION.

Stillman School Principal States That Young Negro's Conduct Was Very Bad.

Cornelius Mebley, a colored pupil of the Stillman School, told a tale of punishment to City Judge William Runyon this morning, which if true would indicate that the law prohibiting corporal punishment in the public schools had been violated. Webley's story is partly corroborated by Henry Peterson, janitor of the school, who admitted striking and shaking the boy.

Webley told the judge that because he was unable to do certain examples which his teacher wanted him to do he slammed his books down on the desk creating a noise for which, he says she slapped him in the face. Then not being satisfied with this treatment she called the janitor of the school who took a hand in the matter. The boy said that the janitor lifted him from the seat in the hall, where he had been sent and shook him and threw him to the floor afterwards using a thick yard stick on his knuckles with sufficient force to make him wince with pain.

Peterson, who was in court, did not deny striking the boy with the yard stick, and told of the various offenses of which the boy had been accused by his teacher. Webley is in a special class of boys who are unruly and it is owing to his previous bad conduct that he had been placed there.

According to Miss Day, principal of the school, the boy's conduct has been very provoking and the circumstances under which he was punished were decidedly intolerable and merited some drastic measures. The alleged punishment of the boy occurred some time ago and Webley's appearance in court this morning was the result of further insubordination. He promised Judge Runyon to be good in the future.

Harrington, comedian ventriloquist. Tomorrow, Wednesday and Friday, the management will present four stylographic pens to women who hold certain tickets bearing selected numbers.

"Old Homestead" Tonight.

"The Old Homstead," that masterpiece of New England rusticity transplanted to the stage by Denman Thompson, to be seen at the theatre tonight, has not yet lost its charm, though the present is the twenty-fourth season of the old play. This quaint and entertaining glimpse of New England farm life still has a strong hold upon the public. It may not rank very high as literature, but it touches the true human chord. We all know about "The Old Homestead" just as we know about "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and it is pleasant to note that it loses none of its interest and pleasing qualities by repeated iteration.

Nearly Lost Finger.

Christopher Stahl, of North Plainfield, nearly lost the end of the middle finger of the right hand by getting it caught between some pipes he was joining in his cellar on last Tuesday. It was found necessary to remove the nail, but it is not believed that Mr. Stahl will lose the finger.

SLAYER OF CAREY GETS TWENTY YEARS

Jack Allen, of Elizabeth, who was indicted on a charge of murder in the second degree in causing the death of James Carey, also of Elizabeth, pleaded non vult in the Union County Court, this morning, and threw himself on the mercy of the court. Sentence was imposed immediately and Allen was given twenty years in State prison.

Allen committed the deed in Elizabeth last August. He and Carey had had an argument in a saloon the night previous and the following day he met Carey on Broad street, while riding in a wagon. He jumped from the wagon and murderously attacked Carey, stabbing him. The latter was removed to a hospital, where he died soon afterwards and Allen was immediately placed under arrest. Allen had a bad reputation, having served time before. Carey was also well-known at the county seat.

Lewis Lipsi, who was indicted on a charge of stealing shuttles from the Singer Sewing Machine Company plant at Elizabethport, and found guilty after a trial, was sentenced this morning to serve one year and a half in State prison.

TWO PLAYLETS GIVEN AT HOLY CROSS PARISH

Ending with a dance the young people of the Bible classes of the Church of the Holy Cross completed an evening of entertainment Saturday night which was hugely enjoyed by a large audience. Two playlets were given by the amateur casts drawn from the two classes and they gave promise of greater thinigs in the future. The Private Secretary will be the next effort and if the production of this farce in three acts is up to the standard established Saturday night a delightful evening is in store for those who attend.

The "Real Thing," a farce in one act was the curtain raiser and it presented one of John Kendrick Bangs' best pieces of humor. The details of the farce are too well known to require even a synopsis here, suffice it to say that Miss Ruth Western proved herself to be the right woman in the right place in the critical juncture, where is was necessary to employ a cook. Thorpe Roberts was a splendid proprietor of an "employers' bur an and John Sinclair made up a most willing "Bridget O'Hara," who calmly submitted to the strong character of "Mrs. Thaddeus Perkins."

"The Teeth of a Gift Horse," by Miss Margaret Cameron, was the second affering by the combined class s and it was responsible for some real hearty laughter. During the intermission between the plays James Vail entertained the audence with several piano selections admirably executed. After the plays the balance of the evening was spent in dancing to which fifty couples remained. The next play will be given in the latter part of January.

This was the cast for "The Real Thing:"

Richard Butler, Russel Vail; Florence Butler, his wife, Susan Bennett, Marietta Williams, his aunt, Marguerite Shotwell; Anne Fisher, Dorothy Underbill; Devlin Blake, James Lindzey; Katie, the Maid, Etta Bremmer.

William Little acted as stage manager. The ushers were Edwin Schore and Ira Vail. Programs were distributed by Eric VanNorden and Walter Harrington. Between the acts home-made candy was sold under the direction of Miss Annie Mauger.

Funeral of Ira Randolph.

The funeral of the late Ira Randolph was held yesterday afternoon at the residence of James C. Manning, 1130 Dunellen avenue, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiating. The funeral was attended by a large number of the relatives of Mr. Randolph. The body was placed in the receiving vault at Hillside cemetery. Halsted Compton, O. B. Compton, Charles E. Vail, J. Hervey Doane, Daniel H. Pound and Mr. Lines, were the pall bearers.

Revival at Ebenezer Church.

Rev. George E. Scruggs, of Buckingham, Va., who is the pastor of the Ebenezer Baptist church on East Third street, is conducting a successful series of revival meetings, which began last week and will be continued every night this week. The meetings are largely attended and all are much impressed with the earnest words of Pastor Scruggs.

WASHINGTON COUNCIL HOLDS A CELEBRATION

Upon the invitation of Martha Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of America, and in honor of the initiation of the one hundredth member, many State officials were guests at the meeting held Saturday night in the rooms in the Babcock building. The evening was given up chiefly to sociability, after a short business session, during which one member was initiated.

The State officers present included State Councilor, Miss Edna B. Bishop, of Asbury Park; State vice-councilor, Mrs. Lila Thompson, of New Egypt; junior past State councilor, Philip Handschuch, of Elizabeth; State secretary, Mrs. A. S. VanSciver, and past State councilor, Mrs. William Swain, of Riverside; past State councilor, Mrs L. A. W. Perkins, of New Brunswick, and in addition visitors from Westfield, Elizabeth and New Brunswick.

During the evening there were short speeches by the visiting officers, after which a banquet was served. The committee in charge comprised Mrs. Elizabeth Bye, chairman; Mrs. Ida Bowers and Edward Hughes and was assisted by other members of the council.

There was also nomination of officers and the election will be held probably after the holidays. Edward Hughes were named for councilor without opposition. There were several nominations for the other offices.

ASSEMBLY CAUCUS TO ANNOUNCE SLATE

It is expected that the gathering of politicians from all parts of New Jersey in the State House in Trenton tomorrow will be larger than on any other Tuesday since the close of the legislative session last spring. The reason will be that the caucus of the Republican majority of the House of Assembly is to be held in the Assembly chamber to take formal action on the plans for the organization of the lower branch of the Legislature for the coming session.

As has already been told, there is little doubt that the slate as arranged several weeks ago by the Republican State leaders will be put through without any serious friction. This will mean the selection of Assemblyman Harry P. Ward, of Bergen county, as Speaker, and Assemblyman Walter E. Edge, of Atlantic, as leader on the floor.

Captain Peter Vredenburgh, of Monmouth county, has not yet surrendered in his fight for recognition and election as Speaker, but it is the belief of those well informed that his contest will lack strength on the floor of the caucus and that his followers will in the end bow to the desires of the leaders.

During the caucus the House appointments will also be distributed. Essex county, in consideration of its delegation of eleven men not seeking the higher offices, expects to get at least a dozen of the best appointments.

Women's Relief Corps Elects.

The Women's Relief Corps, No. 19, auxiliary to Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., met Friday night for the election of officers. All but the president were chosen, and that office was left open for another week. These officers were elected: Senior vice-president, Mrs. Hattie Gibbons; junior vice-president, Mrs. Eva Summers; chaplain, Mrs. Sarah Mattox; treasurer, Miss May T. Smith; conductor, Mrs. Mary Meiers; guard, Mrs. Elizabeth Nalor; delegates to national convention, Miss Try Mattox and Mrs. Mary Meiers; alternates, Mrs. Anna Smith and Mrs. Eva Summers. The other officers are appointive. The corps will meet next Friday night, December 17, to avoid meeting at Christmas time.

Will Attend Salesman's Convention.

Mr. Soverign is the Eastern representative of the company. He will return to Plainfield on Thursday next. Accompanied by his wife, he will then leave for Detroit, Michigan, where a convention lasting ten days will be held. Mr. and Mrs. Soverign will return here before Christmas.

Marconnier Chapel Gets a Clock.

An anonamous friend has placed a large wall clock in Marconnier chapel and yesterday morning the pastor, Rev. J. T. Landsdale, heartily thanked the unknown doner and promised the people of Oak Tree that the clock would be well cared for and good time guaranteed, so that all could set their watches by the chapel clock hereafter.

FACTORY INSPECTOR ORDERS GIRL TO SCHOOL

Matilda Lazzi, the young girl who was employed by Ischer & Co., at their factory on North avenue, and whom the truant officer claimed was still of school age, returned to her school this morning.

State Factory Inspector McCardell, who recently inspected the factories in this city, looked up the vital statistics at Trenton and discovered that the girl was but thirteen instead of fifteen as had been given to her employer. The girl will be obliged to attend school for the balance of this school year, when if the Board of Education so decides she may resume her employment.

MAY ELIMINATE FADS FROM PUBLIC SCHOOLS

In view of the fact that a special committee of the Legislature is investigating the cost of the public school system of the State, with the intention of recommending the elimination of education fads for the purpose of economy, members of the New Jersey State Teachers' Association will devote considerable attention to this subject at their annual meeting, to be held December 28-30, at Atlantic City.

Dr. James M. Green, principal of the State schools in Trenton, will make an address on "The Cost and Return of Education." Dr. Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton University, and Governor Fort will talk along similar lines.

THE COST OF LIVING TAKES A BIG JUMP

Interesting facts relative to the cost of living have just been compiled by the State Bureau of Labor and Statistics. These show, among other things, that during the last thirteen years the cost of living in this State has increased 37 13-100 per cent.

Prices of a bill of goods were obtained in different parts of the State. It was found that they could be bought cheapest at Califon, Hunterdon county, where the cost was $11.17, and the highest price prevailed at Metuchen, where it was $15.92.

The prices were highest in cities where the most competition prevailed and lowest in the rural communities where there is practically no competition.

WHAT IS OF INTEREST AT THE HOPE CHAPEL.

Rev. L. R. Howard, who recently underwent an operation for the removal of the tonsils, will occupy his pulpit at Hope chapel next Sunday. Rev. Dr. Edward J. Hamilton, of Elizabeth, preached at the chapel yesterday morning and Rev. Dr. R. S. Campbell, of the borough, preached in the evening.

"Getting Ready for Christmas" will be the topic for the prayer-meeting at Hope chapel Thursday night.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church will meet tomorrow afternoon in Vincent chapel.

The Junior League of the First M. E. church will meet Friday afternoon in Vincent chapel, when Miss May Randolph and her assistants will drill the members for the Christmas cantata.

Lord's Supper at Marconnier.

Yesterday morning the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed at Marconnier chapel, Oak Tree. There were about forty persons present at the service who listened to an excellent sermon by the pastor, Rev. J. T. Lansdale. A trio, consisting of Miss Voorhees, Mrs. VanCourt and Mr. Voorhees, sang very acceptably, accompanied on the piano by Miss Voorhees. Elder A. L. Force and Deacon A. K. Willett, from Trinity Reformed church, assisted Pastor Landsdale by serving the bread and wine.

Those who were present at the last Charity Ball will recall the arrangements for the comfort of the guests and the excellent supper served.

Present Your Bills.

COLBY'S NEWEST IDEA IS WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE

Everett Colby, of the "new idea" movement in politics, has taken a stand with the suffragettes. Moreover, he is about to come out upon the speakers' platform advocating the right of women to vote.

Mr. Colby went to Hot Springs ostensibly for the golf and the baths, but in reality to write a lecture which he is going to deliver next Thursday before the Equal Franchise Society in New York. Although afraid that an interviewer would steal his powder, he was induced to outline as follows his attitude towards this much mooted question:

"I am for woman suffrage," said Mr. Colby, "and the first thing that occurs to me in discussing the subject is that the burden of proof would noturally fall upon those opposed to it. In a democracy only positive evidence that their vote would injure society justifies their exclusion from immediate participation in politics. They have on equal stake in the community, are a factor in production of the nation's wealth and could bring into politics qualities and abilities that men do not possess.

"If I thought that the result of the movement would be to make women like men—I do not deny the pustice of the claim—Ishould certainly not be enthusiastic. But the point is that the movement is aimed simply to give women an opportunity to do efficiently the work for which they are peculiarly fitted, and which they are now trying to do outside of politics.

"I believe in woman suffrage, not because it is radical, but on the contrary because I believe it will check unsound radical thought and become a conservative influence."

WARD FOR SPEAKER, AND EDGE FOR LEADER

The Republican majority of the House of Assembly will hold its annual caucus tomorrow at Trenton and agree on who is to have the offices and the patronage. The slate of Ward, of Bergen, for Speaker, and Edge, of Atlantic, for majority leader, has not been disturbed and will probably go through. James Parker, of Passaic, expects to be elected as the clerk and Upton S. Jefferys, of Camden, will be agreed on for assistant clerk.

The Senate caucus will be delayed until after the first of the year because of the absence in Europe of Senator Minch, of Cumberland county, but it is certain that Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, and Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union, will be agreed upon for President and majority leader, respectively. Howard Tyler, of Cumberland, will be the secretary of the Senate.

There is talk at Trenton of the Senators going in conference with Governor Fort on the question of nomination. There was some criticism last winter over the slowness of the Governor in sending in his nominations for office, and it was charged that he held them up because the Republicans would not give him advanced legislation.

AGED MRS. RANDOLPH FRACTURED HER HIP.

Mrs. Catherine Randolph is detained at her home, 532 West Front street, with a fractured hip, the result of an accident last Friday night. She had ascended the front stairs at the time and upon reaching the second floor attempted to turn on the electric light. As she did so, her legs gave way and she fell, prostrate in the hallway. Her son, Howard, who was in the house, was attracted by her screams and hastened to where she lay helpless.

Mrs. Randolph was assisted to her bed with the help of Mrs. H. A. Weber, a neighbor, and Dr. C. B. Lufburrow was summoned. An examination showed that the hip bone near the thigh was fractured. She is now doing as well as possible owing to her advanced age and physical infirmities.

HOW 'PHONE CO. MAKES UP FOR THAT REDUCTION

The New York Telephone Company is establishing a new district which will include Watchung, Warrenville, Mt. Bethel, Coontown, Stony Hill and the Valley road. The new "Central" will be known as Washingtonville, and by the change there will be an increase in rates. Local calls for the Washington central station will be five cents and New York calls will be raised from twenty to twenty-five cents.

Recently, the company announced a reduction of rates to several places in this part of New Jersey, places which are not called frequently, and immediately afterwards it took numerous calls to Fanwood, Scotch Plains and Plainfield out of the "Plainfield List" and a charge is now made where before they were free to local subscribers.

Where the service is used the most the rates have been maintained as of old or raised, while in cases where but few calls are made, the rates have been reduced, which in the end will materially increase the income of the company.

DUDLEY BUCK MUSIC AT TRINITY CHURCH

Under the direction of Arthur L. Titsworth, organist and choirmaster of Trinity Reformed church, the choir gave a Dudley Buck memorial service, last night, which was greatly enjoyed by a large congregation. There were various solo parts by Miss S. Etta Raybert, soprano; Miss Winifred Carroll, contralto; F. S. Cutter, bass and E. D. Young, tenor, and all were in excellent voice.

During the service Miss Raybert and Miss Carroll sang two solos, and Mr. Cutter and Miss Carroll sang a duet in a finished and pleasing manner. The solo work by Mr. Cutter and Mr. Young was also much enjoyed by the congregation. The numbers at the morning service were also selected from the works of Dudley Buck and proved equally enjoyable. The program was as follows:

Organ prelude, "Impromptu Pastorale," quartet; "Festival Te Deum in E flat;" "Sing Allelulia Forth," organ, "Festival Postlude in C."

The program in the evening was as follows:

Organ prelude, "At Evening" (Idylle); quartets, "The Strain Upraise, Allelulia," "Rock of Ages," "There Were Shepherds," "Lead Kindly Light;" soprano solo, "Through Peace to Light;" duet, "The Lord is My Light;" contralto solo, "My Redeemer and my Lord;" organ Postlude, "Triumphal March in D."

Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor, gave a short talk in the evening, referring to the appropriateness of a memorial service to Dudley Buck, one who had done so much in the world of music. He said that it was right that one's soul should be filled with music and that it helped to make one happy and cheerful and be a better Christian. During the course of his remarks, Pastor Brook referred to a touching incident in reference to Dr. Paul W. Harrison, the church missionary going to Arabia. He said that the story of Dr. Harrison's purpose had so touched the heart of a ten-year-old boy that he had been led to give $2.45, money he had saved for Christmas toward the support of Dr. Harrison.

It was explained by Mr. Broek that the boy is a member of a class in another Sunday school, and was impressed with the story as related by his teacher, that he gave the money to be forwarded to Dr. Harrison.

FORMER FREEHOLDER IS DEAD AT WESTFIELD.

James T. Pierson died at his home in Westfield this morning after an illness lasting but two days. Mr. Pierson was stricken on Saturday with pneumonia which developed too fast for ordinary methods to stay. He was seventy-five years old and was born and brought up in Westfield, where he had been long known in the real estate business. He is survived by a widow and two sons.

Mr. Pierson was a former freeholder and a man prominent in the affairs of Westfield for years. The funeral will be held from his late residence on Broad street, Westfield, on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

DREAM OF WEALTH FADES

Claimants to Sir. Francis Drake Estate Get Emissary's Report.

GOTHAM PROPERTY THEIRS?

Drake Association Received Mrs. Dunn's Statement at Meeting Saturday—To Publish it in a Pamphlet.

Mrs. Eleanor Dunn, who returned from her trip from Europe December 2, where she had gone in the interests of the American heirs of Sir Francis Drake, has made an exhaustive report of her labors in England, which shows the futility of pushing any American claims.

She says there is an estate occupied by the English descendants of Sir Francis, but to get any part of it would require an enormous outlay of money, which she does not think advisable.

Her report, which will be printed and distributed among the heirs here and in other parts of the country, will show future generations the uselessness of attempting to recover any of the money.

English lawyers whom Mrs. Dunn approached, advised her that perhaps as much as $100,000 would be needed to secure the thorough search of titles which would be necessary.

The money subscribed by local claimants of the Sir Francis Drake association was more than enough to defray Mrs. Dunn's expenses, and the balance will probably be used for the publishing of the report.

There is no hope for American heirs of Sir Francis Drake ever getting any part of the estate. The value of the fortune has been greatly exagerated and as a matter of fact no vast fortune exists.

There is some reason to believe, however, that some property which lies on the waterfront in New York city may some time be reclaimed for the American heirs of the renowned Sir Francis. A reporter called at the home of Mrs. Dunn, on Norwood avenue last night, but was unable to see her. It was learned later, however, that a meeting of the Drake Association had taken place Saturday afternoon in the rooms of the W. C. T. U. and here Mrs. Dunn presented her report to the members.

ONE OF "FLAG LIST" EXILED FROM TOWN.

Hackettstown, Dec. 13. For being drunk and disorderly William Folk, one of the men placed on the flag list by the board of drunk protectors, was arraigned in local court Friday. He acknowledged having drank freely of beer purchased by a friend, but did not know where or how he got in the lockup. The court gave the prisoner the choice of six months in the county jail or six months' exile from the town, and he gladly chose the latter and agreed to vacate the town by 6 o'clock.

Folk's wife and mother-in-law appeared in court and urged punishment. It was at their home that he was disorderly. Mrs. Folk alleged that her husband had not given her any support for months, and she has been obliged to give up their home and return to her parents for that reason. Folk stated that he would take up a residence in Phillipsburg, where he has relatives, and would be just as willing to leave his "happy" home for six years as six months.

TRENTON AUTO VICTIM DIES IN HOSPITAL.

Trenton, Dec. 13. Run down by an automobile driven by Winfield Gulden, a chauffeur employed by the Trenton Potteries Company, Frank Rossier, died in St. Francis' Hospital Friday night. His skull was fractured and he never regained consciousness, although an operation was performed. Coroner Bower will conduct an inquest and Prosecutor Crossley will make an investigation. Gulden was held in $2,000 bail furnished by John A. Campbell, president of the Potteries company.

Gulden has employed former Mayor Frank S. Katzenbach as counsel. State Automobile Commissioner J. B. R. Smith has ordered an investigation to see if the case warrants revoking Gulden's license. The dead man leave a widow and five children, the youngest five months old.

Deckers Insist Bear Scared Them.

Newton, Dec. 13.—Despite the fact that the widely circulated bear story proved to be without foundation, members of the family of Thomas Decker, who lives on the outskirts of Branchville insist that a big black fellow is prowling around their premises at night. To support their assertions William, an elder son, says that he met the animal in the darkness while on his way home several nights ago. It was in the road and blocking his way. He admits that he was frightened, but pelted the bear with stones until it trotted off into the brush. Then he made for home as fast as possible. Mr. Decker's daughter was frightened by the animal while returning from church last Sunday. Some are inclined to believe that the animal is a stray cow or heifer belonging to some nearby farmer.

Mainly—we have the largest stock and devote more space to the display of toys than any other store. Our entire second floor is used entirely for their display and sale. People who go to every store come back and tell us—our prices are lowest. If anyone knows—they do.

SPECIAL

To give greater freedom in selecting we have assembled our entire stock of dolls on the main floor in the Millinery section. You'll see lots of dolls ranging in price from 25 cents to $10, that will make you wonder how they can be sold for so little. And too—you'll find the dolls at $10 are as wonderful a value as the ones priced for a few cents.

Shop early—in the morning is best—you'll be able to choose easier and more satisfactory and be through before the day is half over—shop early. We would ask—all those who can—to take small packages with them. This will eliminate the possibility of your package going to the wrong address. MILITARY PROBERS IN PATERSON TOMORROW.

Paterson, Dec. 13. The committee named by joint resolution at the last session of the Legislature to revise the military code of New Jersey is expected in this city tomorrow evening. The committee members plans to have before them all the officers, field, line, staff and departmental, serving with the Fifth Regiment Infantry, Colonel Edwin W. Hine, commanding the First Brigade, will be present, as will Lieutenant-Colonel A. A. Van Walraven, commanding the regiment. Colonel Hine will entertain the members of the committee at dinner at the Hamilton Club early in the evening.

The official notice of the committee's intention was received Friday evening at the monthly meeting of the board of officers of the command, and Colonel Hine said he desired as many officers as could make it possible to attend. The committee has been holding hearings before the officers of the Second and Third regiments, in the southern part of the State, but this is the first inroad into northern New Jersey.

Captain Peter Vredenburgh, Assemblyman from Monmouth, is the leading spirit in the committee. He is an ex-army officer, and at present holds a commission in the ordnance department in this State. Just what the committee wants to ascertain isn't plain to the officers of the Fifth.

Plainfield, N. J., December 13, 1909.

HERE AND THERE.

Robert Walpole, of East Front street, Scotch Plains, has an interesting relic of the Civil War, which was presented to him Sunday by Captain William Hand, of Plainfield, who with his nephew, Ernest T. Hand, has just returnedf rom a visit of several weeks in Virginia. The relic is a piece of pine block in which is imbedded a minie ball. The piece of wood was cut on the old battlefield at Spottslvania, Virginia, by lumberman, the relic b ing found imbedded in the wood when the pine stump was being cut up at the mill.

Mr. Walpole prizes the relic highly as the battle of Spottselvania played an important part in his life, while serving his country during the troublesome times of '67 Mr. Walpole had bee nthrough a number of fierce engagements and had been one of the few to escape uninjured. At Spottselvania, however, he was captured by the Confederates and taken to Andersonville prison, where he remained for seven months a prisoner of war. His treatment during that time was such that when he was finally exchanged and sent home his conditon was such that it was not expected that he would live. Kind nursing finally restored his health and he was again able to resume his trade of blacksmith. The Captain also brought Mr. Walpole a rabbit shot on the battlefield.

KILLS SWEETHEART ON EVE OF WEDDING.

Shooting his sweetheart, Miss Otilia Setka, and then sending a bullet crashing into his own brain at Passaic, Peter Hoppan brought his romance to an end Saturday night. The shooting occurred in the rooms of the girl, 58 Second street.

A few weeks ago Hoppan had loaned the girl $150 and last night upon requesting its return, because he had obligations to meet, discovered that the girl had spent the money for her wedding gown and for articles for their proposed home. They were to have been married next week.

Hoppan, enraged at this, drew a revolver and shot both the girl and himself. Mrs. Mary Ritzberger, a sister of the girl, who was in the next room, rushed in at the report of the shots and found the couple lying near each other on the floor, both dead.

Mrs. Margaret Hansen, of East Second street, visiter her sister, Mrs. Chris. Anglebauer, of Jersey City, yesterday.

LITERARY

An original conception in a Christmas greeting is found upon the cover of the National Magazine for December. It is the first of a series of Uncle Sam covers planned for 1910. In full uniform he is represented dragging home a generous-sized Christmas tree, with a smile on his face that portrays the good natured and prosperous Santa Claus. In his hand is shown the axe with which he has captured the Yule-tide trophy.

In the Red Book Magazine for December Rupert Hughes has a story that for utter irresponsibility on the part of its characters, a quartet of college glee club members, surpasses any college story one recalls ever before having read. Its title is "The Lady and the Quinine Quartet."

It is to be hoped that when genial St. Nick reaches the home of the reader on Christmas eve, his pack will be as full of good things as is the December Lippincott's—it could not very well be any fuller. In the first place, there is an entrancing complete novel—a sea yarn—entitled "Grimes Takes Command," by Henry C. Rowland, author of "Sea Scamps," "The Wanderers," and other big-selling salf-air books. The plot is based on the experiences of four good-looking girls who find it necessary to take ship for Buenos Ayres.

The Strand Magazine for December contains the opening chapters of a new detective story by A. E. W. Mason entitled "The Murder at the Villa Rose." Fiction is also supplied by A. Conan Doyle, E. Phillips Oppenheim, Richard Marsh and others. The articles include an interesting account of Sir W. S. Gilbert's pet lemurs, illustrated with most unique photographers, and some "Personal Reminiscences", related by the chief of the famous detective force at Scotland Yard.

To the December Atlantic Dr. Samuel McChord Crothers contributes one of the most direvting of all his essays. The books of all the ages hold a convention in order to have a full and frank discussion of their readers, and in the sequel Dr. Crothers' humor has the freest opportunity to play. The opening article in this issue of the Atlantic forms the first installment of a series of letters written from Japan during the last years of his life by Lafcadio Hearn to his close friend, Professor Basil Hall Chamberlain.

For the past seven years the Christmas Burr McIntosh Monthly has come to be considered one of the best attractions of the holiday season throughout the United States. Each year the publishers of this beautiful magazine give the public a more beautiful Christmas number than the year before, until one wonders if there be any end to their ability in this direction.

The December Century is a magazine of promise and fulfillment—promise of notable artistic and literary features in the first paper of "The Holy Land" series by Robert Hichens, and Jules Guerin, in the beginning of Helena Modjeska's Memoirs, and in the second instalment of May Sinclair's "The Creators: A Comedy"—in color reproductions of Guerin's marvelous paintings of "The Temple of Bacchus, Baalbec," and "The Columns of the Sun, Baalbec," and of two notable paintings by American artists, Mrs. J. Francis Murphy's "Eleanor" and Ernest L. Blumenschein's portrait of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Parker Butler and child. There is to be a series of these "Holy Land" sketches—the material gathered on a special trip made by author and artist for this purpose. "Baalbec, the Town of the Sun"—Baalbec of exquisite beauty, of stupendous remains—is the subject of the first alluring paper, giving promise of Mr. Hichen's and Mr. Guerin's best work.

"Prince Hagen's" novel vividly portraying some rarely-discussed aspects of modern life, begins in December Physical Culture, and Bernarr Macfadden, editor of the magazine, is to be congratulated on securing the rights to publish this remarkable serial. The story is of a nature to furnish food for thought and amusement for both the grave and the gay.

The Christmas number of Scribner's Magazine contains a wealth of pictures, many of them in color, a special Christmas frontispiece and color cover, seven short stories filled with the Christmas spirit and articles on subjects of wide general interest, with poems of unusual beauty. But with all these special Christmas features the main interest of the number is in Theodore Roosevelt's third article on his African experiences. This one is entitled "On Safari. Rhinos and Giraffes." Each one of these articles shows the remarkable care which Mr Roosevelt has put on its literary finish. In this article there are descriptions of the expedition on the march, of a moonlight tramp across the wild country after a dead rhinc, of stalking a giraffe, which are as romantically picturesque as anything in professed books of adventure.

Recreation comes to us this month with one of the most attractive three-color cover designs from a photograph we have yet seen. It combines the spirit of Christmas with that of outdoor life in its holly decorated border encircling the vigorous, athletic winter girl, and the hundred or more photographs and score of articles contained in its 64 pages, seem to bring the very breath of the big out of doors to the reader.

Everybody's for December presents a cover design from photographs of snow flakes. And the editors have called it "One of Nature's Masterpieces." A little explanation on the back of the frontispiece tells, as in a lesson to children, how the work was done, but only the Master of all things could solve for us the mystery of these rare and wonderfully exact works of art in miniature.

KILLED IN POWER HOUSE.

Ralph Weldon Shocked While Throwing Switch in P. S. C. Plant.

Ralph Weldon, twenty-four years old, of No. 81 Halsey street, Newark, was instantly killed late yesterday afternoon by a shock of electricity received in the city dock lighting station and power house of the Public Service Corporation in Newark. He was at work on a large switchboard which controls the power for lighting a large portion of the centre of the city. He was shocked while throwing a switch.

Other employes ran to his assistance and a physician was summoned, but he did not respond to treatment.

MOST ANCIENT HUMAN RECORD.

Long ago, so long that even a scientist would hardly dare venture a guess as to the date, a man clad with only a wild beast's skin about his loins was sitting at the mouth of a cave in the rocky highlands in what is now southern France, says a writer in Lippincott's. He was scratching with a sharp flint on the fragments of an ivy tusk, perhaps picturing for some youthful admirers adventures through which he had passed or animals he had slain.

That ivory chip was stored away as a treasure, to be lost and forgotten after the cave man's death. One day a man named Lartet, digging in the cavern floor, found it. On it was scratched a fair representation of the hairy elephant, probably at once the oldest picture and the oldest human record in existence.

We know the cave man was a faithful workman, for the melting ice fields of Siberia have yielded a perfect specimen of his extinct mammal, and the paleolithic picture is a true copy. Not only has this ancient sculptor given us a sample of the earliest art, but he has left us more valuable than all, a historical recordof his time, for the rude picture is simply a page from the cave man's history which, translated into twentieth-century English, says "Men, thinking men, were contemporaneous with the hairy elephant."

No record that any of the humankind have ever left is half so ancient as this. The oldest Egyptian papyrus is a thing of yesterday compared to this paleolithic sculpture. While the cave man was living in Europe the valley of the Nile was yet only a wild waste. Egypt was not yet Egypt, and civilization as we know it had scarcely made a beginning.

HOMING INSTINCT IN ANIMALS.

One cannot say that a lost cat finds its way home by instinct. "Home" is a different place for each cat, and no series of mechanical acts will take the animal there, writes E. T. Brewster in Mc Clure's Magazine. The lost animal finds its way home precisely as a lost man finds his. It depends on its sence of direction, its judgment of distance, its memory of familiar points.

Most four-footed beasts and most men, once badly lost, stay lost and do not get home at all. When they do, in one case as in the other, it is largely perseverance and luck. Even the homing pigeon has to be put through a long training before it can find its way home.

In fact, this whole problem of homing and migratory instincts illustrates nicely the modern way of interpreting animal behavior. There is no "homing instinct." The animal becomes wonted to some particular tree or hole or human fireside. This means to him warmth and shelter and food. It is, in short, his home; and if he is a home body, he longs for it when absent, like any of the rest of us. So cat and dog and horse and carrier pigeon return to their abodes not by virtue of any strange, peculiar instinct, but because they know the way.

TARIFF STONE AND NOT BREAD.

The tariff question will be the burning issue in the three next Congressional campaigns involving the Presidential election of 1912. No human power can prevent that.

The hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions, of Republican tariff reductionists will feel that they were buncoed into voting the Republican ticket last year. All they have to do is to convince themselves that they were grossly deceived is to compare the Payne-Aldrich monstrosty with the Dingley bill and then read the Republican platform. Judge Taft's campaign speeches, his inaugural address, and the speeches in the Senate by the "progressive" Republican Senators, Dolliver, Cummins, Nelson, La Follette, Beveridge, Clapp, Burkett, Borah, Bristow, et id omine genus.

These will make fine Democratic campaign documents and will prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that where revision was promised downward there has been revision upward; that having been promised bread, they have been given a stone. —Quincy (Ill.) Herald.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS IN NATIONAL GUARD

Captain Orrin E. Runyon, commanding Company D, First Regiment, at Newark, on December 4, rounded out a quarter of a century of active service in the National Guard of this State. He is a native of this city and is a brother of Charles W. Runyon. He had made application for a long service medal for that period and will probably be presented with the emblem at one of the regimental affairs after the holidays. Captain Runyon ranks third in seniority among the line officers in the militia in this State.

Captain Runyon began his military career on December 4, 1884, enlisting as a private in Company D, First regiment. He was chosen second lieutenant in the following spring, and a few months thereafter he was chosen first lieutenant. Until the Spanish War broke out in 1898, a period of fourteen years, Captain Runyon was practically in command of the company, and then succeeded Captain Williams, being commissioned captain of Company D, First regiment, New Jersey Volunteer Infantry, war with Spain, on April 27, 1898. On the return from that service he was commissioned captain of company D, First regiment, National Guard, December 7, 1899, which position he still holds.

Capt. Runyon is the fourth commandant of that company in sixty-three years, the oldest company in continuous service in the State, and with a record that is not equaled by any other organization in the United States. He commanded his company in the riots at Paterson in 1902 for ten days. Captain John H. Higginson was the first commandant of Company D. He served in that capacity for eleven years, and was succeeded by Captain Henry O. Beach, who served seven years. Captain Williams, the next commandant, served until 1898, when he was succeeded by Captain Runyon.

TO TEST TAX ACTS.

Issues Certiorari to Permit Review of Collateral Inheritance Tax Law.

On the application of the executors of half a dozen estates Chief Justice Gummere, of the Supreme Court, has just allowed a writ of certiorari to test the constitutionality of the New Jersey collateral inheritance tax acts.

The attack is directed at the parent act of 1904, with the idea that if this can be overthrown in the courts all subsequent legislation will be of no avail. If the act is set aside it will mean considerable embarrassment to the State, for large sums of money collected for the last five or six years will have to be returned.

The bringing of these suits reveals that the estate of the late Mrs. Reasoner, of Essex county, of which Governor Fort is the principal beneficiary, paid a collateral inheritance tax of $20,714.13, showing that it was worth in the aggregate more than $400,000.

MINE'S LICENSE REVOKED.

Farmers Objected to Noise of Traction Engine at Night.

State Motor Vehicle Commissioner J. B. R. Smith Saturday revoked the license of the traction engine belonging to the copper mine operatives north of Somerville. For some time, the engine, with two or three cars attached, has been making day and night trips through the town between the mines and the freight-house, and the people of Somerville and along the Pluckemin road made a protest against what they termed a nuisance. A petition was largely signed asking the Board of Freeholders to take some action in the matter.

The revoking of the license was the result.

DID HE FLY TO NEW YORK? TILLINGHAST CLAIMS SO

Those persons who heard the whirring and exhaust of a motor high in the air on Friday afternoon may be interested in the story which appeared in the New York papers this morning, and telegraphed from Worcester, Mass. The date noted in the dispatches seems to have been an error as the aeroplane mentioned was observed at Fire Island on Friday and according to one of the life-saving crew at that place was traveling toward New Jersey.

Wallace E. Tillinghast, a well-to-do citizen and vice president of a Worcester manufacturing company, declares he has secretly invented, built, and tested an aeroplane capable of carrying three passengers, and in which he says he has flown from his station near Worcester, to New York, thence to Boston, and then back, a distance of 300 miles, a speed of 120 miles an hour being maintained at various times.

The test was made on September 8, at night, according to Mr. Tillinghast, who says he circled the Statue of Liberty at an elevation of 4,000 feet, and was seen on the return trip by a coast guard on Long Island, when flying low, the fact being recorded in the newspapers at the time. When near Fire Island, Mr. Tillinghast declares, the machine sailed in midair for forty-five minutes at a height of 4,000 feet while two mechanics who were with him repaired a motor cylinder.

Mr. Tillinghast says the machine is a monoplane, weighing 1,550 pounds, with a spread of 72 feet, and equipped with a 120 horse power gasolene engine of special construction. He refuses to tell where the machine is at present, but says he will bring it to Worcester in February for a public demonstration.

SAYS SHE'S BEWITCHED; CAUSES TWO ARRESTS.

Felix Cobiac and Alphonso Vitto, young residents of Newark, are under arrest at Trenton, the former being held without bail, on the charge of sending threatening letters to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Marceon, of Trenton, and with attempting to kidnap the woman because she would not consent to elope with Cobiac for the second time. The woman also charges that Cobiac has her bewitched and that she will not be able to resist him until the "spell" is broken.

Mrs. Marceon declares that she eloped with Cobiac three years ago and lived with him a year in Pittsburg and Chicago. She finally returned to her husband. Since then, she declares, Cobiac has been writing her, threatening and imploring by turns. Friday night he and Vitto went to Trenton and went to the Marceon home. Marceon drove them off with a revolver and their arrest followed.

MARRIED A YEAR, IS KILLED IN BREAKER.

Some time Saturday morning George Lanning, 22 years old, a laborer at the Central Railroad cold storage plant at Hampton, lost his life. He fell in and passed through the coal breaker. Fragments of his body were found when the day shift began work. No one saw the accident. He was identified by his clothing. Portions of his body remain unfound. Cornorer Jacob K. Naughrigh, of High Bridge, was notified. He issued a burial permit.

Lanning had worked at the plant two weeks. He was a son of Mrs. David Jarrard, of Hampton. He married Miss Nellie Sayd r, of Hampton.

PAY FOR GUARDSMEN.

Bill Introduced Allowing 50 Cents for Attending Drill.

The recommendation in the annual report of Adjutant General Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., of New Jersey, that members of the National Guard be paid for attending drill's, with a view of reviving interest and increasing the muster of the State's military force, has been followed by the introduction in Congress by Representative Wiley, of this State, providing that the Federal government pay every enlisted man in the National Guard in all States the sum of 50 cents and every officer $1 for each drill attended.

This may tend to prevent the introduction of a similar bill in the coming session of the New Jersey Legislature.

Milk Dealers Combine.

The Somerville milk dealers have formed an association, with Orlando Van Arsdale as president and William J. Quick secretary. It was decided to raise the price of milk from 6 to 8 cents a quart in Somerville and vicinity, and buttermilk was raised to 5 cents a quart. These prices take effect immediately and hold until May 1.

Dr. Gifford Celebrates.

The Rev. Henry Hale Gifford, rector of Grace Episcopal church, Elizabeth, celebrated in a quiet way his twenty-first anniversary at the church yesterday. During his pastorate the church has grown to be one of the most influential in the city. Its property is valued at more than $150,000.

A WOMAN HATER.

"Dannie, dear," said Mame, "I wants youse to swear on de good book not to disgrace de family while yer down in Cuby."

"Wot," interrupted Dannie, "is youse givin' me, Mame? Does youse t'ink I'm goin' ter run from de bullets? Does youse t'ink"—

Dannie gave the promise with a laugh and was rewarded with a sisterly kiss. An hour later he started on his journey to the seat of war.

* * * * * * * *

During the first eventful hour of the battle at San Juan hill Dannie Dugan's life was twice saved by Cowpuncher Grimes.

"Grimsey, me boy, I'll never fergit youse for plunkin' dat last dago who had de bead on me w'en me back was turned," said Dannie. "Yer a dead white guy an' a bute at handlin' a gun."

Before that historic day was three hours older a vagrant Mauser bullet tunneled its way through Cowpuncher Grimes' left side and gave Dannie an opportunity to show his gratitude.

"I guess I've made my last gun play," he said to Dannie. "The best thing you can do, old pal, is to shake my flipper and let me cash in."

"Cash in!" growled Dannie. "I'm a-goin' ter carry yer back ter dem doctors an' have 'em putty up dat hole in yer liver. Youse too good a partner fer Dannie Dugan ter t'row down."

Grimes was in the hospital when Santiago surrendered, but a week later the surgeons decided that he was strong enough to make the journey to New York. Then it was that he sent for Dannie. When the latter materialized the wounded trooper raised his head from the pillow and put out his hand.

"Dannie," he said, "they're goin' to send us up to your town—to New York. You have been awful kind to me, and I want to square accounts somehow. I didn't know but what I might do something for you when I got back to God's country—tote a message up to your people or anything else."

"Grimesey, old pal," replied Dannie, "youse kin do me an awful good turn in old New York. You kin go ter my sister Mame an' try an' square me wid de family."

"Square you, Dannie?"

"Yes, square me. Youse see, it's like dis: Just before I left de folks Mame she gets me inter de front room, puts me flipper on de Bible, an' jollies me inter promisin' dat I wouldn't get stuck on any of dese Spanish goirls down here. Well, say, whin I gave Mame me promise I'd never seen de little Spanish goirl wot I found a-moanin' over her dead mudder out back of El Caney de udder mornin'. Dere ain't no use of chewin' de rag over it. De fact is dat I'm dead stuck on Maria, an' as soon as dis scrap's finished I'm goin' to take her to de church an' get spliced. But, hully gee! I can't rest easy till I knows dat t'ings have bin squared wid me sister Mame, an' youse be's de only guy as kin do it."

"Dannie, I reckon I'm what you easterners call a woman hater. I don't like the female breed, and it don't like me. I may make a mess of the job, but I'll do it. If I don't cash in before the transport gets to New York I'll see your sister and try and square it."

* * * * * * * *

There came a knock at the door of the Dugan flat, and Mame answered it. As she opened the door a tall, slender man in a faded uniform of blue staggered in and all but fell into her arms.

"For God's sake give me a glass of water, miss! I ran away from the hospital, and I'm nearly knocked out. If you are Dannie Dugan's sister Mame, read this letter. If"—

The wounded trooper never finished that speech. With a moan of pain he fell face downward on the floor. Mame called in Mickie and her mother. They laid their unconscious guest on the sofa, and while Mame bathed his fever heated brow with ice water her brother Mickie started on a still hunt for whisky.

"That man ain't goin' to die, mudder," exclaimed Mame. "See, he's comin' to his senses now. Let's read de letter dat our Dannie sent by him."

She broke the seal and recognized her brother's handwriting.

After Mame had read the letter she took a second look at the man on the lounge. She saw that he was young and fairly good looking. Then she remembered that Dannie in his letter had said something about a bullet hole in Grimesey's side.

"Mudder," she cried, "he may be a woman hater an' he mayn't have any manners, but he saved our Dannie from croakin', an' it's only fair dat we should keep him right here an' nurse him. Tell Mickie to go fer de doc."

"God knows," moaned Mrs. Dugan, "if de best we got ain't too poor fer him. An' only to t'ink de pity of such a handsome lad as dat a-gettin' bullet holes in his sides an' a-hatin' wimmen like a heathen."

* * * * * * * *

Some time later this letter was sent by special delivery to Trooper Dugan in Santiago:

Dear Dannie—I have seen Mame and squared things for you. I'm thinking of settling here in New York. Tired of cow punching. Besides, Mame won't stand for me moving west. Your mother and all the folks send love. The hole in my side has healed nicely, and Mame says—oh, by the way, Mame's going to marry me Sunday after next! Send us your blessing. Yours, GRIMES.

P. S.—Dannie, dear, I'm jist addin' a word to t'ank youse fer sendin' me de cowpuncher wot hated wimmen. Give me love to de heathen what yer married, fer I'm dat happy dat I fergive yer both. As ever. MAME.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN STATUE FOR NEWARK

A statue of Abraham Lincoln by Gutzon Borglum will be erected in the plaza before the Essex county courthouse in Newark. Executors of the estate of Amos H. Van Horn have received permission from the Newark Shade Tree Commission. Work has been begun by Mr. Borglum.

The statue will be in bronze. Lincoln will be shown seated upon a bench, bare-headed, and bending forward slightly, the whole attitude being one of weariness and relaxation. The Lincoln of the most troubled Civil War period will be shown.

The statue is the first of three provided for in the will of Amos H. Van Horn, who left a large estate. It will cost $25,000. He left a similar sum for a statue of Washington, and $100,000 for a soldiers' and sailors' monument. The other statues will not be erected until after the unveiling of that of Lincoln.

RUNS FROM REVOLVER.

Informing his wife that he had been attentive to another man's wife and that the husband was looking for him with a gun, Joel F. McPherson, of Trenton, is alleged to have deserted his wife on December 11, 1900. This fact was brough out in testimony when Mrs. McPherson sought a divorce, and Judge Rellstab as special Chancery master yesterday recommended that a decree be granted.

Mrs. McPherson testified that when her husband told her he was going to run away from the man with the gun she asked him to take her with him, but he refused. She has not heard from him since and the impression prevails that he is running yet.

WOMAN RISKS LIFE TO ELUDE THE POLICE.

Trying to escape from the police early yesterday morning at Elizabeth, Miss Mary McNamara, thirty years old, jumped from a third story window to the sidewalk. She suffered a broken arm and a few slight bruises.

The police, who saw the woman jump, ran down stairs expecting to find her dead. She was conscious and asked to be taken to the Elizabeth General Hospital, where she is at present.

Special officers employed as watchmen and for other guard duty at Atlantic City, will be disarmed under orders of Mayor Stoy, who has declared that many of the men are unfit to handle weapons.

Vincenzo Garcerole, of 612 Grand street, Jersey City, a storekeeper, has asked the police to protect him and his family from the threatened attack of a "Black Hand" gang, which in a letter has demanded $1,000.

Dr. John D. O'Brien, of St. Paul, Minn., supreme dictator, attended a meeting of Camden Lodge, No. 111, Order of the Moose, Saturday night. Dr. O'Brien is making his official Eastern trip among the different lodges of the order.

Several landowners in the vicinity of Woodbury have given notice that they forbid the cutting of Christmas trees on their lands. There is a fine of $100 for this phase of trespass. Last year a number of fine trees were stolen roots and all, from Green cemetery.

Once acquitted of assaulting his wife and twice arrested on the same charge, Cornelius Pace, of Beverley, was liberated from jail Friday when Justice of the Peace Stevenson was finally convinced an error had been made in locking up the accused man a second time.

As has been their custom, Colonel and Mrs. John A. Kunkle, who reside at "Stony Brook Lodge," one of the prettiest residences in Hopewell Township, will, Christmas morning, distribute a large box of chocolate candy and Florida oranges to every child in the borough under the age of twelve years.

Joseph Kingston was knocked down by an automobile on Main street, Paterson, Friday night. The automobile which was numbered 5,763 N. J., continued without stopping. Kingston was carried into Smith's drug store and restoratives were administered. Later he was taken home. Patrolman Eyres made a report of the accident at headquarters.

While at work in his father's saw mill, on the Port Elizabeth pike, Howard Esbill had one of his fingers cut so badly by a circular saw that it hung by a mere thread. Having a fellow workman bind the finger tightly, the lad pluckily mounted a bicycle and hurried to the office of Dr. Ware, in Millville, and the doctor sewed the finger back in place.

Lewis Branson, of New Egypt, had the forefinger of his left hand amputated Friday and fears have been expressed by the physicians that the whole hand may have to be sacrificed as a result of a wound inflicted nearly three months ago by a catfish as Branson was removing it from the hook. An attempt by Lucius Pierce, a prisoner in the Cumberland county jail, to commit suicide Thursday night, was frustrated by Charles Berry, a "trusty," who cut him down just in time to save the prisoner's life. He was indignant at his rescuer and declares that he will die before he will go back to State prison.

The petition sets forth that King was a candidate for Township Committee, and Lincoln Parker was his Republican opponent. The Democratic ticket had a vacancy under the heading of constable. The Chorus Lady

By JAMES FORBES

Novelized From Forbes' Play of the Same Name by JOHN W. HARDING

Copyright, 1908, by G. W. Dillingham Company.

CHAPTER VII.

"PLEASE don't talk like that," pleaded Nora.

"Pshaw! Don't be silly!"

"S-sh!" warned Nora, placing her finger to her lips. "Here comes Patsy!"

She went out.

This time it really was her sister. She could be heard in heated altercation with the stage manager in the corridor.

"Don't tell me to get a move on. I'm not your slave," she was saying. "No, that won't be about all from me. You can take my two weeks' notice now. If you can get any lady to lead this chorus better'n me, get 'em, an' get 'em quick. Do I mean it? Sure I do. I don't take nothin' from nobody, see?"

"That's a good bluff," sneered Simpson as Patsy flung into the room, followed by a number of the other girls.

"You ought to be wise to bluffs. You know a few," retorted Patsy.

"Might 'a' just stepped out of a suit case," added Evelyn.

"Come at me light, girls," remonstrated Patsy. "Say, are you pipin' me veil?" she went on, unpinning that useful and ornamental adjunct of her headdress. "Ain't it a Susie Smitherino? I don't think this green's at all loud, do you?"

The girls averred that they did not, and Inez remarked:

"I never seen you look swellier. Have you, Simpson?"

"O'Brien's a tremendously smart dresser," was the ironical rejoinder of that person as she sat herself gracefully on a chair.

"Oh, Patsy, them's new furs," exclaimed Milly.

Simpson raised her eyebrows.

"Isn't it rather late for furs?" she wanted to know.

"Milly," explained Patsy, "I struck a clearin' sale of furs today. Look at 'em—cravat an' cushion muff, four ninety-six. Best Adirondack sable."

Simpson laughed aloud.

"Say, are you passin' me the giggle?" asked Patsy, pausing just long enough in the fascinating and absorbing operation of exhibiting the bargains to note her enemy's unseemly mirth. "Talkin' of sales," she resumed, "ain't that a peach coat, though? Two sixty-eight, silk lined. Feel that linin'."

"Try it on, Simpson, it might look good on you," invited Lou, fingering the lining to judge as to the quality of the silk.

"I can't wear ready made clothing," she declared, turning up her nose.

"You can't wear ready made clothing!" echoed Patsy. "Girls, ain't that a shame! Well, a perfect figure certainly saves money."

She unhooked her skirt and stood revealed in an underskirt of glaring tartan.

"Three forty-three," Patsy confided. "One of them invisible plaids. Maybe it wouldn't put Fift' avenoo on the blink."

She hung up her hat and skirt and took down a worn, flimsy affair of flannelette with wide sleeves. She turned it over and over before putting it on and said severely, with a wink at the girls:

"Simpson, you've been wearin' my kimono!"

Simpson did not deign to reply.

"Girls," went on the lively chorus leader, who was in high spirits after her day's shopping, "I seen some waists today that was real beauts—all over lace, real lace. An' how much d'yer think? Three dollars. I had to pass 'em up, though. After I bought these yellow kicks me pocketbook looked like a disaster."

She held up one foot that they might see her new tan shoes.

"You certainly was good to yourself," observed Inez.

"I've been savin' on car fare an' lunches," explained Patsy. "I just said it was up to me to refurnish from cellar to dome."

At this juncture a very neat and very black maid entered and handed a number of letters to Simpson, whose servant she was.

"People writing for autographs," drawled Simpson. "Mon Dieu, what a bore! Here, Blanche, take my coat."

"How d'you like me Fritzi Scheffs?" continued Patsy, removing the hirsute adornments from her head and ignoring the show girl. "Take it from me, them puffs is goin' to be the dead swell srticle. An' such a bargain! When I tell you the price you'll pass away. Just flash your glims on them curls—feel 'em—real hair! I got the puffs, the bunch of curls an' the bayrette for $1.75 from a lady friend at the Casino. She's lettin' her hair go back to brown this season."

Inez suddenly recollected that she had brought up a letter for her. Patsy took it and flopped limply into her chair.

"Guys writin' for autygraphs," she drawled. "Mon Doo, what a bore!"

Milly caught sight of the letter lying on the toilet table. Her curiosity got the better of her discretion.

"Who's your letter from, Patsy? Is it your gentleman friend you told me about—you know, Dan?"

Patsy, her mind diverted by her bout with the show girl, had forgotten all about the letter.

"Sure," she replied, tearing it open. "He writes me every day, sometimes twicet."

She gave a start, and her eye lighted up with glad excitement as she perused the note.

"He's got a surprise for me—somethin' swell, Milly," she said. "He's goin' to be out in front tonight. Fancy that! I must go an' tell Nora."

"Fifteen minutes! Fifteen minutes! Fifteen minutes!" shouted the call boy outside.

"Gee! I must get to work," ejaculated Patsy, changing her mind. "Evelyn, gimme me dress, will you? Girls," she went on as she slipped into a decollete costume of white satin trimmed with beads of pearls and threads of silver, "who d'you think I seen today? Leslie Carter. She was buyin' spangles. I was close to her an' rubbered to beat the band. Don't you just love Carter? Honest, I think that woman's got the most emotional hair in this business."

"I've seen her in everything she plays," said Evelyn.

"So have I. You know Carter's a whole lot on my style," affirmed Patsy. "I'm really cut out to be one of them emotional all over the place actresses."

Evelyn intimated that she would not care what the role might be if she could only wear pale blue tights.

"I'm just wasted in skirts," she declared.

Patsy dissented.

"Nix for the tights gag. Not that I couldn't wear 'em, Simpson," she said as that lady sniggered. "I hate to talk about figures, but I could make the Venus de Milo look like May Irwin. I'm only in musical comedy to learn to be graceful. I bet I could get a backer to star me if I could get the play; but, gee, it's hard to get a good tragic play! Of course I could get one from Charlie Frohman, but I don't want to take it away from Maude Adams or Ethel Barrymore. I can always dance for my livin'."

"You're a hit with yourself, ain't you?" sneered Simpson, who never could see a joke unless it was accompanied by a diagram.

"Girls, I'm no knocker, an' you never hear me leadin' no anvil chorus," retorted Patsy, "but if certain parties was where they belong they'd be makin' beds."

"Overture! Overture!" came the warning call.

There was a general exodus, and Simpson and Patsy remained alone. The latter was about to follow the others when there was the sound of a scuffle outside, and Nora's voice was heard raised in entreaty:

"Oh, don't—stop, please stop!"

Before Patsy could reach the door Nora, greatly agitated, came into the room.

"What is it, honey lamb?" inquired Patsy.

"That old tenor tried to kiss me!" panted the girl.

Patsy ran out and shouted after the man:

"Say, you beast—yes, you—you leave my sister alone! D'you hear?"

As she re-entered, still anathematizing the tenor, Simpson rose belligerently.

"You're speaking about a friend of mine," she said.

"Well," returned Patsy, "if you want to associate with him that's your affair, but he can't get busy around my sister."

"How dare you!" she hissed, white with rage.

"Oh, fade away, Simpson—fade quick!" ordered Patsy, who, roused at the actions of the tenor, was in no humor to waste words upon her.

"I suppose you're insinuating your sister's so much better than I am?" she said.

"Well, I should hope so," replied the unsuspecting Patsy, with emphasis.

"Your sister's so much better than I am—that's the best laff I've had this season!"

"Oh, Miss Simpson"— Nora began to plead.

"Don't Miss Simpson me," she almost screamed. "I'm sick of your giving yourself airs and pretending to be so good and virtuous. You're a little sneak. Do you think I'm going to put up with your sister's impudence and me knowing what I do about you?"

Patsy went pale.

"What do you mean?" she demanded.

"What do I mean? Ask her about her friend Crawford!"

"Crawford!"

"Yes, your sweet little sister, who's too good to associate with me, is carrying on with Dick Crawford, going out to lunch with him, making dates after the show, playing his tips. We're all playing the tips he gives her."

"It's a lie!"

The words came hoarsely, raucously, as though she were choking.

"Ask any of the girls. Look at her, and then tell me it's a lie."

Patsy turned to Nora. The girl's face was buried in her hands, and she burst out sobbing.

"Say it's a lie, Nora, honey lamb, say it's a lie," entreated Patsy wildly.

Nora did not answer.

Simpson, her triumph complete, swept toward the door. As she went out she stopped for a moment to gloat over her stricken foe and discharged this Parthian shot:

"You'd better look at home, Miss Patsy O'Brien, before you cast slurs on other people's characters."

BOYS' BASKETBALL RESULTS AT Y. M. C. A.

Saturday afternoon there were two good basketball games at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. In the first one, the Boys' department of the association defeated Stillman School by a score of 14 to 9. The line-up:

Boys' Department—Walker, Taylor, forwards; Lewis, centre; Dunning, Love, Boice, Zarega, guards.

Stillman School—Buckle, Coyle, forwards; Linke, centre; Newell, Smith, Cumings, guards.

In the second game, the Y. M. C. A. Juniors defeated Hope chapel Juniors by a score of 24 to 22. The lineup:

Y. M. C. A. Juniors—Manley, Love, McNames, Ball, forwards; Peacock, centre; Goldsmith, Blair, Dimon, guards.

Hope Chapel Juniors—T. Herron, J. Herron, forwards; Leighs, centre; Snyder, Brown, guards.

Y. M. C. A. FIVE DEFEATED BY BROOKLYN, E.D. TEAM

The Y. M. C. A. basketball team went down to defeat on the local court, Saturday night, when the Brooklyn, Eastern Division, association five, was victorious by a score of 24 to 19. The game was a lively one from start to finish and was marked by considerable rough play. In the second half the score was a tie 19 to 19 and remained so for five minutes, when Fisher made two goals in quick succession, which with a point allowed on a foul gave the Brooklyns the game, 24 to 19. There was lots of rooting throughout this game. The lineup:

Y. M. C. A.—Denton Collier, forwards; Cahoone, centre; Linke, Whitford, Aaholm, guards. Brooklyn—Fisher, Wortman, J. Finger, forwards; Malone, centre; Harris, T. Finger, guards.

Between the halves of the above game, P. H. S. met the association second team and won out by a score of 22 to 13. This was also closely contested and was marked by clever playing. The lineup:

P. H. S.—Doane, Morris, forwards; Lidgate, centre; Clark, Overton, Briston, guards. Y. M. C. A. 2d—Templin, Bentley, forwards; Hoagland, centre; Miner, Mackey, guards.

CITY NATIONAL BANK

JERSEY DEMOCRATS CONFER AT TRENTON

More than 150 Democrats, including James E. Martine and LeRoy J. Ellis, of this city, took part in a conference held at Trenton, Saturday, when several hours were devoted to the discussion of the battle for the United States Senatorship, for the election of Congressman and for the Governorship to be fought for next year. A set of resolutions proposed as a State Democratic platform, was discussed at some length, and with Jeffersonian conservatism laid over for consideration until the next State conference to be called at an early date.

It was when the committee on resolutions made its report that the flow of oratory started. The resolutions were read to the conference by Col. Price, of Essex, and then a motion was made for their adoption. Mr. Ellis opposed immediate action and said that there were some things in the resolutions that did not meet with his approval.

Mr. Ellis opposed the direct vote for United States Senators and that plank pertaining to railroads, and he wanted the resolutions deferred. Both of these measures were favored by James E. Martine, in fact by a majority of those attending the conference. Those present represented every county in the State and it was the general opinion that the conference will be productive of much good. In connection with the conference the Democrats enjoyed a banquet. President Woodrow Wilson, who was invited to be one of the speakers, found it impossible to attend. Chairman Lippencott, of the auxiliary State committee, was toastmaster. Congressman Hughes and State Senator Silzer were among the speakers.

SCHOOL'S DIRECTORS HEAR DR. SCHAUFFLER

Dr. William G. Schauffler, member of the State Board of Education, lectured before the Somerset County Board of Education on Saturday on the medical examination of children in the public schools. Dr Schauffler told in detail the work done under his supervision during the past few months and made suggestions which will be found distinctly valuable to other boards.

Manual training has been substituted in several cases for mental training, where, in the opinion of the board, the mental processes of the pupil's brain have been abnormally slow. And this practice has proved specially beneficial where backward pupils have failed to grasp their lessons.

Dr. Schauffler said that pupils of the second, third and fourth grades had been immensely benefitted by the manual training and had showed a decided advancement in practical ideas notwithstanding that they had been very backward in their studies.

Another thing of much importance was the use of the spoon in examinations of the pupils' throats. It is quite possible, he says, to use one of the wooden paddles used in mixing foods, provided, of course, that the same paddle be not used more than once. He suggested the giving of two fifty-minute periods each week for backward pupils in the manual training department of the public schools and urged the necessity for this work.

Mr. RaRndolph to Lecture.

L. V. F. Randolph will deliver a lecture before the Men's Club of the First Baptist church tonight, on the subject, "From Jerusalem to Damascus and Baal-Bek," and it promises to be of exceptional interest. This will be the first meeting of the club this season and will be for men only. President B. J. Phelps will preside and have something of interest to say to the members. Refreshments will be served during a social hour to follow the meeting.

Lucky to the Last.

Cook—"Taylor was always a fortunate man, but doesn't it seem wonderful that his luck should stay with him to the very last?"

Raleigh—"How was that?"

Cook—"He was operated on for the removal of a pearl which he had accidently swallowed while eating oysters, and when the pearl was examined it was found to be valuable enough to pay for both the operation and the funeral.—Exchange.

Isaac S. Dayton, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel B. Dayton, died yesterday at his home, 35 Harrison avenue, North Plainfield, in his sixty-ninth year. The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his late residence, and the interment will be Samptown cemetery.

New Way to Serve Salad.

The hostess at a recent bridge served salad in a novel way. Eclairs, without icing, had chicken salad in place of the customary cream filling. Certainly, when this plan is followed, the serving of salad is a simple matter.

THE KING'S ORDER.

It Was Obeyed, and Yet the Monarch Was Not Happy.

When King Gustavus III. of Sweden was in Paris he was visited by a deputation of the Sorbonne. That learned body congratulated the king on the happy fortune which had given him so great a man as Scheele, the discoverer of magnesium, as his subject and fellow countryman.

The king, who took small interest in the progress of science, felt somewhat ashamed that he should be so ignorant as never even to have heard of the renowned chemist. He dispatched a courier at once to Sweden with the laconic order, "Scheele is to be immediately raised to the dignity and title of a count."

"His majesty must be obeyed," said the prime minister as he read the order, "but who in the world is Scheele?" A secretary was told to make inquiries. He came back to the premier with very full information. "Scheele is a good sort of fellow," said he, "a lieutenant in the artillery, a capital shot and a first rate hand at billiards." The next day the lieutenant became a count, and the illustrious scholar and scientist remained a simple burgher.

The error was not discovered until the king returned home. His majesty was indignant. "You must all be fools," he exclaimed, "not to know who Scheele is!"—Argonaut.

THE CRISIS.

A Loving Mother Guides Her Girl at the Fateful Moment.

"Your whole future life depends upon it."

The mother, her face tinged with sympathy which we must ever feel in the presence of an immaturity that is hesitating between right and wrong, laid her hand over that of her beautiful daughter.

"Yes, dear," she continued, "into every life there comes at one time or another a supreme temptation. If the crisis is passed all is safe, but if you yield at the fatal moment you cannot retrace your steps. You are then committed to a fatal policy."

"But, mother, father says he cannot afford it."

"Exactly. Fathers from time immemorial have always said that. It is their way of imposing on youth and innocence. Go forth at once and buy the gown. Do not forget that I am with you, that I will stand back of you with all the feeble strength I can command."

So saying, the proud woman folded into her arms the weak creature, who even then, if it had not been for her timely rescue, would have been betrayed into a humiliating and shameful surrender.—Success Magazine.

A Stage Manager's Ruse.

The house bill of the Imperial theater of La Roche-sur-Yon announced for the evening performance "La Tour de Nesle," a five act melodrama, and "La Soeur de Jocrisse," a one act farce. The drama had been disposed of, but the low comedian was missing and could not be found. What was to be done? A luminous idea finally entered the manager's mind. The orchestra played an overture, then another, then a third, then a polka and finally a quadrille. At last, when the audience had grown quite obstreperous, the stage manager appeared. He addressed the three conventional bows to the spectators and said: "Ladies and gentlemen, you are anxious, I know, to listen to 'La Soeur de Jocrisse.' The piece has just been acted, but through an unaccountable oversight on the part of the stage hands they forgot to raise the curtain."

Saw It In a Dream.

For many years ivory manufacturers were trying to devise a machine for turning out a billiard ball as nearly perfect as possible and at the same time avoiding waste. Among those who strove to perfect such a machine was Mr. John Carter of the firm of John Carter & Son, well known ivory manufacturers. One night, after Mr. Carter had been striving to solve the problem for some time, he suddenly awoke his wife by shouting out, "I have got it," and rushed downstairs into his study, where he made a drawing of the last knife for the want of which he had been so long waiting in order to complete his machine. It appears that he had fallen asleep and dreamed about the machine, and in the dream the solution of the difficulty was revealed to him.—London Answers.

Still There.

Peckham (meeting an old friend)—Why, Dingley, is this you? I haven't seen you for ten years. How are you anyhow? Dingley—Oh, I'm just like I used to be. By the way, Peckham, how's your wife? You used to say you had the boss girl when you were single. Peckham (sadly)—She's still boss.—Life.

A Bunch of Kicks.

"The world wipes its feet on me," said the doormat.

"And every hand is against me," said the push button.—Kansas City Star.

"I am continually being sat on," complained the soft cushion.

"And I get beaten hard for the lightest thing," the egg groaned.—Boston Transcript.

A Gastronomic Feat.

"Ah, I've seen some rough times, sir," said an old salt. "Once we were wrecked and we'd eaten all our provisions. Then we ate our belts, and then the ship turned turtle, and we ate her too!"

There can be no profit if the outlay exceeds it.—Plautus.

Chalmers-Detroit "30's" Won Every Event in their Class on Atlanta Speedway

During a week's racing on the new two mile Atlanta Motor Track, the Chalmers Detroit "30's", driven by Matson and Knipper, were never defeated in their class.

Think of going out day after day—the same two stock cars—and winning every race offered—from four to 100 miles.

Here is another remarkable fact: In every race which both "30's" were entered they won second place as well as first. BOTH "30's" defeated every other car of their class. They were always together neck and neck, at the finish.

Neither of them was out of commission at any time. The "30's" also won second place three times racing in the bigger car class—the only three races were entered in this class.

During the whole distance covered in all these races the "30's" averaged 60 miles an hour. A mile a minute for every minute they were running on the track.

There are no other cars in the world at any price with such records for consistency.

Members of the technical committee of the A. A. A. and Editors of the Automobile Trade Journals who keep careful records of automobile contests, both in America and Europe, are authority for the statement that the Chalmers Detroit "30's" hold the world's records for consistent performance.

Their records show that the Chalmers Detroit "30's" has won more events in proportion to the total number entered than any other car in the world.

The Chalmers Detroit "30's" sell for $1,500, and it is thoroughly proven to be the best car in the world for the price.

Our allotment is being sold fast, and we strongly advise you to investigate and place your order early.

WHITE PLAGUE CRUSADE

Distinguished Men to Be Heard at Big Mass Meeting Tonight.

THE PUBLIC IS INVITED.

Local Tuberculosis Fighters Announce Great Program for Free Mass Meeting at P. H. S.

Men distinguished for their efforts to relieve the sufferings of their fellow men and particularly for their zeal in the campaign against the White Plague will be heard at a mass meeting to be held tonight at the Plainfield High School auditorium under the auspices of the Plainfield Society for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis. The public is cordially invited to the meeting which is open to all. The speakers will include Dr. A. Augustus Knopf, Dr. James Alexander Miller, Homer Folks and Bishop McFaul.

Dr. S. Augustus Knopf, who will address the meeting, is connected with the New York Post-Graduate Medical School, the Clinic for Pulmonary Diseases of the Health Department of the city of New York, the Riverside Sanatorium for Consumptives and the National Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis. Born of poor parents in Germany, much against their wishes and without aid from them, he made his way, obtained an education and studied medicine, both in Germany and in Paris. He has devoted himself to the fight to stamp out tuberculosis, and his book, entitled "Tuberculosis a Preventable and Curable Disease," published this year, sets forth very clearly the modern methods for the solution of the problem.

Another speaker will be Dr. James Alexander Miller, who is a director of the tuberculosis clinic, Bellevue Hospital, president of the Association of Tuberculosis Clinics, New York city; attending physician Seton Hospital, for Tuberculosis; consulting physician Sprain Ridge Sanatorium, Yonkers, N. Y.; admitting physician to Trudeau and Ray Brook Sanatoria in the Adirondacks.

Homer Folks, secretary of the New York State Charities Aid Association and former Commissioner of Charities of New York city, will speak about legislative attempts to control and treat tuberculosis, upon which subject he is an authority.

Rt. Rev. Dr. James McFaul, bishop of Trenton, will also address the meeting somewhat from the social aspect of the now world-wide movement against tuberculosis, or rather against the germ which carries it. He is chairman of the State Tuberculosis Commission.

Money is still urgently needed by the society, and while more than 150 new members have been lately enrolled it is hoped that residents will continue to respond to our call for aid, and give not only their money but evince a practical interest in our work. James P. Murray, 737 Watchung avenue, is the treasurer of the society and will acknowledge all contributions.

ALESSI MURDER CASE GOING TO JURY TODAY

The State closed its case in the trial of Herbert Alessi, the young Italian nobleman, charged with the murder of Collegero Diana, yesterday afternoon and the defense concluded its side of the case this morning. A plea of justification was entered by the defendant's counsel, Samuel Schleimer. The lawyers will sum up this afternoon and it is likely that the case will go to the jury toward night.

Mrs. Josephine Romano, over whom the shooting is said to have occurred, was an interested spectator. It is understood that she will marry the defendant immediately after the trial if he is freed. She has been a widow for some time. Father Alessi, a cousin of the defendant, is also a spectator at the trial. An uncle of Diana's was also shot on the evening of the affray and died soon after. Alessi will be tried for this shooting as soon as the first trial is completed.

V. M. W. SUYDAM'S GIFT TO EAST END CHURCH

The Netherwood Reformed church has just received a silver individual communion service set, comprising eighty glasses and two plates, from V. M. W. Suydam, vice-president of the First National Bank, of New Brunswick, and also a communion table, the gift of Mr. Suydam in memory of his wife, who died last spring.

Wednesday evening, January 5, has been fixed as the time when the regular organization of the church, from a chapel, will be effected, and the Classis of Newark will meet here in special session at that time for the purpose.

Under the direction of the officers of the church a boys' club has been organized with a membership of eighteen. Val Steenson is the president and meetings will be held weekly.

TWO SERVICES AT FUNERAL OF MRS. JOSEPHINE MANTZ.

The funeral services for Mrs. Josephine Mantz, who died last Friday, were held yesterday at noon at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Philipine Lederer, West Front street, and later at the Reformed church in Coontown, where Rev. George Bowers officiated. The interment was in the church cemetery.

The noon service at Mrs. Lederers' home was conducted by Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church and was largely attended. Many handsome floral tributes were received from relatives and friends of Mrs. Mantz, and Rev. Mr. Broek spoke in eulogistic terms of the high Christian character of Mrs. Mantz who had endeared herself to many by her kindly and sympathetic nature.

Mrs. Mantz's six sons, Martin, Theodore, George, Simon, Andrew and John were the pall bearers.

Dr. Jacob G. Lipman to Talk.

Dr. Jacob G. Lipman, soil chemist State Agricultural College, at New Brunswick, will give a talk before the Union County Board of Agriculture Thursday afternoon, at 2 o'clock in room 12, Court House, Elizabeth, on "Soil Improvement and Preparation." This is the first of a series of lectures to be given this winter under the auspices of the State and County Board of Agriculture and with the co-operation of Dr. J. J. Savitz, county superintendent of schools.

Mr. Randolph's Lecture Postponed.

After a conference among the officers of the Men's Club of the First Baptist church early in the evening, and a conference with L. V. F. Randolph, it was decided to postpone the talk of the latter for last night on the topic of "From Jerusalem to Damascus and Baal-Bek," owing to the severe storm. Mr. Randolph was prepared to give his talk, but the club is anxious that a large number of people have the opportunity to hear this interesting speaker, and decided to arrange another date to be announced later.

Entertained Men's Club.

Mr. and Mrs. William M Stillman, of West Seventh street, entertained the Men's club of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, at their home, last night. Owing to the severe storm the attendance was not as large as expected. The evening was given up entirely to sociability, a feature being an informal program of music. Refreshments were served.

Received 1910 Chalmers Cars.

George A. Chapman, of Stelle avenue, and C. W. Low, of Roselle, have just received their 1910 Chalmers-Detroit cars purchased from Thompson Auto Co. ***

ASK NEW JERSEY TO FIGHT FOREST FIRES

New Jersey's Forest Park Reservation Commission has made its report to Governor Fort and starts out with saying that another year of drought has convinced the commission that practical forestry is impracticable until the fires are under control. "It is useless to advocate forest planting or to urge the care of woodlands so long as no assurance can be given that the venture and the investment will not go up in smoke," says the commission.

During the last year there have been 608 forest fires, burning over 91,340 acres, at a loss of $149,219. The cost of the fire service for the year was $13,466. In 1908 there were 533 fires, consuming 52,978 acres of woodland, at a cost of $64,534.

In advocating better fire service, the commission says that the mere presence of individuals' lands should make no difference to the State, as such properties are subject to taxation, and fires destroy ratable values. The commission says its aim will be to improve the value of the forests now existing; and with better fire service it is thought the ratables from this source will be increased from $2,000,000 to $20,000,000 in a few years.

In showing that the present fire service is valuable, crude though it may be, the commission calls attention to the fact that, while there were 608 fires reported during the drought this year, 11 per cent. burned over less than 1 acre, 25 per cent. burned over less than 10 acres, 85 per cent. less than 100 acres; 98 per cent., less than 100 acres, while only 2 per cent. burned over 1,000 acres and more.

20TH CENTURY WRECK; 3 DEAD; 18 INJURED

Three men are dead, seven persons are lying seriously injured in St. Vincent's Hospital at Erie, Pa., though none is believed to be fatally hurt, and eleven more were taken to Buffalo suffering from minor hurts, as a result of a rear-end collision between the secon section of the Twentieth Century Limited and the Chicago to Boston special, known as No. 10, on the Lake Shore road near North East, six miles east of Erie, last night.

The wreck occurred during a raging snowstorm. All of the dead and injured were passengers on the Boston train.

ROMAN CATHOLIC PRIEST AFTER P. S. SUPERINTENDENT

Father Reilly, of St. Henry's Roman Catholic church, yesterday made a sensational attack upon John W. Carr, superintendent of schools of Bayonne, saying that Professor Carr was a man unfit to be at the head of the schools. The trouble thus started may lead to a war between the head of the city schools and the Catholic church.

The attack followed a speech by Professor Carr, in which it was stated that the only person who dared undertake the work of transforming foreigners into good American citizens were the public school treachers. "What about the parochial schools?" asked Father Reilly. "There are three thousand children in the parochial schools in Bayonne. Are we teaching young children to be enemies to their flag and country?"

Father Reilly characterized the entire address of Professor Carr as a falsehood and an insult to the intelligence of the people. "It is filled with inaccuracies," he said. Professor Carr is preparing an answer to Father Reilly.

"A Broken Idol" Coming.

"A Broken Idol," will be presented at the Plainfield theatre. Saturday afternoon and night, after a successful run at the Herald Square theatre, New York and long runs at the Whitney theatre, Chicago, and Tremont theatre, Boston. It is a clean, classy clever play and one of the big features is the mysterious balloon effect. There will be a big chorus of fifty girls.

Wanted a Good Dog.

George Richards, of Westfield, telephoned to Chief Kiely this morning that his hen roost had been robbed last night and thirty valuable fowls taken. Mr. Richards was anxious to secure the services of a dog which could follow the scent of his lost birds and track the thief. Unhappily the Chief knows of no dog equal to the task.

Musical and Tea Postponed.

The musical and tea that was to have been held last night at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Anderson, of 405 West Fourth street, has been postponed till tomorrow night.

DE FOREST ON "CHARITY"

President of Sage Foundation Explains Purpose of Endowment.

HE DISCUSSES ITS PHASES.

What Is Being Done for Benefit of Mankind With Millions Given by Widow of Financier.

Despite the rain and in the face of a wind which blew at an awful rate, a large number of members of the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church gathered in the chapel of that church last night to listen to an informal talk on "Some Phases of The Work of Organized Charity" given by Robert W. DeForest, president of the Sage Foundation.

Mr. De Forest's talk embraced all sides of the question from intermittent and spasmodic efforts at charitable work to the kind which brings the very best results, and made it quite clear that organization necessary in the distribution of funds to the needy. Mr. De Forest referring to the weather said that he remembered that the night on which Sir J. Purdon Clark was the guest of the club last year he met with the same kind of weather, and he wondered if the women were responsible for the inclemency, but he rather thought that those who had braved the storm were entitled to know something of what his society is doing and how they are doing it.

The Sage Foundation aims to help the Anti-Tuberculosis Society, and is using its efforts in social betterments, tenement improvements, suburban tenement improvements and childrens' farm gardens, all of which have met with the distinct approval of the commission which has the fund in charge.

Mr. De Forest said that the results obtained from organized philanthropy during the past twenty-five years have been extraordinary. We may think, he said, that we have seen all the modern illustrations of progress, but the greatest advance of all has been made in practical philanthropy and this has been made possible through the efforts of individuals, and the combined work of all the philanthropic societies throughout the country.

Making the best of one's opportunities is what brings success. So, under whatever name charity is organized it accomplishes the good for which it was formed.

The Anti-Tuberculosis Society is an outgrowth of the Charity Organization Society, and the improvements in the tenement house laws are due to the work of the same society. The Sage Foundation is helping along the same lines and is working to improve social conditions and living among the poor. When the Sage Fund was founded appeals from colleges, churches and charities nearly overwhelmed the committee who have it in charge, and as the objects of the fund are not to give huge lumps of money away indiscriminately they had to be refused.

However, all these fields are measurably covered by private donations and no one should feel aggrieved. The Sage Foundation has been and is behind the movement against tuberculosis in various parts of the country and is one of the greatest of all the charitable propaganda. It is not looking for glorification nor credit, but for results, and through this fund the national playground committee, of which Luther Gulick is the head, is accomplishing wonderful results.

Two large tracts of land have been purchased on Long Island, where clerks with incomes of from $1,200 to $2,500 per year may own their homes and workmen whose earnings are more modest can also enjoy home life with comparative comfort. The amount invested in this work may not be quoted, neither would it do to tell of other figures given out by the speaker, but it may be said that the scope of the operations of the Sage Foundation has practically no limit and its influence will be felt for many years to come. Books are being published by the committee which give the details of the work already accomplished and more will be issued as they are required.

Mr. De Forest told many interesting things of the recent disasters in this country in which the aid of the Foundation had been material and prompt, notably the Cherry, Ill., coal mine horror and the Key West, Fla., hurricane, in both of which the loss of life and property were great. At the conclusion of his talk Mr. De Forest took his place among the audience and answered questions propounded by members of the club, who undoubtedly are greatly interested in charitable work in this city and elsewhere.

HOPES ALIBI WILL PROVE HE DIDN'T STEAL BLANKET

Perhaps there is some doubt as to who stole a blanket from the back of a horse on last Thursday night on West Third street, but there is no doubt as to the disappearance of the blanket. William Smith, a colored man, living at 560 West Second street, has been accused of the theft and because of the identification made by Isaac White, Smith was held under $50 bonds to await the action of the grand jury by City Judge Runyon this morning.

White claims that he saw Smith making off with the blanket under his arm at about half past six Thursday evening, while Smith claims that he was in the house at that time having been to the grocery store accompanied by his little daughter. The blanket was the property of A. E. Hoagland, an expressman, of Park avenue, and it has not been recovered. White was positive in his identification and Smith was equally positive that he was not the thief.

The story of the theft of the blanket, which was a brand new one, is interesting. One Bundy, who drives one of Mr. Hoagland's express wagons, was in Clark's saloon, on West Fourth street, when the blanket vanished. It looks as though that here is the secret of the trouble. If he had been attending to his business instead of helping to fill the coffers of the saloon keeper the blanket would have remained on his horse's back.

On the other hand Smith has a police record. He was convicted of stealing some tools from the shop of Jack Horner, of Somerset street, last July, and this he explained on the ground of intoxication Anyway Judge Runyon regarded the circumstances so suspicious that he held Smith to await the action of the grand jury.

DUNELLEN'S GRIEVANCE AGAINST TROLLEY CO.

It is barely possible that the citizens of Dunellen will arise in their wrath and demand that the Public Service Railway stop their cars where the passenger will not be precipitated into the mud in the middle of the street, or take the matter to the Council for adjudication. Recently, it is said, the cars have been stopped with the rear end east or west of the crossing and passengers, especially women and children have been compelled to alight from the rear platform into the mud ankle deep.

The story told yesterday afternoon by a passenger who had his wife and baby on the car seems to be the limit. Arrived at the corner of Washington avenue and North avenue, the car was stopped as indicated above so that the man, his wife, several bundles, a raised umbrella, and a baby had to take a chance with the mud and dripping water, with the result of wet feet and stockings for the man and his wife and a serious disturbance in atmospheric conditions owing to the man's profanity.

The conductor of the car informed an inquirer, that the orders were to stop the car on the near side of the crossing owing to possible danger of collisions at this particular point. Anyway the Dunellen people don't like the new order of things and will ask the Common Council to seek the remedy.

BOOZE FIGHTERS' SCRAP LANDS THEM IN COURT.

The kind and quality of the booze purchased by them was in the main responsible for the fight between John Kelly and James Fee last night in Clark's saloon on West Fourth street. Kelly, who has been refused drinks in this particular place because of his quarrelsome disposition when under the influence of liquor, dropped into the place last night seeking refuge from the rain. He had been there but a few minutes when Fee entered and marching up to Kelly took hold of the pipe the latter was smoking and wrenched it from his mouth.

This precipitated a fight which was only stopped when Patrolman Birmingham, on request of the proprietor, entered and arrested both men. City Judge William Runyon thought the offense against the ordinances deserved a fine and imposed one on each man, $5 or twenty days.

Church to Hold Sale.

The women of the Lutheran church will hold a Christmas sale at the church, Mercer avenue and Grove street, Thursday afternoon and evening. Many useful articles will be for sale. Coffee and cake will be served. A program for the Chrismas entertainment has been prepared, which will be given Monday night, December 27, by the Sunday school.

'PHEMIA PLAYED WITH FIRE; AND CAPT. FEIRING FELL

Playing with matches at about half-past ten this morning, 'Phemia, the two-year-old daughter of John Brown, colored, of 208 East Fourth street, set fire to the bed clothes in her parents' sleeping room and it was but a short time before the house was filled with smoke. An employe of the gas company noticing the apparent fire turned in an alarm from box 21. The firemen were quick to respond and in a trice had the burning bedclothes out on the street and the house saved.

Mrs. Brown, the baby's mother, carried her little girl down the front stairs and set her on the front stoop seemingly unaware of the danger she was in. Captain Feiring, of No. 1 chemical wagon, had a nasty fall on the rear staircase of the house and at first it was thought that his arm was broken. But it amounted to nothing but a bruise. The damage was estimated to be $75 or $100 by Chief Doane.

WHITE PLAGUE PAVILION REPORTS SATISFACTORY

Although the sanatorium of the local Society for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis has been open for patients less than two weeks, the result of the openair treatment accompanied by a generous and nourishing diet is manifest, and encouraging. Seven cases were entered on the first of this month, and one of them at the end of the first week of residence had gained seven and one-half pounds in weight; the aggregate gain in weight of all was twenty-four and one-quarter pounds, the smallest gain being one and one-half pounds. The eighth patient entered on Dec. 7 and it is too early to learn what her gain has been. As the patients are weighed only once a week. With one exception all show a diminution of the feverish condition and look very much better in their faces. They are all cheerful and say they enjoy the treatment.

One thing needful, that cannot be supplied to its full extent by the society, is some simple employment for the enforced leisure. The children particularly would be greatly aided in controlling the restlessness natural to the age, from nine to twelve, by toys, games, story and picture books. One boy of twelve has no overcoat, and as his family cannot supply him one and the society's scant funds are necessarily applied to providing food, it is possible that some reader of this may have such a coat that can be spared. Articles of clothing suitable for girls of nine and twelve and boys of ten and twelve will be very acceptable. If persons having anything to spare cannot themselves take them to the sanatorium they may leave them either at the house of Dr. Hughes, 49 Somersets treet, or with Edward 49 Somerset street, or with Edward tors will be always welcome to the pavilion, and will no doubt get a very different idea of the enjoyableness of living in the open-air, even in stormy weather, than many people no doubt entertain.

FORMER COUNCILMAN TO ADDRESS BOARD.

President H. W. Marshall, of the Board of Trade, has invited Former Councilman Leonard Spangenberg to give a talk on "Municipal Affairs," at the meeting of the board to be held Thursday night, January 6. He will tell all about the work of what was known as the "Big Six," when the present trolley franchise was granted and is expected to give some of the "inside information' regarding municipal matters at that time.

There are many people who still believe that the "Big Six" Council was the best one Plainfield ever had, and declare that more was accomplished during its regime than before or since. Doubtless Mr. Spangenberg's talk will be full of interest.

Amount of Rainfall 2.98 Inches.

According to Weather Prophet John Neagle, the amount of rainfall during the past forty-eight hours was 2.98 inches and the snowfall amounted to 1.50 inches. The maximum temperature was 64 degrees and the minimum 56 degrees.

Engagement Broken Off.

Mrs. R. G. Toense, of 25 St. John's place, Brooklyn, announces that her daughter, Miss H. Claire Toense, has broken off her engagement with G. M. Sauerwein, of Whitestone, L. I., formerly of Plainfield.

Miss Mellick to Be Introduced.

Miss Edith Mellick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Mellick, of East Seventh street, will be formally introduced to society at a reception to be given at her home, Wednesday, December 22.

DEATH OF JACOB KIRKNER

Valuable Citizen and Prominent Mason Passes to the Bourne.

THIRTY-FIVE YRS. ON 'CHANGE.

For Twenty Years a Member of the Board of Education—Once Member of the Assembly.

Jacob Kirkner, one of the first citizens of Plainfield, who was prominent in the business world and Masonic fraternity, being a 32d degree member, died at his home on West Eighth street, about 2 o'clock this morning from a complication of disease with which he had been afflicted for a long time. By his death the city loses a citizen who was constantly interested in every phase of its progress and could always be depended upon to do all that was possible to advance that which was best.

Mr. Kirkner was born in Bridgeport, Conn., seventy years ago last June, and had been a resident of Plainfield forty-five years. Forty-seven years ago he was married in New York to Miss Anna Moss, of that city. For a time he and his wife lived at Flushing, L. I., and then removed to Plainfield, where he at once identified himself with the interests of the city.

When a young man he engaged in the stock brokerage business in New York and for thirty-five years was a member of the New York Stock Exchange, where his influence was always felt. The greater part of his business career he was alone, but about eleven years ago he formed a partnership with his youngest son, under the firm name of J. Kirkner & Co., the son being the company. This firm prospered and was recognized as one of the best in the Street for its integrity and high purpose. Owing to failing health, Mr. Kirkner was not able to attend to business for many months past, but he always kept in touch with affairs at his office, where he had displayed that rare skill and ability which counts for success.

As a member of the Masonic fraternity, Mr. Kirkner was not only well-known throughout the State, but in all parts of the country. He was about the oldest Mason in the State, being the third one to join Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., which was on June 11, 1867. He was master of the lodge from 1879 to 1880. Besides being a past master of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., he was past high priest of Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, Royal Arch Masons, past eminent commander of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, Knights Templar; past high grand priest of the Grand Chapter, Royal Arch Masons of New Jersey, past grand commander of the Grand Commandery of the State of New Jersey and a past officer of Mecca Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles Mystic Shrine, of New York.

Masonry was dear to Mr. Kirkner's heart and he never lost an opportunity to advance its interests. He was a faithful and regular attendant at the Masonic meetings and all were anxious to seek his wise counsel in matters pertaining to the order. The fact that he was honored so many times by his fellow-Masons was a source of great pride to him and he never failed to appreciate the high honors.

Soon after coming to Plainfield Mr. Kirkner identified himself with educational matters and was soon chosen a member of the Board of Education. He was first elected to the board in 1868, remaining there until 1871. After a lapse of a few years he was again elected a member in 1875, continuing until 1881. After another lapse of a few years he was returned again in 1887, holding office until 1891, when he retired.

During his entire service as a member of the Board of Education he either held the office of president and secretary and it was largely due to his indefatigable work that the school system was put on a successful foundation. He never had any use for fads or fancies in matters of education and during the earlier years he asserted his convictions in this respect on many occasions.

While a member of the Board of Education he became interested in a certain educational measure which he desired enacted by the Legislature and to accomplish his purpose was sent to the lower house of the Legislature in 1885. Securing the passage of the bill, he retired after one year's service, although his many friends tried to persuade him to accept a nomination for a second term.

Mr. Kirkner was a member of the Congregational church, and he not only gave the land where the edifice now stands, but also gave the parsonage. Until recently he was a faithful attendant at the services and was always a liberal contributor.

When Mr. Kirkner first removed
